Parliament.

[From the Telegraph.]

Governor-General flatly refused to dismiss Mr. Letellier; that Sir John Macdonald then counselled a remission of the matter to England, giving out at the same time that it was the Governor-General, as an Imperial officer, who had determined on that reference, and wily Premier! The terms in which Sir John originally announced to Parliament the conclusion arrived at, were unjust to the Governor-General who expressed his dissatisfaction therewith and required a second statement to be made. Nothing, however, transpired which disclosed or even hinted at the fact that the reference to England emanated from the brain of Sir John, although the Government before the session closed were compelled very fully to acknowledge their responsibility for the act. In one part of the note in which Sir John narrated what had occurred between the Governor-General and himself, an ambiguous expression is used and permitted to pass, the effect of which was to keep Sir John clear of cannot prevent a discussion which will be damaging to the Government, whose members must all stand by the Premier, as most of them did before in circumstances of the same trying character.

Our readers may compare the Governor-General's plain and unvarnished statement with the utterances of the Govern-at the time. In doing so they will wonder how the friendly relations between the Governor-General and the Ministry could have been preserved, and they will conclude that such a piece of political deception could not well be repeated. Here is what the Governor-General says as to his course
