POLITICAL. - We regret that the Advocate, speaking for Mr. Charles Sargent, attributes political motives to this paper, because it omitted to mention a donation that gentleman made to the Northumberland Agricultural Society. Mr. Sargent, at all events, is not justified in taking any such view of the matter, and until we learn from himself that he shares the Advocate's sentiments, we shall believe him incapable of any such meanness.

THE "MALABAR" :- Messrs. R. A J. Stewart have brought the first Steamer to port that ever came here for a deal cargo, the Malabar, having arrived from New York on Sunday afternoon. A large crew is at work putting in the cargo at Burchill's wharf. Nelson, and it is expected that she will be ready for sea by tomorrow evening.

A good many persons have visited Malabar and exhibited considerable interest in her appointments. Capt. Elcoate and officers are very courteous to all. Northumberland Agricultural So

It was thought best to determine thus early upon the Exhibition, so that intending exhibitors might have timely notice to prepare for it.

The Barque "Fileio" in Trouble. The barque Fileio, (Austrian) Captain Steinff, which left Chatham for Rouen, last Wednesday, in charge of Pilot George Savoy, got ashore at the mouth of the river, on that day. So far as we can learn the particulars, it appears that the vessel was anchored near the Spit, and that while at anchor she dragged and touched the ground, whereupon the pilot ordered another anchor to be let go. The vessel thumped somewhat on the Spit and commenced to leak, there being at last own, arriving at 4 p. m., at which time the . rew-composed of mixed foreignershad ret sed to pump, and eight feet of water bein & in the hold. The Laddie lay by the baro e until 8 p. m., when the latter swung to her anchors, affoat. Meantime the pilot had . ent his schooner to the "dredge buoy," to dis play a light, so that the barque could be run for the channel at that point. At 8.45 the 'ug was orde. ed ahead under the pilot's directions and at 9 o'clock she again went aground. It is said that the Pilot schooner was placed from sixty to eighty fathoms out of the right position. At all events, something must have been very much out of the way the second time. The captain and pilot then came up the Laddie to Chatham and Messrs, T. F. Gillespie, J. T. Griffln and D. Crimmir were recommended to him as a surveying body. Having noted a protest, he returned with these gentlemen without seeing consignee or consul and they recommended him to bring the vessel to (Chatham and discharge cargo, it being found that a crew of twenty men could keep her free. On Tuesday morning, nine. teen men, with Mr. Benj. Flood in charge them, went down with the Captain and in the Laddie, and pumped the vessel was then towed back to port. It seems tha the leak was overrated, as the vessel could le kept free by the pumps being worked every alternate half hour. It is not believed that there is any necessity for discharging the cargo es the vessel is quite fit to proceed e. ther under sail or with a tug to Picton, where she could repaired. As it is the Captain seems t be so managing things as to make it necessary to winter here.

About Fishing Licenses.

A very prominent fisherman, M Phineas Gunn, called upon us on Tuesday to say that Overseer Wyse would not now allow fishermen any credit on their li censes, because the ADVANCE referred, in its last issue, to the matter. It has-as we are of late often told-been the habit of Overseer Wyse to lay the blame many of his sins and the wrong done to fishermen, at the door of the ADVANCE, course quite consistent in an officer of his pediar record. We have to say that when Mr. Wyse gave credit to fishermen for licenses, he did only what was right, and just what much better Overseers had done before him. In fact, it is a custom for Overseers) to give credit to fishermen whom they can trust, while it is their duty to collect from all. One of the things that Overseer Wyse was turned out of office in 1878 for, was going into the districts of other Overseers and giving credit for licenses, thus placing the fishermen under obligations to him and obliging them to deal at his store in town, to the subversion of Departmental control and authority. We have very good reason to believe that notwithstanding Mr. Gunn's complaint, Overseer Wyse i giving credit for licenses. Of course he tree. discriminates—as he always did-between those who trade at his store and those who do not. His telling the fishermen that the ADVANCE prevents him from doing anything he pleases, right or wrong, is simply a little "too thin." It is only a very short time since he was playing at heroics before certain of his friends, telling them that he was supreme in fishery matters on the Miramichi, that he cared for nobody, and that a certain prominent gentleman supposed to control Dominion patronage here had tried to have both himself and the harbor master turned out of office, but he had snapped his fingers at him and his influence. Such being the case, Mr. Gunn ought not to believe that #### presses such abject fear of the ADVANCE. Stationary Steam Boilers.

Overseer Wyse is sincere when he ex-

That there is a rigid government inspection of steam boilers when used afloat, while similar boilers used ashore are not subject to inspection, and that steam boilers and engines used on our inland waters, or our sea-going vessels, have to be in charge of competent engineers, while land-boilers and engines may be run by anyone who pleases to do so, are facts which cannot be reconciled by any consistent mind familiar with the subject .-Yet such is the policy of the Government in the matter of steam boiler inspection. and it is not, therefore, surprising that serious accidents sometimes occur, which might, in all human probability, be prevented, were all steam boilers subjected to proper inspection. If anyone is known to have a package of dynamite in his possesshunned, and, yet, a steam boiler in the hands of persons who do not understand how to control it, is quite as dangerous while people are ordinarily attracted to its vicinity. We know that, as a rule, nearly all steam boilers used in our mills and large factories are in competent hands, still some of them are not. Such boilers are a source of danger to their neighborhood .-A good many boilers also are running, which have never been properly tested .-These are doubly dangerous, as they may give way at any moment to the ordinary pressure to which they are subjected, A case in point happened a snort time since near Belleville, Ont., in which "an agricultural boiler" exploded, killing four persons and wounding three. It was at tached to a portable engine, both engine and boiler having been furnished by the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company Oshawa, Ont. Mr. Robb, ohief engineer of the Canadian Steam Users' Association, was appointed by the Ontario Government to ascertain the condition of the boiler and its character. He did so and after describing its construction, minutely, reported:-

The defects which directly lead to the disaster were-1st, the thinness and poor quality of the plates; 2d, the wide pitch of the stays; 3d, the coarseness of the thread of the screws and the smallness of

This boiler had been used at pressures from 60 lbs. per square inch up to something over 100 lbs., and was considered by the owner perfectly safe, as the agent from whom it was purchased told him it had been tested and was safe at 160 lbs. pressure. The steam guage was graduated to 160 lbs., and the safety valve, when the ball was a considerable distance from the end of the lever, did not open till the guage showed 160 lbs. pressure; these two things seem to me to be proof that the boiler was intended to be used at over 100 As there are, no doubt, many other boilers in use of the same manufacture as this, I would ask your special attention to the following: Lloyd's Register of British and foreign Shipping, gives a rule for cal-culating the safe working pressure in steam boilers, with stayed flat surfaces. Applying this rule to the exploded boiler, the pressure allowed as safe for regular work would be 19 lbs. per square inch. The British Board of Trade rule would give 19 1-3 lbs. per square inch, and had the heads of the stays been properly made this would have been increased, but to The United States Government recently conducted an extensive series of experiments to determine the proper method of staying flat surfaces of steam boilers, and the safe working pressure. The rules deduced from these experi the screwed stays, and larger heads than were used in this boiler, and would then have allowed 22 lbs. per square inch as the safe working pressure. engine boilers are being used at pressures 100 lbs and over, which, if subjected to the inspection of either the British or United States Government Inspectors of one-third of that pressure. Portable there engines are almost always used by farmers and others who are not skilled mechanics, and instead of being made so much weaker than marine boilers, ought rather to be made stronger and more safe. Mr. Robb points out the necessity for observing proper rules respecting thick ness of plates, method of staying, etc.

such as have been found necessary by the British and United States Governments or the barque would not have got ashore for Marine boilers. He also says that "the use of a fusible plug in crown sheet as a safeguard against injury from low water, and the adoption of some of the improved, spring-loaded, lock-up safety valves would do much to render the use these portable engines quite safe the hands of any farmer of ord nary prudence and intelligence. The necessity of enforcing rules for the construction of these boilers is shown by the fact that several of the fac tors of weakness in this boiler could only have been discovered during its manufacture or after its explesion, as it was almost impossible to detect them while the boiler > was in its complete state." In their verdict the coroner's jury said-"In view of the appalling calamity that has taken place here we cannot close the inquest without asking and strongly urging the Government to take such acion in the matter as will prevent boilers in future from being sold that are defective in construction and material, and we further think that none but competent men should be allowed to act as engineers.

DEATH FROM VIOLENCE. A Sad Event at Spruce Lake.

TERTELLUS THEAL BEATS AND KICKS I

WIFE. WHO DIES FROM HER INJURIES.

On Thurs 10th inst. at noon, a man, who gave his name as John Lord, appeared before Justice Tapley in the Portland Police Court. St. John, to make information against Tertellus Theal, who keeps a public house at Spruce Lake, known as the Lake House, for beating his wife, Jane Theal. Lord said the case was a very serious one, and he was afraid Mrs. Theal, assault had been committed on the 27th of October-two weeks ago Thursday, and the unfortunate, who had been kicked It would thus appear that portable about the head and body in a frightful manner, took to her bed at once and had never since been able to leave it. He had got Doctor White of Carleton, to go and steamboats, would not have been allowed | see his sister, but when the Doctor went

THEAL REFUSED TO LET HIM ENTER the house. As Lord had no information of the death of his sister, the magistrate told him that he had no power to issue a warrant for an assault committed in Lancaster, and advised him to go to one of the Justices in Fairville. Lord went away, and about 5.30 in the afternoon returned to the Portland police office with a warrant issued by Justice McNaught, charging Theal with unlawfully and maliciously beating, kicking and wounding his wife, Jane Theal, on the 27th of October. Lord told Captain Rawlings that he had got the warrant, but that he could not find a constable in Fairville willing to arrest Theal, and asked the captain if he would not arrest him. It was dark by this time, but Captain Rawlings at once got a horse and carriage, and, taking Officer John Miles with him. started out for Theal's house at Spruce Lake. An hour later they reached the house. The utmost quiet prevailed about the establishment, and when they entered they discovered that

MRS. THEAL WAS DEAD, Theal was sitting in a room off that where the corpse of his wife was laid out. Captain Rawlings entered and, touching him on the shoulder, said, "Mr. Theal, I have a warrant for your arrest."

"Have you?" asked Theal, in an uncon" corned manner. "Read it to me if you

The captain read the warrant and then Theal inquired "Who got out that war-"Your brother-in-law, John Lord," answered Capt. Rawlings. When Theal heard this he raved and swore like a madman until he was warned by the captain that whatever he said might be used in evidence against him. He did not deny the charge, but said that he had had Dr. White to see his wife, and that she had every care and attendance. There were a number of neighbors in the house when the captain reached there and they at once recognized him. No sympathy whatever was shown towards Theal. The prisoner Theal, causing mortal wounds and bruises, offered no resistance, but came quietly with the police officers to the door where he was handcuffed and brought before Justice McNaught at Fairville, who refused bail and the prisoner was lodged in the County

the deceased had been laid out in a bedroom off the sitting room. When the covering had been removed from the head, Beneath the left eye, and extending becrown and dignity." low the cheek bone, the flesh was dis colored, the mark extending from the nose eve there was similar discoloration, but it did not cover such a large surface. The features had a sad expression, as though the deceased had suffered much, and the face was somewhat wasted, apparently the result of illness prior to death. In an interview with Mr. Wm. Lord, brother of the deceased, he said that his sister had been married to Theal about 13 years. Her maiden name was Mary Janet Lord and she had lived on the Mahogany Road, before marriage. At the time of her death she was 39 years old. For the past five years, he had beaten her, at different times. On one occasion she had FLED TO THE WOODS TO ESCAPE HIM, and once again, in winter time, she rushed out of doors, with nothing but her nightclothing to protect her, and took refuge in another house. Theal's treatment was so severe that she left him, a few years ago. and went to live with her mother. When her brothers were away from home he visited her, and after begging her forgiveness for what he had done, promised to behave himself if she would go back and live with him. She returned and her relatives were much dissatisfied with her for doing so. For a while it seemed that he would live up to his promises, but drink, which caused the trouble at first, got the mastery over him again and he soon became as had as before. While he was iiquor he was easily offended and would then vent his displeasure on his wife. After again taking up the burden of life with her husband, Mrs. Theal seemed to have become disheartened and, although it was evident that she was being illtreated as before, she made no outward husband without complaint to her relatives. On the 17th ult., about midnight.

Cornelius Haggarty, who was living with them at the time, heard Theal beating his wife, and in the morning saw Mrs. Theal. She was scarcely able to rise from her bed, owing to weaknss. On being asked what ailed her, she answered that pposite Newcastle close by Sargeant's ber husband had struck her upon the head with a stone beer bottle the previous night. This was made known to her family and John Lord, one of the brothers, went down to Theal's. She was not able then to leave her bed. He remained the 25th all night. After going home his brother William went down and remained a week. In the meantime, Hagarty went away and a man named James King was hired to work about the premises. Dr. White, of Carleton, was called to attend Mrs. Theal, but did not care about entering the house as Theal in the house. It was through the instrumentality of one of the brothers that the physician was summoned, and on the day of the doctor's arrival, Theal asked his brother-in-law if he wanted to send him to Dorchester Penitentiary. The doctor was allowed to enter, but could get nothing satisfactory from his patient, who appeared afraid to tell anything. Dr. White made a second visit on the 7th inst., and then had difficulty in getting into the house, as Theal locked the door on him, at first. The doctor said the woman had been beaten. He wished to know if she had been struck upon the side, for she appeared to be in great distress when she moved in bed. She would not tell what had happened, and for some reason seemed in constant dread of her husband. Mrs. McCarthy, a neighbor, who had called in quite often, rubbed Mrs. Theal's limbs after Dr. White had gone, and the sick woman said she was very sore. About this time she had been

" NOT MUCH HOPE." On the departure of the doctor he said that there was not much hope that Mrs. Theall would recover. When he had returned he saw Wm Lord, who had come up from the house, and told him to hurry back with the medicine as the woman was very ill. Dr. White again started to call on his patient and soon after setting out heard that she was dead.

During the forenoon. Theall was asked by some of those about the house for money so that they could hire a team to come to the city, but he would not give them any, and they had some difficulty in obtaining a conveyance.

THE INQUEST. The inquest on the body of the deceased was held on Friday afternoon the 11th inst., by Coroner Robinson of Lancaster. and continued for two days. The evidence was very voluminous in relation to the continuous ill treatment of the unforcunate woman by her husband. The following witness evidence will show the brutal nature of Theal's conduct :-Mary C. Theal, a girl 8 years of age, stated: I am going on 8 years old. I knew Mrs. Theal, deceased; I slept with mother. I have seen father strike mother: he hit her with a beer bottle: she was in the other room; she fell when she was hit; this was in the night time. He kicked her after she was down; he kicked her over when she was lying on the floor. I have not known him to strike her but the once; I have seen him kick her in the side out doors; that was not the day he struck her with the beer bottle. He only kicked her once when he struck her with the beer bottle. She lay on the floor all of the night he struck her with the beer bottle, till daylight. He drove me and mother out of doors and we had to stay out all night; it was after night and stayed in the shed; we stayed in the shed all night. When we came back he began to jaw again. My grandmother told me to say this. I was in bed when he struck her with the bottle in the room of the shop. I was not asleep. I have seen father drunk, but I have not seen mother drunk. It was this summer I saw papa bear her; the door was open and I saw papa strike her. Mr. Hagerty was here at the time; since that he did not strike mother. I did not see father pull her out of bed to get his breakfast since that time he struck her with a bottle. The medical evidence showed that the immediate cause of death was injury to The inquest concluded on Monday, when the Jury brought in the following

The prisoner was exceedingly demonstrative, and insisted upon interrupting the proceedings and protesting against the action of his counsel, Mr. Robinson, assigned by the Court for the defence.

Guiteau became terribly excited, refusing to keep his seat until the Deputy Marshal had to resort to force to prevent him from addressing the Court. They were carried to the deck and medical aid obtained.
