With scarcely defined feelings as to what he desired to gain in this parting interview, he knocked at the door and entered the room, to find the only one he particularly cared to meet sitting alone with a seem to have been reading.

Delancey quietly said: "I have called to bid you farewell, Miss Ashley. You have probably heard that Suddenly chilled by his changed man-but she looked up; their eyes met, a flash of electric light seemed to issue from them, and for the space of ten seconds the gaze of each one was held spellbound by that of the other. All that a look could express was said by that one, without volition on the part of the two who had so many reasons for, as yet, concealing the interest they felt in each other. At length Bessie tore her eyes away into them from the dark orbs of Delancey, and a rosy flush mounted to her cheeks. He clasped her hand fervently in his own, and in a low, excited tone said:

again before your tour is ended. Welby will keep me informed of your where abouts. Present my adieux to the other ladies, for I have scarcely a moment to remain, even if I dared do so at present." Delancey left her standing there palpitating with shame and indignation at the exposure she had made of her feelings, and the evident gratification it seemed to afford him. He had taken with him the assurance of her regard, while he shrank from committing himself in words. Such was her unjust thought, for at that moment a wild and blissful hope was thrilling the heart of her lover, and he was resolving to risk everything to make the secret he so tenaciously guarded. her his own.

Treed by a Wolf.

A tired but happy looking crowd of very many miles from Denver, one Saturday evening. The week had been a pleasant one, and work on the shafts had been prosecuted vigorously, as it was getting well into October, and it was necessary that certain development work should be done before snow came, which might seriously impede, if not stop operations altogether for the winter. The store, like all of its kind, added to its other stock of necessaries a plentiful supply of "bluegrass," and under its cheering effect the boys became quite talkative, and their experiences, when the country was newer, became the order of the evening. "Did I ever tell you how I was treed by a wolf?" asked Bill Gourley, one of the oldest miners in the camp, and a barnacle of the barnacles. The responses were unanimously in the negative. "Well, I'll tell you how it was," said Bill. WARREN LELAND, manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises of America, says that while a passenger from

New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure. 7 Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND's farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND's direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPA-RILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use. Mr. LELAND has personally used

Ayer's Sarsaparilla for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high Uving, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases. We have Mr. LELAND's permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York. Mr. LELAND's extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.
