in these days of Moltkes, Gortschakoffs, Gladstones, Beaconsfields, Dufaures, Broughams, and Lyndhursts, a man is supposed to be rather on the juvenile side. In point of fact, for our ancestors, a man of 50 years was old ; with us the limit is nearer 80. It is legitimately to be inferred from this fact-in the first placethat the average duration of human life was shorter in past time than it is nowadays; in the second, that the chances of error in accounts of alleged centenarians were infinitely greater-than if a man of 80 or 85 called himself 100 or 110, his story would be exceedingly apt to be be-

A Farmer's Offset.

A hired man who had been employed on a farm in this couptry for several months, entered suit against his employer for the balance of wages, amounting, as he before Justice Kelly yesterday, and it looked at first as if the plaintiff had a clear case. He gave dates and figures in a straightforward way, and seemed a very honest young man. When the farmer
