Altogether, the Speech contains the promise of the amendments of five measures, three of which have been consolidated or amended already by gentlemen opposite, a renewal of the Banking Law, and, as we learned from the speech of the mover, the

But the hon, gentleman did not tell us how many Canadians went from Halifax to the United States, and from the port of St. John. I have special information also. though not from the Government, and learn that from the city the Minister of Finance represents, by the steamship line during the past season, no less than 6,000 left to settle in the United States, over and above the ordinary passenger traffic. How many went by railway or coasting schooners I am not able to say. I saw the statement of the United States Consul a few days ago, about a port in my own county, from which alone, it appears, about 24,000 Canadians have passed to settle in the United States. Instead of having matter for congratulation, we have reason to doubly deplore the existing state of trade and business which ens to seek a refuge in a foreign country.

My impression is that Tupper wants to be wakened very much, and if those emigrants from Canada had succeeded in accomplishing that task, it would have been better than congratulating ourselves upon an alleged state of facts that does not exist. We are told that we are to have the bankruptcy and currency laws re-considered, and the hon. gentleman from Halifax (Mr. Richey) tells us, also, doubtless, on special information, that there is to be an increased issue of currency. Whether hon. gentlemen opposite have decided to adopt the bantling of the hon. member for South Norfolk (Mr. Wallace) or not, we do not know, but the matronly appearance of that hon, gentleman seems to indicate the employment he was engaged in during

I have been informed that, when tenders were received in Winnipeg for supplies for the Indians, they were sent here with a recommendation of the local officers-they were detained a month, which made it impossible to forward the supplies to the Indian camps in time for their gatherings, thus necessitating enormous expenditure by the Government and discontent among the Indians, and destroying the confidence of the Indians in our good faith.
