On Tuesday of last week Sir Leonard Tilley disclosed the Budget for the year. The following is a summary of his speech: in truth, a difference of two per cent and sir Leonard said when he had last the this, notwithstanding the difference of nance Minister, following in the wake of honor of moving the House into committee conditions. Another objection to the his illustrious leader, said that so farof ways and means, he had pointed out tariff was, that it would weigh heavily on sighted were the bankrupts of Canada that the difference between the situation then certain Provinces, to the detriment of the they went voluntarily into bankruptcy in the country. The Government applied ments, as there was need of employment for the people. He enumerated large railtariff, $3,400,000. (Ironical cheers from insolvent for years. the Opposition.) The estimates of the late Finance Minister for 1878 and 1879 were: were $12,900,660. From excise the estimated receipts were much more than the from bill stamps, Post Office, Public the country the day the N. P. was passed. mate was $23,850,000, and the receipts were $22,517,380, deducting $1,300,000 received in anticipation of the tariff. The expenditure was estimated at $23,669,000, penditures were under the estimates. adding these, the total deficiency would have been $2,161,866, so that the Government had to practically free a deficit of over $2,000,000. There was not only increased expenditure for this year, but for future years of over a million. The supplementary estimates contained items. of $100,000, for which the present Government were responsible. The deficiency on the Intercolonial amounting to $700,000, could not be charged to the present. Government. The expenditure for which the Government opposite were responsible, would have left a deficiency of three Coming to the revenue and expediture for this year, he had estimated from the Customs to receive $14,000,000, exclusive of $500.000 collected in February and March, belonging to this year, now established, to amount to $700,000 Making We would, therefore, respectfully solicit a call | this allowance, the receipts from Customs would be $14,000,000. Adding to the actual receipts for the past six months, the amount anticipated, it would amount to nearly half that sum. For January and February, down to yesterday, we received $450,000 more than the same period of 1878, showing that we had goods brought on in anticipation.

> $4,300,000, to which should be added $300,000 collected last year. The decreased consumption of spirits, owing to the increased duty, lost something to the From post office the same receipts as last year were made.

The estimate now made for excise is

From public works $50,000 increase. Bill stamps the same as last year. The interest on investments, $15.000, and all other revenues were estimated at $700,000, and will probably not be more than $650,000, making a total revenue of $24,450.000. It was estimated at $23,. 869,232, so that the estimates were overrun by $858,922.

Sir Leonard went into details to show in what way the interest account was swelled up to over $600,000 over the estimate. The result of the working of the Railway was, that from a deficiency of $300,000 bacco, $50,. the deficiency was now but $32,000. The To manufacture the same in bond, $300 | the total expenditure we had authorized total result of the year's work was that while the estimated expenditure was $24,-978.000 the receipts were $24,450,000. Thus the income and expenditure were about balanced. He then proceeded to cents.

ESTIMATES OF NEXT YEAR. Customs duties next year are estimated "Advance" Office. at $15,300,000 without any changes in the Minister of Finance is endeavoring to persuade us that from the fact that upon March 1st, 1880, our net receipts were two millions less than on March 1st, 1879, therefore we are sure to have a surplus at the end of the ensuing four months-(Cheers and laughter.) We know like. wise that it may be true, as the hon. gentleman has told us, that in New Brunswick new factories are beginning to crop up, though they have not yet I fear begun to give employment to the inhabitants of that favoured Province. But we also know with regard to other parts of this Dominion with which we are better acquainted, that those happy results have not been felt, and so far from greater employment being given to the working classes, we find, as that hon. gentleman might have seen in yonder square ten days ago--(cheers, and continued cheers) that hundreds and in some places thousands of starving workingmen are cursing the day they trusted the false promises of the gentlemen opposite. That hon. gentleman by several Orders in Council and by the Estimates which he himself brought down, had made provision for the expenditure of $23,685,009. He had further expended during the August and October sessions of Parliament held under his regime the sum of $200,000. That was before we came into office, and I have always held him responsible-him and his colleagues-for the expenditure of the general election that was rendered necessary by their misconduct. However, Sir. I do not want to insist on that or on a considerable number of items which had been expended by these hon. gentlemen, and for which we afterwards got the authority of Parliament, But I point out to the House this fact, that without taking into account the The export duty is to be included in the question of the general election, that hon. gentleman had taken authority in 1873 4 Flax twines, except for fishing, 25 per to expend $23,885.000, while our actual expenditure was $23,316,000, or $568,000 and odd, less than the amount that gent!eman had estimated for and taken authority to spend.
