To the Editor of the Miramichi Advance:

SIR: During the January sitting of the Municipal Council of Gloucester, I had and all kinds of liquor to be found in well furnishoccasion to visit the Council Chamber, expecting of course, to be amply repaid by hearing instructing discussions, and observing the routine and dispatch of the public business. Although it was late in the Session I was surprised that nothing had yet been done, but on alittle observation I discovered that the men composing the Council were divided in two distinct parties-the object of each being not the transaction of the business of the County, but the appointment of a Secretary-Treasurer for the year. I learned that the first days of the sitting were occupied. by each party making an active private canvass, which resulted in one of the Dublic Notice is hereby given that application | Councillors absenting himself, when the lature of this Province, for the passage of an Act vote was to be taken on the question of turning the old Sec-Treasurer out, thereby leaving to his fate his old political supporter, who had served the County as Clerk of the Peace and Secretary-Treasurer for nearly thirty years, and against whom his opponents could not maintain a single charge. There has been appointed in his stead, a young man of ability, who, I make no doubt will discharge the duties of the office equally as well as his prede-

I visited the room occupied by the Committee appointed to examine and report upon Collectors' Accounts, and was really amused to find one of the Committee men unable to make up a Collector's Commission. One thing which I particularly observed was a Collector from a distant Parish who had been called before the Council on a charge of being indebted to the Treasurer in the sum of two dollars and some cents, while he claimed a balance in his favour of more than double that amount. The Collector explained before the Committee that he retained a portion concurrence, and left a balance in his favourso he would be safe at the meeting of This College has for its object to impart to young men, together with the benefit of a Christian education, the necessary knowledge of commerce in all its branches, and whatever else may fit them for indus- Had he collected some fifty dollars less, his fees would be some two dollars more, according to their new scale, and they insisted on payment to the Treasurer of No deduction is made for absence, unless for ex-ulsion or protracted sickness, that is, one month or the balance found against him which the Collector refused to pay and returned to his home the same as he had left it. In reflecting on what I heard in that Committee Room, I could not help coming to the conclusion that the Collectors of Rates were very unfairly dealt withthe men who must travel every nook and corner of the County, to raise the means to carry on its business-the men who are looked upon by the illiterate and unthinking portion of the people as public enemies -the men who, in the discharge of their ill will of their neighbours-these men should be treated at least with justice. I heard mention made of one, however, who got not only his own, but who had. also, "euchred" the Treasurer in the sum of something like sixty dollars in 1875. I heard a very prominent member confess that this ex-Collector was too many for them. Perhaps the influence of the Councillors of this Parish (who in one sense are his bondsmen) is sufficient to After the election of a new Secretary many of the defeated party seemed to have lost their reasoning powers, and some of the silliest remarks I ever heard uttered proceeded from some of the Councillors on the bench. R. H. ARNOLD. The passing of the Public Accounts was like child's play and Bills which had been repeatedly thrown out by previous Councils were passed without a remark. Towards the close of the session I left fully impressed with the idea that our > petent party, who care not who provides the loaves and fishes, so long as they are allowed to live on them.

Is it so? Again.

Вылск Вкоок, Jan. 19, 1878.

To the Editor of the Miramichi Advance. DEAR SIR :- I notice in a recent issue another communication from "May Be So." This time he appears as an "A." but, however, not as an "A 1." Perhaps it would not be amiss to give a little of change of nom de plume. When my first assist in that capacity, (not being harassed | and five faces. of a situation to perform at present,) but lips of "May Be So" himself, in which he insisted on him getting another person, and doubts if I could equal a five year older they three forming a ring to be called the myself. This I could soon settle, would I, "A," Ring to write in opposition to "It in a meeting, consent to waste my wind on Is So"? Well, the third person, whom this gentleman, although his complexion they received into their ring was a Church now is of a fiery hue, doubt not that before Point native, and although that class of peo- I would be done speaking, it would be of a ple are generally of a dark hue, this one is snowy white. The next paragraph is also an exception to the general rule, being of a generated by "May Be So" in which he light complexion and known in his native doubts if I am a mechanic, but I may, ere village as "Beau-ideal," was, therefore, long, when he gets acquainted with me, taken into this "A" ring. through which they could open a contradiction, it being all as the circumstances really happened. When our "cute" bankrupt merchant, this anguis in herba, devised the plan of laying it on the shoulders of certain young men, and thought by trying to ridicule them to make the public think it a laudable answer, he was a long way off his eggs and as far from hitting "It Is So" as the youth who sallied forth gun in hand in search of game and on returning, when asked where his game was, replied that he thought he saw some game, but the first time he fired he missed it and the next time he struck it in the same place. This is "May Be So's case. In his first letter he thought he saw me and fired, but it was a miss shot and before he has finished reading this letter I don't doubt but he will call his second production a miss shot, also, for if he knew my real name, he would find me a very different person from the one he suspects. But if "May Be So" wishes to come out like a man and throw off his nom de plume and scribble over his real name, I will also sign istrial notes are especially welcome. We do not my real name to my communications and dare say that he would be, as he often is, them from sending along their layors. We want the news and will see that it goes into the paper in I must, however, thasten on and show which of the ring produced each sentence few words he vomits forth a big Latin phrase which means a rare bird of the earth. I am exceedingly obliged to him for this name, because, of course, he would not call me "A Black Crow" which then would make him and I very much like "Birds of a feather." You see this impertinent youth cannot let birds alone although from the continual "Caw, Caws!" which greet his ear at every turn, if I were he, I would let the bird matter rest for the present, anyway. He then goes on to talk of the reflections which I cast on the appearance of the President and Secretary, but Mr. Editor, all the reflections which I cast on these two gentlemen did not deviate in the least from the circumstances as they really happened, for as I wrote then, will now, which was-"That the President after being called on rose and with one hand uplifted, his face all aglow and a Royal Reader in his other hand, poured forth in touching language that reading eailed "The three black crows," and what I said of the Secretary's appearance was that the young man of good personal appearance rose and with cheeks like two full blown roses said "Mr. President after the remarks which Mr. Blake has made, I do not think it would be of any use for me to try it," but I don't think this young gentleman should think his good personal appearance in any way a discredit to him. for if Barnum was to come across a youth of such rare beauty, he would do better exhibiting him than he did with "Tom Thumb." "May Be So" then goes on to write of a certain young swell who once cut a dash in the uniform and with the accoutrements of a pedlar. In this, perhaps, he thinks he will throw a slur on some young man of the neighbourhood, but Mr. Editor, it will be no disgrace to any of his fees with the Sec-Treasurer's full young man to begin his life in this world as a pedlar, as all know that some of the wealthiest men of the world have risen from pedlars. "May Be So" when talk. ing of a pedlar, should not forget that he himself is considered a pedlar, although carrying a very different pack from the young man he alludes to, it being a pack with a "Jack" and an "Ace" in it. Yes. this young man, who should be to the rest of the district in which he lives a pattern, will carry a pack around in the evenings and coax the young people to play with him, and when he has beaten them at his favourite game of "forty-fives" or "euchre," as I believe is sometimes the case, (although he thinks himself "a sharper,") he will avoid them who beat him and ferret out another greenie over whom he will afterwards boast of having Ah! this is a sad course for a man in his position to be moving when he should duties often incur the displeasure and be an example to the young of the neighbourhood, and I hope ere long he will see the error of his way and on evenings when not employed at the D. T. R. meeting, seek something of a higher and nobler nature to amuse himself with. The rest of this sentence is the production of the bankrupt merchant, in which he says 'that behind these mild jestings about ' Smelt Fever &c." therelay imprecations against those who are not engaged in the catching of smelts and other fish." While writing this I never once thought of laying imprecations against one altogether. I dare say, if I had been writing in this strain against those who now form the ring, I could have cut much deeper, and if any of the three who compose the ring wish to come to this part of the scene, I will, perhaps, raise the curtain before the public on plots and schemes of theirs of a still darker hue than ever any monarch was guilty of. He next writes of "some parties been engaged in the catching of smelts and affairs are in the hands of a very incomother fish (legally or otherwise) but they should, for their own benefit avoid this. for none of the three can boast of their legal proceedings, and I am sure should ponder well the word "illegal," for it is not a great while since one of the three turned bankrupt, (and the public knows the rest) and the Church Point native.
