The Discontented Buyer.

(Michigan) has for the past three years been supplying a dealer at Albany. For the first year everything went well, but at length the Albany man began to complain. He found shortage and culls in every carload sent him, and demanded discounts therefor, and this spring it was impossible to please him. No matter how carefully lumber and shingles were culled and billed here, he was sure to write back that they were not up to the standard. Two weeks ago a carload of "star" shingles was sent him. The "star" shingle beats anything made in the country, and they know it at Albany as well as in Michigan; but as soon as the car arrived the dealer replied that he really must protest. The shingles were hardly "clear butts," and he could not unload the car until assured of a discount of 25 cents per thousand. The Michigander had suffered long, but the end was nigh. He had inspected every bunch of shingles on that car, and he made up his mind to go to Albany and nspect them over again. The dealer there had never seen him, and the Wolverine walked into his office as a would-be purchaser of some extra fine shingles. "I've got exactly what you want." promptly replied the Albanian. "I've got a carload of Michigan 'stars' out here which lay over any shingle you ever saw."

John Quincy Adams and Josiah Quincy. Sr., were enthusiastic advocates of early rising. They practised it from boyhood, and attributed to it their physical vigor in old age. Judge Story, who was an intinate friend, loved dearly a good morning nap, and their opposite opinions often gave rise to sharp and witty discussions. On one occasion, when the two eminent men had dined with the Judge, he invited them to accompany him to the Law School in Cambridge, where he was to deliver a lecture. He invited the ex-President to talk to the students, and Mr. Adams made interesting practical remarks, touchtion that the scent was not made with ing among other topics on his favorite theme of early rising. The judge went on with his lecture. The afternoon was hot and the lecture room close, and toward the close of the lecture he noticed that the class were nodding to each other and smiling. Looking first on his right hand and then on his left, he discovered the secret of their merriment, for both of the distinguished visitors were asleep and nodding. He could not resist the tempta.
