and the various uses it is adopted to. It has four steel teeth, two side OFFICE - At George A. Kennison's moulds, and one double mould. The teeth are oval pointed and will not allow grass and weeds to stand, but digs and cuts them out where they are left to wilt and die. The side moulds are wide and the very best shape for cutting close up the side of from the plants. For hilling, these side moulds are easily reversed. The frame is adjustable for wide or narrow space between rows. All the teeth and moulds by reason of the long shank and slot, when attached, can be adjusted to suit; also the depth is regulated by the wheel which can, by loosening one bolt, be raised or lowered. A large number of these Cultivators were sold in 1884, and gave excellent satisfaction. Intending buyers will be suited by calling at our Warehouse, Fredericton, or purchas- College of Physicians and Suring from any of our Agents or Travelling Salesmen at Manufac-
