to-day. As the Queen did not open the session in person there was no state ceremonial. The Queen's Speech states that she summoned Parliament before the usual time that it might become acquainted with the efforts made to terminate the war, and that she might have its advice and assistance. She alluded to her having declared her intention at the outbreak of the war to preserve neutrality in the contest-which she lamented but failed to prevent-so long as the interests of her empire were not threatened. The Russian successes have convinced the Porte that it should endeavor to bring hostilities to a close and the Sultan's Government accordingly addressed to the neutral powers, parties to the treaties relating to Turkey, an appeal for their good offices. It did not, however, appear to the majority of them that they could usefully comply with the request and the Porte was so informed. The Porte then determined to make a separate appeal to her Government, and she at once agreed to enquire of the Czar whether he would entertain peace overtures. The Czar, in reply, expressed his earnest desire for peace and stated his opinions as to the course which should be pursued to attain it. Upon this subject communications had taken place between Russia and Turkey through her Government offices and she earnestly trusts they may lead to the termination of the war. She will spare no efforts to promote that result. Hitherto in the war neither of the belligerents has infringed on the conditions on which her neutrality is founded, and she willingly believes both are desirons to respect them as far as lies in their power. So long as her contracts are not infringed, her attitude will continue the same, but she cannot conceal from herself that should hostilities be unfortunately prolonged some unexpected occurrence may render it incumbent on her to adopt measures of precaution. Such measures could not be effectually taken without adequate preparation, and she trusts to her Parliament's liberality to supply means required for that purpose. The papers on these affairs will be forthwith laid before Parliament. Her relations with all foreign powers continue friendly. Her Majesty expresses her thanks that the Indian famine is nearly ended. The condition of native affairs in South Africa has caused her some anxiety, the troops there have been reinforced, but she trusts for a peaceable and satisfactory settlement shortly of all differences. The estimates of the year will soon be presented to the Commons. Her Majesty, in conclusion, details a number of measures of a local character that will be laid before Parlia-

English journalism is ordinarily impersonal. The name of the writer of the brilliant article that enlightens and convinces thousands is rarely known to those whose opinions have been moulded by it. But Mr. Forbes, without any effort of his own, has completely broken through the disguise of an anonymous writer, and stands before the whole reading public in the full blaze of an extraordinary popularity. Even his personal appearance is minutely described. The Tribune correspondent describes him thus :- "Close upon six feet tall, square-shouldered, straight as a pine tree, a soldier every inch of him, his bronzed and handsome face close shaved all but a mustache, once brown, now gray; a black coat, buttoned across his broad chest, on which row of military decorations is neatly hung; the red and white ribbon and cross of St. Stanislas around his neckthat is Archibald Forbes, once of the Royal Dragoons, now war correspondent of the Daily News, and one of the four or five men who have won fame in the present war.'

The healing properties of our own fragrant bal-sam and pine and the gums of the East are too well known to require description. Their grateful, healing, soothing, and strengthening properties are known to thousands. When combined in accordance with late and important discoveries in pharmacy, their healing and strengthening properties are increased tenfold. In this respect our Plaster is the best in use without the aid of electricity.

Thus combined we have two grand medical agents in one, each of which performs its function and unitedly produce more cures than any liniment, lotion, wash, or plaster ever before compounded in the history of medicine. Try one.

DEAR SIR,—Being desirous that others may know something of the merits of your Constitutional Catarre Response to the merits of your constitutional Catarre Response to the merits of your constitutional Catarre Response to the merits of your different doctors. I may be years old; had been out of health for about five years. I had employed three or four different doctors, and tried various medicines, without receiving any permanent benefits but continued rather to grow worse, until last fall, when I had become so bad as to be unable to do an hour's work at a time. Had severe soreness and pain under the shoulder blades and through the shoulders, with very lame back, and a feeling in my right lung as though there was a weight bearing it down, with continual dropping in the throat and down upon the lungs. Such was my condition when I commenced to take your Catarrh Remedy, one bottle of which eased my pains and gave me an improved appetite, and the taking four hottles is watered to take and after taking four hottles is watered. eased my pains and gave me an improved appetite, and after taking four bottles I was restored to health, so as to be able to endure hard and continued labor, such as chopping and clearing land, at which I have been engaged the past season. My recovery I attribute solely, with God's blessing, to the use of your Catarrh Remedy. Yours truly, Price 31 per bottle.

A Remarkable Man. It is not an unsuitable thing, in this age of the printing press, that our chief heroes should be newspaper correspon-The two men whose deeds are, at the present moment, attracting the greatest attention in England and America are Stanley of the Telegraph and Herald, and Forbes, the war correspondent of the London Daily News. Mr. Forbes is indisputably the man of the hour, whom all, from great monarchs down to the lowliest, delight to honor. He has recently delivered a lecture on the military tactics of the Russian campaign against Turkey, before some of the chief officers of the British army that displays those qualities that make a great general. It was distinguished by the union of correct knowledge of details and broad grasp of all the possibilities of the situation. He had a good training in military tactics as correspondent during the Franco-German war. He seems to unite the highest physical endurance and energy with great intellectual force. From an interesting sketch of this heroic correspondent, by Mr. Smalley, of the N. Y. Tribune, we condense the following particulars, which may help to show the renown he has acquired by his exploits.

From a Distinguished Physician. No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more and sometimes all yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system atacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored because but little atacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored because but little understood by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won my hearty approval. I believe it likely to succeed when all the usual remedies fail, because itstrikes at the root of the disease, viz., the acidified blood, while it heals the ulcerated membrane by direct application to the nasal passages. Its action is based on certain fixed rules, and unless the vital forces are too far exhausted, must, in the great majority of cases, effect a cure.

"You are aware," said a distinguished city physician, "that my obligations to the Mass. Medical Society are such that I cannot publicly recommend or prescribe the Radical Cure; but since I received so much relief from the use of it myself, after a thorough trial of the usual remedies, I have privately advised its use, and presume I have sent to your store no less than one hundred of my patients for it."

Each package contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for use in all cases. Price, $1.00. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists and dealers throughout the United States and Canadas. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

Unless the vital spark has fled the body, restoration by means of electricity is possible. It is the last resort of all physicians and surgeons, and has rescued thousands, apparently dead, from an untimely grave, when no other human agency could have succeeded. This is the leading curative element in this Plaster. BALSAM AND PINE.
