CHATHAM, THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1878.

House of Assembly. Mr. Swim closed the debate in the Legislature on the Covert Amendment-the Resolution of Want of Confidence.

His speech was as follows:-MR. SWIM would not have risen at all him from the other side of the House. He country would not be humbugged by had never thought it his place in this played out machinery House to defend the Government, knowing they could very well defend themselves. favorably, knowing that the Lumbermen of the County he represented were not in favor of it in a large degree; but, while the hon. gentleman to whom he referred had blamed him for not opposing the Gov-same breath, that he did not oppose Stumpage, and on that point, to start with, he should disagree with the hon. gentleman.

The Agricultural Report, had been referred to very generally by all the speakers, | well gone by for that kind of thing in this and he proposed to say something on the subject also. In Appendix C the Report commenced with an article on Ploughs. Now, it was the exception to get good Ploughs, fit to put in a ploughman's hands or behind a team. He knew something of Ploughs and had suffered from having to use poor ones. In that Report were particulars concerning what he called a Plough, in been unnecessarily prolonged. symmetry and style of manufacture, and MR Covert asked some questions in though he had not had the privilege of trying it, he knew from those who had that it was a first rate implement. Was it a shame that the Government of the country should give to the people, who good Plough? Messrs. Harris, of St. John, did make an excellent Plough, but it was not adapted to the work generally required in the country. If they turned to other machinery in this Report they would find a good deal about Messrs. Cossitt's machines. He referred to the Reaper and Mower manufactured by them, and asked would any honorable gentleman be kind enough to give him information where a combined Reaper and Mower was manufactured in New Brunswick. He did not know it to this day, and was it a shame of the Government of the day to tell people where they could get a Reaper and Mower combined, of light draught and simple construction, and its mechanism easily understood?

He was astonished that the Farmers who were suffering from the need of Ploughs, information as to where they could get a occupied seats on the floors of the House had not risen in defence of their much abused craft, for it was a fact that no interest had been more imposed on than that of the farmers of our country and he believed the Farmers would endorse what he said. Hon. gentlemen talked about advertising the implements of Ontario. Were they not advertised by runners who invaded your premises and forced on you their machines, and was not the result out through the United States and Ontario, had been run down to this Province, which some of these gentry deemed the jumping off place and imposed on our Farmers? He held that it was right and Farmers, for it was necessary that any person who bought machinery of any kind ills, Ayer's Hair Vigor, Hall's Hair Renewer, Alaround the House should waste so much len's Restorer, Rondeletia, Mona Bouquet, Florida time on so very poor a cause. Was there really a manufacturer in New Brunswick not all kinds of manufactures in iron combined and were not Farming Implements run as a side-show with some others, and could it be expected that they would do as well as establishments that had to compete against the world? The people should have the most reliable information. He took an interest in machinery; he was something of a machinist himself; he had the first Reaper and Mower on the Miramichi River; he had the first Thrasher, and anything he could do by machinery and not by hand, he did. He had had 27 years experience in machines, and he was sorry to say his experience in Agricultural Machines in particular was this-that if tural implement, he would want it first class, because if he did otherwise it might We call special attention to our Carpets as we good for the farmers of this country to enable them to make of it what ought to articles, and he thought the sons of New

He thought it came with a very bad Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion. grace from the Opposition that the Gov-ernment kept seats in the Upper House dangling before the eyes of members. He had a right to express his opinion and judge for himself on all questions which came before the House, and he thought that when a man made a charge like that he ought to name his man and not throw it broadcast among the members of the House. He came there elected by the independent electors of Northumberland, and he stood there as an independent man. The Government had never tampered with him, and had never offered him any place, and he voted with the Government or is used as directed. Price one dollar per against them as he thought best for his bottle. For sale by all Druggists and County. When he came into the House he opposed the Government on their Agricultural policy, but he did not think the Agricultural interest had been neglected and he was now prepared to assist in per-fecting the management of that important interest. Anybody would think, from the remarks of hon. members, that their constituents consisted of Manufacturers of Agricultural implements, but behind them was the Farmer, and he thought it was high time to let the latter know something reliable as to the machines they required in order that they might know they were going to get something reliable, because they were mostly unskilled in machinery. He thought that when some of the hon. gentlemen went back to their Counties the Farmers would not thank them for the part they had taken in the matter in tak-

would tell you it was because they were manufactured in Ontario. Ten years ago they used to get good implements, but now, if you put a fork in a man's hands in the morning, you did not know but it would require repairing before the day was out, and he considered the Government ought to let the Farmers know where to get good articles, and he, for one, would patronise that establishment at once.

If you asked the reason of this, the vendors

He saw in the Report a cut of a Harrow, and from the description of it he had no doubt it was a better harrow than the one he was acquainted with, and he thought it would be worth a trial, and any information of that kind he thought it was right to give to the people. The Seed Drill, also, was one which he would like to try on his farm.

He referred to the "labor of love" paragraph, which he read, and said that, knowing as he did the Secretary for Agriculture, knowing him as a practical Farmer, and having had the pleasure of visiting him on his farm and seeing the way he kept his place and buildings, he could well conceive that it was a labor of love for him, and he sympathised with that remark, and he hoped the "fair farms" would sood become fairer farms by reason of improvements. He hoped the day would had not a personal allusion been made to speedily arrive when the people of our
