Miramichi Advance,

Advance" Scientific Miscellany

It is suggested that the aurora boreali be studied with the photophone. A new, worm-like parasite of pork has been discovered by a Berlin microscopist. The organism is found crawling among the muscular fibres, sometimes moving very actively. "Glass silk" is largely used in Germany for filters. It is made by winding threads of glass on heated cylinders, and under the microscope the threads appear as fine as the ultimate fibres of silk or cotton.

There were sanitarians in the days of our ancestors. So long as eight hundred years ago, in the time of Richard II, an ordinance was enacted forbidding the pollution of rivers, drains, etc.; another in the reign of Edward II against selling "muzzled swine-flesh," etc.; and in the reigns of Henry VI, and Henry VII, and Elizabeth, for the inspection and cleansing of sewers, against the slaughtering of cattle in towns, and prepared, as one of the against the overcrowding of dwellings. W. H. Dall has mentioned a curiou geological phenomenon found in vicinity of Behring's Strait. At Elephant Point, Kotzebue Sound, is ridge, two miles wide and two hundred and fifty feet high, which seems to be a vast mass of ice, covered with clay and vegetable mould from which luxuriant vegetation springs. Birches, alders and plants bearing berries grow rankly, while the perpetual ice is less than a foot from their roots. It is b lieved that porosity is a property of all bodies. An experiment performed some years ago, to ascertain whether water could be compressed, resulted in proving that gold is porousthe water enclosed in a hollow sphere of gold being forced, by the violent pressure applied, through the sphere and appearing on the outside. The pores through which the liquid was driven could not have been more than the twomillionth of an inch in diameter. Military telegraphy contributed in no small degree to the disasters of the French in the Franco-German war. Recent publications show the thoroughness with which the army investing Paris was kept telegraphically connected in its different parts. About two thousand 377 St. Paul Street, Montreal messages were sent daily. Automatic signals gave immediate notice of the cutting of wires or other interference with the telegraph lines, and mounted men were promptly dispatched to make

An ingenious illustration of the inconceivable distance of the stars from the earth was recently given by Prof Ball, of Dublin. "If you suppose, said he, "a railway from the earth to the nearest fixed star, which is supposed to be twenty billions of miles from us and if you suppose the price of the fare to be one penny for every hundred miles-not, mind! a penny per milethen, if you take a mass of gold to the ticket office equal to the national debt, it would not be sufficient to pay for a ticket to the nearest fixed star." A correspondent of an English journal asserts that he has himself observed two spider showers—the fall of gossamer spiders, in large numbers, from a considerable height in the atmosphere-one a. m.," states this writer, "I noticed small spiders running over my coatsleeves, and had to brush off several trails of gossamer web. Looking around, I found that the brick walls. houses, branches of trees, etc., had these webs dangling from them, and that other gossamer webs were continually falling from above and adding to the accumulation. By mid-day a long fence was festooned from point to point of its triangular rail tops, with a ribbonlike ladder of gossamer, along which ran the spiders."

Carlyle was hardly a believer in evolution as interpreted by Darwin, for in a letter to a friend he is said to have written: "A good sort of man is this Darwin; and well-meaning, but with very little intellect. Ah, it is a sad, a terrible thing to see nigh a whole generation of men and women, professing to be cultivated, looking around in a purblind fashion, and finding no God in this universe. I suppose it is a reaction from the reign of cant and hollow pretence, professing to believe what, in fact, they do not believe. And this is what we have got to. All things from frog-spawn! The gospel of dirt the order of the day! The older I growand I now stand upon the brink of eternity-the more comes back to me the sentence in the Catechism which I walk and carried to the hospital. Verdict: learned when a child, and the fuller struck by lightning. Still, they will do and deeper its meaning becomes .-What is the chief end of man? To glorify God, and enjoy him forever.'-No gospel of dirt, teaching that men have descended from frogs through monkeys, can ever set that aside."

The felling of forests is known to be the cause of the drying up of many a stream, even large rivers having been made to totally disappear through the influence upon the climate of clearing the land from wood. The classic lands of antiquity abound with sad lessons of deforestation. The springs and brooks of Palestine are dry, and the soil has lost its fruitfulness. The Jor-Testament days. ly-by cultivating and preserving the forests. In earlier years the delta of Upper Egypt was visited by but five or six rainy days in a year, but this number was increased by the planting of twenty million trees to forty-five or forty-six. Remarkable results have been produced by the Suez Canal .-Ismaila is built on what was a sandy desert, but since the ground has become saturated with canal water, trees, bushes and other plants have sprung up as if by magic, and, with the re-appearance of vegetation, the climate has changed. A few years ago rain was unknown in those regions, while in the year ending in May, 1858, fourteen days of rain were recorded, and once such a storm that the natives looked upon it as a supernatural event. Rains have continued to visit the country thereabouts, and so recently as a few weeks since a very heavy fall was re-

How and when to cut flowers.

The proper stage at which to cut flowers for decoration is the most important part of the subject of flowers supply next to production. Never cut any flowers until fully developed. Flowers which open when cut, as the gladiolus, may be exceptions to this rule, but trusses of pelargoniums and bouvardias should not be cut until fully developed. Nor is this all. Flowers are allowed to remain on the plants as long as they will continue in good condition. To gather a bloom which would last for a week or two, and pass over a bloom, which would be useless in a few days, is disadvantageous in two ways. In the first place, the young bloom is sacrificed at a time when it is not needed, and the older bloom is entirely wasted. This system will in a short time change a sufficient quantity into scarcity. Another matter can only be settled by experience, and that is cutting more flowers than are required at one time. It is also quite possible to use very many more flowers in decorating vases than are necessary, to the detriment of the flowers, which invariably last longer when thinly arranged. Every flower ought to stand entirely clear of its neighbor. This is effected by employing foliage freely, filling large glasses with foliage, and then inserting the flowers. Water is always used, as being most cleanly and keeping the flowers in good condition for a longer period than any other medium. The harmonizing and contrasting of colors is also a question of some importance, but in this the varied tastes of purchasers have in a great degree to be studied. White flowers and the few yellow ones that may be used do well with dark blue or purple flowers, but are not suitable at this season, pink shades are best with white or yellow flowers. All flowers, ferns and foliage should be cut with the longest possible stems. I do not strip the leaves of flowers stems and ferns, more especially maidenhair ferns; I also have a portion of the fronds inserted in the water. These last much longer for various purposes if cut and placed for two days in water before using. In hot rooms the glasses require periodically filling. When the flowers are freshly arranged, the glasses should be washed before being refilled. Many flowers last a long time at this season, such as cyclamens, pelargoniums, orchids and others; these should never be left longer than three or four days without having fresh water and being rearranged.

Ages of Statesmen. It is curious to note the different ages at which celebrities acquire their fame. Mr. Gladstone, in his recent speech on Lord Beaconsfield, said that the only career with which he could compare that of the lately deceased ex-premier, was that of Pitt, but Pitt was prime minister at twenty-four, whereas Lord Beaconsfield was thirty-two when he made his famous first effort and was laughed down in the House of Commons. He was then only four years younger than Byron when he died, "the most celebrated Englishman of the nineteenth century," to recall Macaulay's words. Napoleon's career was over before he was fifty, and Waterloo, Wellington's last battle, was won when he was but forty-six, while the Duke of Marlborough was fifty-eight when Bleinheim was fought. Had either in September, 1875, and the other in Disraeli or Lord Palmerston died at the September, 1880. The first occurred on | age of Byron, or even at that at which a cloudy morning, after a single peal of | Wellington won Waterloo, few would thunder, but no rainfall. "About 10 have given them credit for a likelihood of reaching the premiership. Again, had Scott died at the age of Byron, no Waverley novel would have been known to fame, while George Stephenson was up to forty in receipt of daily wages as a laborer, and George Peabody, up to fifty, was very far from an archmillionnaire, and had a great deal less than hundreds who died almost paupers, The saying goes "Call no man happy till he's dead," nor, it may be added, unfortunate, for success only comes to many in the latter part of life, and albeit early success is very enchanting, it is perhaps of the two best to be "in well at the finish." A LUNATIC, who was sent to the Asylum yesterday from Queen's County, is said to have become demented through reading the sensational reports respecting the supposed disaster of the 19th of June. - Tele.

"OUT":- "I want to see the villian who wrote this article. Where's the proprietor of this paper ?"

"Where's the managing editor?" "He's out." "Where's the city editor?" "He's out."

"He's out."

"Where's the reporter?" "He's out." "Where'm I?" (Rickety-slambang-jam! Two panes of glass broken.) "You're out." [Man found on the side-

WHY ?- A brilliant correspondent of the Putman (Conn.) Patriot, who evidently cares little for agricultural matters, suggests the following themes for discussion by Farmer's Clubs: "Why do not cows sit down to rest the same as dogs? Why does a dog turn around a few times before he lies down? Why does a cow get up from the ground hind end first, and a horse fore end first? Why does a squirrel come down a tree head first, and a cat tail first. Why does a mule kick with its hind foot, and a sheep with its fore foot ?"

ZOPESA FROM BRAZIL. -- As a result of the new commercial enterprise just assuming importance with Brazil, is the introdan is four feet lower than in New duction of Zopesa, so justly celebrated where it is known for the cure of all forms of Indigestion. The Company have Sardinia and Sicily, once the granaries opened a laboratory in Toronto. Zopesa of Italy, has disappeared; while most comes to us highly endorsed and recomof the countries of ancient civilization mended, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Organs, its certainty to relieve have suffered from the desolating in-fluence of forest removal. On the Digestive Organs, its certainty to relieve and cure Dyspepsia and Constipation, makes this remarkable compound a neother hand, man can improve the con- cessity in Canada. The Company makes dition of the land in which he lives— sample bottles at the trifling cost of 10 cents. Sold by MACKENZIE & Co., Chat-
