An Incident on the Cars.

[From Golden Days.] "Cars stop twenty minutes for refreshments!" called out Conducter Ri chardson, at Allen's Junction.

Then as the train came to a dead halt, he jumped down upon the station platform, ran along to the front of the long line of passenger cars, where the engine was standing, and swinging himself up into the cab, said to the engi

"Frank, I want you to come back with me to the first passenger coach. and see a girl that I hardly know what to make of."

The engineer nodded, without speaking, deliberately wiped his oily, smoky hands on a bunch of "waste," took a look at his grimy, dusty face in the narrow little mirror, that hung beside the steam guage, pulled off his short frock, put on a coat, changed his little, black greasy cap for his soft felt hattaking these "dress-up" articles from the tender-box, where an engineer always has comething stowed away fo an emergency-and went back to the coach as requested.

He entered the coach and made his way to the seat where the kind-hearted conductor sat talking to a bright-looking little girl about nine years old, oddly dressed in a woman's shawl and

Several of the passengers were grouped around the seat, evidently much interested in the child, who wore a sad prematurely old countenance, but seemed to be neither timid nor confused.

"Here is the engineer," said the conductor, kindly, as Frank approached. She held out her hand to him, with a winsome smile breaking over her pinched little face, and said .

"My papa was an engineer before he became sick and went to live on a farm in Montana. He is dead and my mamma is dead. She died first before Susie and Willie. My papa used to tell me that after he should be dead there would be no one to take care of me, and that I must get on the cars and go of planets and stars, and kept registers to his house in Vermont. And he said if the conductors would'nt let me ride because I hadn'd any ticket, I must ask for the engineer, and tell him I was James Kendrick's little girl, and that he used to run on the M--- and G-road."

The pleading blue eyes were now full of tears; but she did not cry after the manner of children in general.

Engineer Frank now quickly stooped down and kissed her very tenderly; and then, as he brushed the tears away from his eyes, said:

"Well, my dear, so you are little merciful Providence guided you on board this train."

passengers, he went on . "I knew Jim Kendrick, the father of this little girl, well. He was a man out of ten thousand. When I first came to Indiana—before I got acclimated-I was sick a great part of the time, so that I could not work, and I got homesick and discouraged. I couldn't keep my board bill paid up-not to mention my doctor's bill-and didn't much care whether I lived or died.

"One day, when the pay car came along, and the men were getting their monthly wages, there wasn't a cent coming to me, for I hadn't been free from the ague, nor worked an hour for the last month.

"I felt so blue that I sat down on a pile of railroad ties and leaned my elbows on my knees, with my head in my hands, and cried like a great boy out of sheer homesickness and discouragement. "Pretty soon one of the railroad men come along, and said, in a voice that sounded like sweet music in my ears, for I hadn't found much real sympathy out there, although the boys were all good to me in that way, 'You've been having a rough time of Photograph Frames, "I looked up, and there stood Jim

Kendrick, with his month's pay in his hand. He took out from a roll of bills a twenty-dollar note, and held it out

"I knew he had a sickly wife and two or three children, and that he had a hard time of it himself to pull through from month to month, so I Pork, Flour, said, half ashamed of the tears that were streaming down my face, 'indeed, I cannot take the money. You need every cent yourself.'

" Indeed you will take it man,' said Jim. 'You will be all right in a few weeks, and then you can pay it back. Now come home with me to supper, and General Dry Goods, see the babies; it will do you good.'

"I took the bank note and accepted the invitation, and after that went to his house frequently, until he moved away, and I gradually lost sight of him. I had returned the loan, but it was impossible to repay the good that little act of kindness did me, and I rather guess Jim Kendrick's little girl here will not want for anything if I can help

Then turning again to the child, whose blue eyes were open wide enough now, he said to her:

"I'll take you home with me, Bessie, dear, when we get to Wayne. My wife will fix you up, and we'll write and find out whether those Vermont relations really want you or not. If they do, Mary or I shall go on with you. But if they don't care much about having Comprising: Peaches, Raspberries, Pine Apples, Blue-berries Tomatoes, Chicken, you, you shall stay with us to be our little girl, for we have none of our own. You look very much like your father; God bless his memory !"

Just then the eastern train whistled. "All aboard !" was shouted ; Engineer Frank vanished out of the car-door, and went forward to his engine, wiping his eyes with his coat-sleeve, while the conductor and sympathetic passengers could not suppress the tears this touching episode evoked dur ng the twenty minutes stop at Allen's junction.

Mother of the Arts and Sciences.

The arts and sciences of the ancients were inwrought with their religious ideas and institutions. All were represented in the expressive symbology or picture-language of the Egyptians and other primitive nations.

In the light of modern discovery, Egypt is now very generally believed to have been the mother of the arts and sciences, and the first proud seat of learning. Its monumental history carries us back not less than fifty centuries, and hence beyond the last obscure traces of other primitive nationalities. The great pyramid on the west side of the Nile, opposite Cairo, is as truly a monument of science as of industry. It is a silent but impressive witness, standing erect above the grave of a great empire, and bearing significant testimony to all ages and nations, that even at that primitive period-when the gigantic superstructure was upreared-Egypt had been employed for ages in careful observations of the movements of the heavenly bodies, and in perfecting her system of astronomical science. The Zodiac, with its signs and constellations, is believed to have been invented by the Egyptians at a early period in their history, and that special reference was had, not only to the seasons, but likewise to the agricultural products of the country. It is certain NOTARY PUBLIC, ETC., ETC. that representations of the Zodiac are found in the temples and tombs of Egypt, and that no traces of its existence are elsewhere to be found in the monumental remains of so early a

But in our day one need not go to the Nile to examine the illustrations of this subject. In the British Museum may be seen a delineation of the Zodiac on the coffin of a mummy, which indicates the precise position of the planets on a certain day in October, a little more than four thousand years ago.

The astronomical system of the Newcastle, Miramicni, N. B. Egyptians must have required hundreds of years for its development. Their noblest scientific conquests were doubtless made before the centuries began to look down from the pyramids.

Thus, from the awful silence of her stately mausoleums and through the mystic hieroglyphs on her obelisks, she speaks emphatically of her native greatness-of civilization, art science-all older than history.

It is said that the Egyptian priests established a college of sciences, and, according to Diodorus, they made accurate observations of the movements of the same for centuries.

The Chaldeans, a contemporaneous people studied the mysteries of the planetary and astral systems, and many have presumed that they were the first to discover the motions of the heavenly bodies. But it must be admitted that the preponderance of evidence-chiefly derived from monumental remainssupports the claims of those who ascribe to the Egyptians the most important discoveries in astronomy. It is said that in the monument of Osymandgas there was a golden circle, CONVEYANCER, &c., &c. divided into 365 parts, answering to the Bessie Kendrick? It's my opinion a days of the year; and it is asserted by several writers that they represented the planets as revolving around the sun Then turning around to the group of in the order now recognized by astron-

Without attempting to determine the question whether the Egyptian magi or the Chaldean astrologers are entitled to the credit of priority of discovery, we may feel certain that both made great progress in astronomical science, and that they also recognized the influence of other worlds and systems on the elements and faculties of the earth and man.

"THE ORGUINETTE may now be called a celebrated instrument. In tone it is akin to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be ranipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the Orgunette is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music."—Toronto Globe.
"THE ORGUINETTE is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ, with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size. It surpasses the Cabinet Organ, for the reason that the ignoramus in music can play it as well as the most accomplished professor. The Orguinette is strong and accurate in its mechanism, and consequently not liable to get out of order."—Montreal "THE ORGUINETTE is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented, its repertoire is unlimited, the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.
