THE "FOSTER House," advertised another column, should be an attraction to sportsmen and travellers, generally, on account of its proximity to the shooting and fishing grounds, as well as the disposition of the proprietor, Mr. David McIntosh to make his guests feel at home. He is prepared to provide guns, ammunition, canoes and men to manage them, decoys, etc. -- a feature that cannot fail to attract many having sufficient spare time to seek first class shooting.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT :- On Tuesday morning about 11 o'clock, as Mr. John Hackett of Chatham, was at work in a field in the rear of the residence of Mr. William Morrison, sinking granite boulders. One which he had partially undermined and beneath which he was standing, suddenly fell upon him across the thighs, in consequence of the earth giving away. The men at work along with Mr. Hackett immediately relieved him from the weight of the boulder, and as soon as possible, he was conveyed to his home in Chatham. Drs. J. S. Benson and J. B. Benson were immediately summoned, and upon examination it was found that Mr. Hackett's left thigh was broken about midway between the hip and knee. The injured limb was set and the patient has since been doing well.

Entertainment of the Chatham Temperance Reformers

On Tuesday evening the Chatham Temperance Reformers held their weekly meeting in the Temperance Hall. The President L. J. Tweedie, Esq., occupied the chair, and the Rev. Mr. Teed opened the meeting with prayer. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Howell and Mr. Duncan Davidson, Recitations Choruses by the Choir. Misses C. John. piano. The proceedings concluded with the National Anthem.

At the conclusion of the programme, A. D. Shirreff, on behalf of the Executive Committee, put the following resolution to the meeting which was adopted. "That as there are a large number of names of persons on the books who are not now members of the society, your Committee would recommend that the society be reorganized and pledge books provided for signature, commencing on Tuesday evening. Oct., 28th and recommend a vote be taken this evening on the subject." The Executive Committee also reported | Curdy. that they had decided to celebrate the second Anniversary of the Society on Thursday the 6th, November, that day Nicholas Barden, William McGraw, Peter being Thanksgiving Day.

It was also suggested that a musical and literary entertainment be held at a future date, but nothing definite in that way ### was decided upon. The Municipal Elections.

Patrick Hays and James Brown, Esqs., address the Ratepayers of Newcastle, announcing, by card, which will be found in another column, their compliance with requests to allow themselves to be run as canditates for the representation of that parish in the Municipal Council.

The news on the subject from the outlying parishes, excepting Blissfield, is not sufficiently definite to be reproduced in

We observe that a local paper, formerly opposed to Messrs. Lawlor and Johnson, -the candidates already announced for the Parish of Chatham — says hatches were off, as he approached. There turned without opposition. We are, on the other hand, assured by D. Crimmin. Esq., who was a candidate last year, that it is his intention to again offer. Mr. McGowan also joins in opposing Messrs, Lawlor and Johnson, as his card proves. It is only fair that it should be understood that these gentlemen are determined to force a contest, which, after all, they have a right to do, notwithstanding the effort of the paper referred to to keep the matter quiet.

Complimentary Supper to John Costigan, Esq., M. P.

John Costigan, Esq., M. P., visited Chatham, on Monday and left the same evening for St. John. Although his coming was not known beforehand, a complimentary supper was got up by quite a large number of his friends of the Conservative party, several gentlemen identified with the local Liberal party, however, being among the invited guests. The affair took place at the Bowser Hotel and the spread was an excellent one. The chair was occupied by W. Wilkinson, Esq., Q. C. At the usual time the toasting commenced, that of the guest of the evening being proposed by the Chairman, who in a speech of considerable length, paid a deserved compliment to Mr. Costigan's consistent and useful public career. Mr. Costigan made a thoughtful and modest reply, touching on the points suggested by the Chairman's speech. He referred to the many similar entertainments-large and small-with which he had been recently honored and elaborated the idea that if those who had participated in them could all be gathered together in one great group before him, the picture would be unsatisfactory and incomplete if it did not contain its just and truthful proportion of those who differed from him in nationality and religion. He was very much gratified, therefore, to find that the Chairman seemed to understand that this feeling would always prevent him from contining any efforts which it might be possible to him, in any position to which he might attain, to the promotion of the Jackson, the material being furnished by interests of one particular class to the sent for some ice and for my brother, Dr. received with great enthusiasm and satis-

The Death of Willie Heard.

One of the saddest accidents that has ever taken place in Chatham, happened on Thursday evening last, about half past 9 o'clock, on board the barquentine Gladstone, lying at the Public Wharf, near Mr. Peter Loggie's Mill, from which she was just prepared to commence load. George Locke sworn. I am boatswain of the Barquentine Gladstone. About 9. 30 p. m. I came out of the cabin behind deceased and on getting near the main hatch, I told him to look out as the hatches were off. He said nothing, but slewed right round and stepped over the hatch after I spoke. He was two feet off then. He immediately fell down. I could see the hatches were off from where I was 6 feet off. He had just come from the bright light of the cabin and was walking slowly. I sung out on his falling, and the Steward and I went down. I could see blood on his face. I saw him brought out of the hold and helped to carry him into the cabin. The main hatch is generally open at night. The main hatch covers we could not get on, in consequence of a batten nailed on. We were loading deals. The other hatches were put on at dark. To the Jury-There were no deals the hold. I was on the forecastle at the time of the accident heard the captain singing out from the rail, "who is that down the hold?" immediately ran. I got a light. I jumped down the hold and picked deceased up. He was lying on the right side groaning. There was blood flowing from his nose and mouth. He said "Oh! Oh!" several times. The Steward put the rope round him and he was brought on deck and carried to the cabin. I waited on the Doctor till he died Dr, J. S. Benson sworn.-About 9.30 on Thursday evening I was summoned to go on board the barque Gladstone lying at Loggie's wharf. The messenger said that oung Heard, clerk at Mr. Muirhead's store, had met with an accident. I went on board immediately and found deceased lying on a couch in the cabin, in an unconscious condition. He was very restless. throwing his limbs about and moaning. On examining his head I found a large swelling on the right side, extending from the ear forward to the eye, and upwards to the middle of the head. On the left side there was a smaller swelling on the temple, both of which I considered caused by extravasation of blood. He was sensible of pain, for when I examined his head he put up his hand. I called him by name when he partially opened his eyes, but did not answer. The pupils of the eyes were of the natural size and responded to the light. There was no paralysis of any part. I waited a few minutes to see if he would rally. I then neglect of any other. His remarks were J. B. Benson. On his arrival we applied the ice to deceased's head, and also a large mustard poultice covering the whole of the chest and bowels. No internal remedies were administered for fear of suffoca-In reply to other toasts there were dies were administered for fear of suffocation, owing to his unconscious state. His pulse was intermittent irregular, and compressible. Afterabout an hour, he appear ed to rally and once he opened his eyes. He never recovered, however, sufficiently to recognize any one. His eyes became insensible to the touch about this time. and he gradually sank until he died at 12.15 a. m. The cause of death was concussion and probably contusion of the brain. There was no evidence of depressed fracture. From the swelling on both sides of the head, he appears, to have struck first on one side and then on the other. There was a ladder found broken where he fell, which he might have struck. The fall he sustained would be sufficient to cause the symptoms described.

To the Jury.—It could not be judged externally whether the bruises received by the deceased were sufficient to cause leath, or whether there were other symptoms induced by the fall. Dr. J. B. Benson sworn-Between 9 and 10 o'clock on Thursday evening, I was called upon to see the deceased. William Heard, on board the barquentine Gladstone. I found him lying in the cabin insensible, having sustained the injuries already described by my brother, Dr. J. S. Benson. He appeared very pale, and his pulse ranged from 48 to 60, which was small. His eyes were insensible of pressure, he vomited twice, the contents of the stomach being mixed with a little blood which probably came from the nose. He had also a fit lasting two or three minutes. He was unable to show his tongue. My brother and I applied ice and mustard as stated, and also bottles of hot water to his feet, and covered him well with blankets to retain the natural heat of the body. Once or twice, he shewed signs of improvement, but nothing to warrant much hope. I left him in a dying condition. The cause of death was concussion of the brain. The Jury, without retiring, brought in verdict, to the effect that the deceased had come to his death through injuries received in falling into the hold of the Barquentine Gladstone, lying at Peter Loggie's wharf.

It is needless to say that everything that human sympathy and kindness could devise was done for the little sufferer while he still lived, and although no relative was present, the grief of those who were witnesses of the lad's death was none the less deep and sincere. He had only been in Chatham some six months, having, at his own request, been placed in Mr. Muirhead's employ, by his father, who wished that he should become familiar with the details of the lumber business of the Miramichi. He was a pleasant wellbehaved little fellow, and his quiet and manly bearing, and attention to business, in business hours, together with excellent | The Contractors are making enough out general deportment, were such as to attract the attention of many people who would perhaps fail to notice boys of the ordinary class. Such friendships as he c ontracted amongst lads of his own age were well chosen and he was, as he deserved to be, a general favorite with all who knew him. It is not, therefore surprising that the news of his sudden death caused regret among all classes of the community, and expressions of sympathy for his family, two thousand miles away. A cable message preparing them for the worst was sent by Senator Muirhead, and an enquiry for all the particulars was sent back, showing how anxious they were at home. These were forwarded and Mr. Muirhead also telegraphed to the agent of the Allan Line Steamers to secure the conveyance of the remains to England in the Sarmatian, which was to leave Rimouski on Saturday. A reply came stating the body could not be taken, as the Princess Louise was to be a passenger on that vessel-one which, we are quite sure Highness, had she been aware of it. William Heard, Esq., of Charlottetown, P. E. I., uncle of Willie, was telegraphed for and after further communication with the lad's father, it was decided that the burial should take place in Chatham. An elegant casket was procured in Moncton and meantime the body was prepared for the grave at Mr. Muirhead's residence, whose place of business was closed on both Friday and Saturday. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon last and was attended by a very large number of citizens of all classes, and Sunday School and other children. Rev. Dr. Jardine of St. Andrew's Church conducted the service at Mr. Muirhead's residence, at which Mr. Heard of Charlottetown, who had driven through from Shediac, and many sympathising friends

The service commenced about three o'clock by the school children, led by Miss L. Dr. Jardine, then offered up a prayer and the sad and solemn offices ended. Flags were displayed at half mast, on the shipping and several private flagstaffs of the town from Friday morning until Sunday evening. Senator Muirhead and his family, as tub. well as other friends, including Captain Davies, seemed to look upon the sad event as a heavy personal bereavement and the family of Mr. Muirhead could not have shown greater solicitude had the sad visitation taken some member from their

RAILWAY MATTERS. RICHIBUCTO, N.B., Oct. 22nd, '79. Anent the location of the R. R. near Kingston and the definite action of the Contractors, there are various opinions, Some say it was never the Company's intention to favor Kingston by running the line through the village and that the pro moters of the scheme threw out such an idea merely to conciliate the Kingstonians and gain their support until the location of the upper end of the line was settled. Others say that the Company must run the road through the village, as the Government delegates promised they would, and that they are noising the probability of a disappointment to Kingston for the purpose of lowering the land damages. Mr. Alex. Girvan asks $1,000 for the damage the road will do his farm and all fair minded men think this sum little enough. of the road to pay fair land damages, and the Company should not second them in purpose of putting a few thousands into
