A Sovereign Remedy for Rheumatism !

MONTHEAL, P. Q., Oct. 17, 1879. H. R. STEVENS :

Dear Sir -1 most cheerfully add my testimonial o the great number you are daily receiving in favor of your VEGETINE. I have been troubled with rheumatism for several years ; also with blotches and pimples breaking out upon my face A friend recommended VEGETINE, and, after using several bottles, I have had no more trouble with rheumatism, and the blotches on my face and nerk have disappeared. I have recommended VEGETINE to some of my friends who were troubled wit rheumatism, and they have used it with good success, and I will recommend it to all who are troubled in the same way.

A Vienna despatch of 17th inst. says: The official report of the Board of Works on the Ring Theatre disaster, states that the chief engineer asked two policemen at the entrance, whether anybody was withn, and received the reply that the whole audience had left safely. This statement was apparently confirmed by the fact that no persons were seen at the entrances of the building. The men of the fire brigade subsequently entered the galleries, but the air was suffocating and it was impossible to penetrate the passages as the torches went out for want of oxygen, and the firemen were unable to breathe. The report expresses a conviction that the au dience died speedily from suffocation.

Cattle Feeding.

The Agricultural College of Illinois is prosecuting some experiments on cattle feeding, which are in line with those cared :

ried out by Prof. Brown at Guelph. At the Illinois institution eight young steers were purchased in the spring of 1880. Two were full-blooded Ayrshires, two seven eights Devon, two were half Hereford, one a full blood Shorthorn, and the other three-quarters Shorthorn. The late Theatre fire at Vienna ranks among the most disastrous of which there is any record. As a matter of fact it stands preeminently as the most fatal of the present century, and is only rivalled by the Saragossa and Pisino fires in 1772 and 1794 respectively. The destruction of one thousand lives in a single fire of a few minutes duration is something almost too horrible to contemplate. The followterest, no doubt, to many of our readers: The well, or apparently well children of a family that has diphtheria at home. must not go to school nor to church. The former necessity is beginning to be recog. nized by the authorities and teachers, and also in consequence of partially enforced habit by parents, the latter will be resisted longer. Schools ought to be closed entirely when a number of cases have occurred. Even when the school children have not been affected to a great extent, but a diphtheria epidemic has commenced in earnest, it will be better to close the schools for a time. If that he not advis able, the teacher ought to be taught to examine throats, and directed to examine every child's throat in the morning, and return home every one barely suspicious. In times of an epidemic, every public place, theatre, ball-room, dining-hall, tavern, ought to be treated like an hospit-Where there is a large conflux of people, there are certainly many who car. the disease with them. Disinfection must be enforced by the authorities in regular intervals. Public vehicles must be treated in the same manner. That it should be so when a case of small-pox has happened to be carried in such, appears quite natural. Hardly a livery stable keeper would be found who would not be anxious to destroy the possibility of infection in any of his coaches. He must learn That without forming any opinion upon that diphtheria is, or may be, as dangerous a passenger as variola. And what is va lid in the case of a poor hack, is more so in that of railroad cars, whether emigrant or Pullman. They ought to be thoroughly disinfected in times of an epidemic, in regular intervals, for the high roads of travel have always been those of epidemic diseases, and railroad officers and their families have often been the first victims of the imported scourge. Can that be accom-
