The McCarthy Mystery.

On Tuesday the 10th

THOMAS WARD said that he was bar-keeper for Osbornes RE-ICE AND FORWARD FRESH SALMON in the fall of 1877. Remembered western bar-room door. He used to drive nails in the casing to fasten it at night and take them out in the morning. A person could have put their hand through the glass and unbolted the door if only bolted, so he drove the nails in. He paid Annie Parker off, according to Mrs. Osborne's instructions, when discharged. Gave her $1, she wanted a quarter more but Mrs. Osborne said not to give it to her. Annie was in the habit of going out late at night. One night he remembers it was half-past eleven when she came in. Annie was saucy.

MR. PALMER'S ADDRESS. The November Number.

Attention is especially invited to the November number, which in many respects approaches nearer to our ideal than any number we have issued. It contains 72 pages, and its illustrations throughou are fine and varied. It begins two splendid serials Its shorter papers represent a wide range of subject, - History, Travel, Fun, Peetry, Adventure, Science, Natural History, Home-life, Sport, and Throughout are seen evidences and fruit of the editor's recent travel across the continent, and Mrs. Dodge's inimitable touches everywhere show the heartiness and zeal with which she resumes active editorial management. asserting that a foul murder had been committed. He called attention to the fact that the wagon had been seen by Hickey on the night in question and said because there had been no accomplices proved in this case, no one could assert there were none. After Annie Parker went to bed there was ample time to make preparations and there was an inducement to commit the murder in the money possessed by McCarthy, and no one but the prisoners knew he had so much money about him. This was the great motive which led to murder. The next thing was the disposal of the body, and the evidence of Warman, White, and Atkinson testified to the tracks of the wagon in the field; the boy curled upon the wagon by the road and the man walking in the field, as if he was afraid of being watched. It had moreover been proved at this trial that the boy had a rubber on one foot. After Osborne talked of his being away, running a hotel, Mrs. Osborne believed him in the Scadouc, and when Osborne heard the body was found, he said the deceased would have his money and clothes with him. He then went over the evidence at length, observing that he did not mean they should depend wholly on Annie Parker's testimony, as Mrs. Osborne said Mrs. Larette was going nearly all the evidence was confirmatory to get her a new girl, and Annie Parker of hers. She had, indeed, contradicted herself on some points, but any intelligent person would be liable to do so, and an astute counsel like Mr. Palmer could easily cause witnesses to vary their testimony in minor points. He failed to see, however, that the story had been broken in the main points. Eliza had also asked Cormick if the clothes etc., were found on the body could anything be done to them? If they knew nothing of the murder, why should they feel so anxious? In regard to the character of the prisoners, Judge Botsford and his lady had given the evidence as they believed to be true, but why were Mr. Jacob Wortman and others not interrogated on their character. He appealed to the jury to put aside all sentimental feelings and to do their duty to the best of their ability. They were not responsible for the law; they did not make it; yet if a doubt existed they must give it to the prisoners.

This closed the addresses of counsel. Mr. Dickson called his Honor's attention to a wrong construction his learned friend had put on Hickey's evidence, viz: that Hickey said he did not often see wagons in the night. Mr. Hickey said he saw one about every night. He (Mr. Dickson) did not wish to interrupt Dr. Tuck and would now ask His Honor through his ad-
