Sainte-Gabelle Inn.

St. Gabelle is a small village not far affected in olden times by Spanish 'merchants,' as it was the fashion to call one night during a thunderstorm the rors of the natural to those of the supernatural in general, and ghosts in particular. As is the wont on such occasions, aud unbelievers. Amongst the former was a Spanish merchant, whose singular remark, made in a tone still more singular, that sorcerers, witches and ghosts preferred moonlight nights to such an inky-black and stormy night as the one in question, drew general attention. On this been derided by a young man for his superstition, the Spaniard first threw it in his opponent's teeth that he would not dare to look on a ghost if he saw one, and then bet a considerable around them. Men are gods if they sum that he, the speaker, could bring but knew it, and women burn incense before him the spirit of any friend he at their shrines. Women, therefore, chose to name, how long soever he had who have good minds and pure hearts, been dead. The bet was at once taken want men to lean upon. And the white phantom's black foot is resting on the grass, cold and green. And after this first verse he raised his voice solemnly and said :

"You have asked to see your friend Francois Violot, who was drowned three years ago in crossing the Pensagnolos Ferry. What do you see?" "I see," replied the young man, "a pale light which has risen near the window, but it has no form and is only an indistinct mist."

We all stood stupified. in a strong voice.

in a voice no less confident. We scarcely breathed. The Spaniard was silent for a moment, then he stamped on the ground with his foot three different times, and began all at once to sing again, but in a higher and more sombre voice :

again towards the door, and giving to his voice an accent more and more counting ten, or fifty, or 100 minutes to solemn, he said :-

"You, who wish to pry into the mysteries of the tomb, what do you see?" dent replied in a calm voice, but like a is this: man who is describing a thing as it hap-"I see this vapour, which grows larger and takes the form of a phantom; this phantom has the head covered with a veil; it remains in the same place where it arose. "Are you afraid?" asked the Spaniard in an insulting voice. The proud and brave voice of the young man replied "I am not afraid. We dared not look at each other, so raise his arms above his head, while invoking three times a name horrible to pronounce, after which he chanted the third verse of his infernal song, but in a voice singularly triumphant :

"And the phantom said in leaving the tomb, in order that he may recognize me, I will go towards my friend, proud, smiling, and beautiful as in my youth." The Spaniard finished his verse and repeated his terrible question: "What do you see?"

"I see," replied the student, "the phantom advances; it raises its veil; it is Francois Violot; he approaches the table; he writes: he has written: it is his signature." "Are you afraid?' cried the Spaniard furiously. There was a moment of inexpressible silence, and the student replied, with more strength than assurance, "No I am not afraid !" Immediately, as if seized with a fit of madness, the Spaniard commenced to sing, with a strange howl this last horrible verse: "And the phantom said to the mocking man come, then, that I may touch you, put your hand in my hand, press 20 your heart to my heart, your mouth to my mouth." "What do you see?" cried the Spaniard in a voice of thunder. "It comes-it approaches-it pursues me-it extends its arms-it will seize me. Help! Help?"

"Are you afraid ?" cried the Spaniard with a ferocious joy.

A piercing cry, then a smothered groan was the only answer to this terrible question

"Help that impudent young man!" said the Spaniard to us in a cruel voice. "I have, I think, won the wager, but it is enough for me to have given him a lesson. Let him keep the money and be more prudent in the future."

He went away rapidly after these words. We were utterly dumbfounded: We opened the door and found the student in horrible convulsions. The paper, signed with the name of Francois Violot, was on the table. - Scarcely had the student recovered when he demanded to know who was the infamous sorcerer who had subjected him to this horrible profanation; he wished to kill him. He searched for him all through the inn, and darted off like a madman in pursuit of him. And that is the story, my children. We were all trembling with fright, huddling closely about our Uncle Bayle, not daring to look around us Jeannette herself had forgotten her roast, which had fallen into the fire and smelled very strongly as it burned. NOVELS No one had the courage to speak; then I gathered strength enough to say to my Uncle, "And how is it, after this, you do not believe in ghosts?"

"Because," said my Uncle," "neither from the Toulouse, in France, much | the young man nor the sorcerer were ever seen afterwards, nor the beautiful quadruples which the other travellers smugglers. At the inn of this village and myself had furnished to cover the wager proposed by the pretended Spanitalk, as usual, changed from the ter- ard; and because these two rogues carried them away, after having played under our eyes a comedy which we believed in like a pack of simpletons, and the company was divided into believers which I found very expensive, but which will not have cost too much if it enables me to fully persuade you Clocks, that none but imbeciles or rogues believe or pretend to believe in ghosts.

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in Medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Beware of medicines of similar names, lately introduced. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cents. Sample bottle, 10 cents.

ALBERT LIME. Are now prepared to furnish their Best Quality Selected Lime By the Car Load at all STATIONS on the AL-

BERT and INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAYS. This Lime differs from all other Brands in the market—having peculiar cement qualities, which hardens it like stone, and makes it imprevious to the action of water. It requires no cement to m-prove it, and is the CHEAPEST in the market for For Agricultural purposes it can be furnished by the car load in bulk, CHEAP, and is the best as well as the cheapest fertilizer known. All orders should be addressed THOMAS MCHENRY, Manager A. B. Lime & Cement Company, Hillsboro, Albert County

Standard Portable Grist Mill

DDRESS WATEROUS ENGINE WORKS CO., BRANTFORD Specially adapted to the wants of the Maritime Provinces. WM. CURREY, writes from Windsor, N. S., Dec. 79. "The 20 inch Standard Flour Mill works satis factorily. The smut mill cleans well. The 12 mch Standard chops 12 bush. per hour. The far mers look with surprise to see a mill so small work "I enclose letters from two large farmers." MR. CURREY:- I have had about 20 bush. of wheat ground by your new Standard Mill, and am glad to say it's the best flour I have had in uny ouse for ten years. JAMES BALLISON MR. CURREY:-After having 15 bush. wheat ground by your new Standard Mill, I must say that ou gave me flour equal to the "Canada," that I have been using. I have no hesitation in saying what it has done for me it will do for others, which should stimulate farmers to grow more grain another year.
