An Old Friend Heard From.

The Aberdeen Journal of 9th inst. contains an interesting account of a social meeting of the members of the congregaed. The Journal says :-

Tea was then served, after which The Chairman, in the course of a very happy speech, remarked that this was the first social gathering of the congregation since he became their minister. It was well to meet in this free and easy way, so that they might become better acquainted with each other. The North Parish Church was a synonym for a very large munion roll, which their friends across the road looked upon with suspicion; and he was glad to be able to say they had never been in a more flourishing condition than they were at present. (Applause.) There were 2371 names ou the roll, which was the largest Communion roll in the city, and he dared say in the county. The roll had recently been purged, when a considerable number of names had been taken off it; but before that was done all the parties whose names were struck off had been visited either by himself or his assistant to see whether these names were those of living people, and they found that there were a few who could not be accounted for, although the large majority were found to be the names of real men and women living in the city. The roll had been thoroughly gone over, so that they could honestly say that the roll of the North Parish Church consisted of living men and women connected with the three years 285 certificates had been is-during the same period 250 persons had joined, and in addition to this a large number of young communicants had been added. When he became their pastor the roll stood at 2340 but at the first of May next it would stand at 2420. (Applause.) Their roll was kept very strictly; and if it had been attended were throughout Scotland, he was confident it would show a membership of at least 3000. They therefore saw that they had within them the elements of growth.

During the last three years 511 children have been baptised, and 210 young ladies of the congregation had got married.

(Laughter and applause.) In the same was no doubt they would get it. Would they try? (Great applause.) The members of kirk-session should also, he thought, be increased, so that the work might be more efficiently performed. He went on to say that the success and pros-
