Birth of the New Year.

The bells of the city are ringing, Their clappers are joyously swinging, And they strike sweet notes

From their iron throats, Their welcome tidings bringing. A solemn thing is the birth Of a year untried, unknown; What a myriad startling tidings

May arise from zone to zone! And the earth, now once more peaceful, May bristle again with steel, and the halcyon calm of rest Be burst by the thunder-peal; And the friends that now are left us,

Though few, may fewer grow, And silence fall over the infant And over the locks of snow! We know not, but 'tis solemn, This birth of an infant year,

And we know not whether to smile Or whether to drop a tear. But here the bells are ringing,

And laugh our fears to scorn, And we will be up and doing Upon the untried morn; With a fostering God above us, To guide us on our way,

Through weal and woe to love

So all hall to the New Year's day. Only whisper scandal and its echo is heard

Generally the person who is most fond of a secret is the very one who dosen't think enough of it to keep it.
