A Pleasant Meeting.

Some of the Toronto papers tell of a peculiar, but very pleasant meeting of three gentlemen at Government House in that city last Wednesday. It was planned by Sir Alexander Campbell, overnor of Ontario, he was one of the distinguished trio, and the other two were no less than Sir John A. Macdonald, the Conservative night. Premier of Canada, and Hon. Oliver Mowatt, the Liberal Premier of Ontario. The meeting of these three gentlemen in a social way at this time, was interesting, because in early life, nearly half a century ago, they were most intimately associated, and not for very many years had they met in ago John A. Macdonald was a promising young lawyer in Kingston, Ontario, and his senior student was young Alexander Campbell, ready to go up for admission to the bar. It is related that about that time, a chubby faced, ruddy youth, applied at Macdonald's office for permission to enter it as a law student, and the lad's name was none other than Oliver Mowatt. He was taken into the office at once, and like Alexander Campbell, gained his first knowledge of law through the initial number. tuition of Mr., now Sir John A. Macdonald. Campbell and Mowatt both graduated from Macdonald's office to same Province, but in politics to drift wide apart. Campbell allied himself with the Conservatives, from whom he has received the highest honor in the gift of his Province, while Mowatt, casting in his fortunes with the Liberals, has for years successfully led the Government of Ontario, his posi-(Mowatt) is.
