A Would be Irish Champion.

Because the FARMER compared th platform adopted by the Grit Conven tion, to the policy of the Irishman who was "agin the Government" the Gri organ makes a miserable attempt to show that we meant to insult Irishmen. misquotes one of our sentences in its contemptible endeavor to make it appear that we insinuated that the sons of Erin are looking for spoils. As the organ's writer well knows, the comparison meant no disrespect to any nationality, and the reference to spoils was applied, not to Irishmen, but to the Grits who had en dorsed the platform. In the very issue of the organ in which it so patronizingly defends the Irish against a slur that originated only in the imagination of its editor, what was its own course to wards the son of a prominent Irish citi zen? We refer to Alderman Sharkey Did it not try to hold him up to ridicule after he had gained his case before the Supreme Court? and had it not sought to persecute him even before the case had been heard at the Police Court The Grit organ the defender of Irishmen What Irishman, or descendant of Irishman, has escaped its attacks, slurs, and its mean insinuations, when the slightest opportunity offered? it its love for Irishmen that caused it to devote so much of its space to abuse of Mr. Joseph E. Collins, of the defunct Star? Was it for the same reason that it even attacked the moral character of the Hon. Michael Adams? Was it be cause he was an Irishman that issu after issue, until muzzled by those for whom it pretends to speak, it charged Postmaster McPeake with detaining its mails for political purposes? Was it with a view of showing its devotion for Irishmen, that it not long ago sneeringly Was its pointed reference to a Queen street merchant, a short time since, intended as a compliment to the sobriety of the Irish people? Was it because one of the principals was a respected Irishman, that it poked fun at the marriage of a retired Regent street merchant? These are only a few of the inwhere the organ has "championed" the Irish cause. With words of butter in its month, but war in its heart, it now seeks to win the favor of a people for whom individually, it has seldom had other than a sneer.

The P. E. Island Elections.

The Liberal party has derived mu consolation from the result of the seces sion movement in Nova Scotia. success of the Government of which that good Grit, Mr. Fielding, is premier, and the openly declared annexationist, Mr. Longley, is attorney-general, has been interpreted as presaging a like party triumph in the Dominion elections, and as a consequence predictions of a sweep of the Province in 1887 by the Opposition have been freely indulged in. Now that the Prince Edward Island elections have resulted in the Sullivan Government supporters by a majority of two to one, the Montreal Gazette suggests that our Liberal friends will probably moderate their transports, and make a more intelligent reading of the meaning of these provincial contests. They may recal the fact that while in 1882 the Fielding or Grit government was sup ported in Nova Scotia by a large majority on the very same day the electors of the province returned fourteen Conservatives out of twenty-one members chosen, to the Dominion house. Mr. Fielding's ministry just about holds its own in the new Legislature, and there is not the slightest warrant for believing that when the Dominion elections come round, the Conservatives will not also win at least as many seats as they now hold. The Island is now divided equally as to its representation in the House of Commons, three of the six representatives being Liberals, yet the Local Conserva tive Government has, as in 1882, carried twenty of the thirty seats. The plain deduction from these facts is, that a considerable proportion at least of the electors side with one party in provincial and with the other in Dominion politics, a reliable index of the issue of the other. clear a majority against the ministry, ing the funds to make the exiles' banishment
