The Sun says,—"It is to be hoped that Mr. Snowball will now see his way clear to withdraw the statements of his organ. He cannot hope to enjoy the good opinion of loyal people while he continues to revile and misrepresentations of an absent lady, the first lady in the land."

steamer and two hand engines, including one of the latter from the Upper Corner, were using their endeavors to stop the first fire. To leave it would expose the southern part of the town to extreme peril, which might be greater than that which threatened it from the second fire.

respector of persons, yet offers in the perfection of fullness pardon and restoration the unpardonable sin. As God breathed over chaos brought forth form, life and beauty, so the same Great Being, breathing upon the Law the same breath, speaks, "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord, though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow."

Miramichi Advance.

CHATHAM, NOVEMBER 17, 1881.

A cup of "Tea" for the "Sun."

The St. John Sun of last Friday, 11th inst., ventures to have "another word with the ADVANCE" on the subject of Tea Duties—said word being nearly a column and a quarter long...

About "Facts."

"The truth is, Mr. Advance, your facts are as crooked as your politics, and your politics are as crooked and worthless as 'Snowball's slabs.' There is one thing you should remember. Get together your facts—and see that they are facts—and from these construct your theory; but don't start your theory and then distort facts, to fit it."

A Sample of Tory Warfare.

In concluding his reply to the address presented to him by the Lieut-Governor of Quebec, on the eve of his departure for Great Britain, His Excellency, the Governor General said:—"My love for the Dominion is fully shared by the Princess, on whose behalf I beg to thank you for your kind expressions."

The Liverpool Wood Market.

In their Timber trade circular of 1st inst., Messrs. Farnworth & Jardine, referring to Liverpool stocks, say,—"The deliveries of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia Spruce Deals during the month '46 slightly exceeded the import, leaving us with the very moderate stock of 16,921 standards, or little more than two-thirds of that held last year at the like time; still the market is not at all buoyant, and prices are barely maintained; however, as there is every prospect of the arrivals during the remainder of the season being on a moderate scale, we may soon expect to see some advance in prices. Pine deals are rarely asked for, and prices are low. The consumption of Birch has been fair, and the stock is light, particularly of good quality; prices have been fully maintained."

Great Fire at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 11.—Woodstock has again been stricken by fire this time through a double application of the incendiary's torch. Four years and over have elapsed since the town was wrapped in flame; but this fire, while disastrous in its effects, differs materially in the character of the losses from the former one. The fire of 1877 was in the business portion of the town, while that of the present date was in the most populous districts of the place. The alarm that aroused the inhabitants was about 1.45 a. m. Fire had been discovered proceeding from the end of the Mechanics Institute building by Collector Merritt. The portion of the building where the flames were observed, was the basement, which was of brick, and was under lease to the school trustees. Of the incendiary origin of this fire, there is no doubt, as there was no fire in that part during the day. The superstructure of wood was in a few minutes shrouded in flames. When the fire brigade reached the scene, they found themselves unable to cope with the fire, so as to save that building. In fact, it soon became apparent that they must direct their attention elsewhere, as two of the adjoining buildings were threatened. Unfortunately, owing to the lack of sufficient hose, the water from the steamer, which was placed at the creek, could not be effectively applied to the buildings. One on the south owned and occupied as a dwelling by W. F. Dibble, the other east, a new and fine building just finished, owned by B. H. Smith, and they shared the fate of the Institute and were destroyed. Mr. Dibble with much difficulty getting the bulk of his furniture, etc., removed. The firemen put forth great efforts and succeeded in checking the progress of the flames in this locality. While engaged at this work, the men and residents who had gathered in the vicinity were amazed to hear another alarm proceeding from a part of the town north of the Mechanics Institute bridge. John T. Allan had been one of the first to leave his dwelling, and to view the conflagration. He had barely returned home when he saw a dense cloud of smoke rising from the barn in rear of Mayor Jones' residence, Main street, west side, and left to render aid. He assisted in removing some of Mr. Jones' effects, when he was compelled to perform the same service for himself. The fire spread north and south with alarming rapidity and people living to the north who had crossed the bridge to visit the first fire were obliged to make a detour that they might not be shut off from reaching their own houses, the flames found fuel in the barn and outbuildings owned by the Mayor. The hay in the former proving very troublesome in this regard; the wind was blowing northwest and, at this hour the engines, one Shall Guitau be Prayed For?

MR. EDITOR.—Twice have I noticed in your very estimable paper the question, "Is it right to pray for Guitau?" In answer, let me say, as an ambassador of the Most High God, it is a right, and a duty, to pray for Guitau; and, also, that he has been prayed for. There is but one sin that is unforgiven, and he who commits that sin must not be prayed for. The unforgiven sin is that sin against the Holy Ghost which Christ exercised among the living and the dead as coming from the Devil. Guitau has not, as far as we know committed this great sin, and to say that he should not be prayed for is to cut the ground of the Gospel from under our feet, for the Gospel, while it includes the Law, that all have sinned and that God is not a
