

lady. 'Why else do you suppose we'd shut him up?'

"'Why else do you suppose we'd "But Miss Rexford! she will be killed," cried Mr. Elsiey, pointing to the figure in the distance which still stood solidly regarding them both.
"This is outrageous—I will go to her rescue!"

He had already begun to climb the bars with headlong haste, when the lady in the black silk dress stepped forward.

"Man alive, said she, in quick abrupt accents, do you take that scarecrow for a woman?"

Mr. Elsiey started, still hanging on to the top bar of the fence.

"Isn't it Miss Rexford," said he breathlessly.

"I'm Miss Rexford," said she, "and that is the scarecrow that the farmer dressed up last night to keep the birds out of the young corn! And the bull is in quite another field, only you don't see the wire fence."

"I beg your pardon," said the parson covered with confusion. "I—I went up to the house, but there was no one home, and so I came out here, supposing, of course, that that was Miss Rexford. I'm a little near-sighted, and I I've been so unfortunate as to leave my glasses at home, and—"

"A little near-sighted?" said the lady laughing good-humoredly. "I should think so. Pray walk in, Mr. Elsiey.
I've heard a great deal of you, and I'm very glad to meet you!"

And thus pleasantly talking, she ushered the confused clergyman into the house.

Could they have the use of the Deep Hollow for the Sunday school picnic?
Of course they could, Miss Rexford pleasantly said. She didn't like a swarm of children as a general thing, but if the parson and the teachers were to be superintended, why, that was quite a different matter. And the little ones were welcome to the mulberry-tree and its black and glistening treasures—and Miss Rexford's man should put up swings, croquet-arches, and benches by the brook. She was very glad to oblige a gentleman of whom she had heard so much that was good and self-denying.

Mr. Elsiey went home with great satisfaction, and told Miss Verner that he had succeeded, although he went there minus spectacles, and plus bulbs and scarecrows.

Miss Rexford herself came down to the Deep Hollow on the day of the Sunday school picnic, and was infinitely agreeable.

"She's not young," said Mr. Elsiey afterwards, when some of the pretty teachers rallied him on his evident interest in the lady; "but she is very sensible and agreeable—very, indeed, And she's going to take a pew in church; and I'm delighted to see how much she has thought upon serious subjects, and—"

And the next year when the Sunday school picnic met at Deep Hollow, Mr.
Elsiey himself was the master of the fair domain, and Mrs. Elsiey, fair, fat, and forty, stood by his side, smiling and hospitable, to welcome all his guests.
It was an autumnal kind of a match—at least so the sixteen-year-old girls said—but it was a happy one.

For you see, Mr. Elsiey was not young himself, except in heart.

Who Should Suffer!

The many who daily suffer agony from corns, bunions, callous lumps, when the means of remedy can be so easily procured. Putnam's great remedy for corns is the new article, but it commands the confidence of every druggist in Canada, as the above certificate that PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR is a sure thing. The man who neglects this suggestion to try PUTNAM'S EXTRACTOR ought to suffer. Use not the article just as good." Flesh-destroying and dangerous substitutes are offered as a substitute for PUTNAM'S. Of such beware.

Brother Gardner on Slang.

"If brother Pizarro Grant am in de night he will he please step for'd," began the old man as Samuel Shin struck the triangle and sent its quivering notes dancing along the ceiling.

Brother Pizarro was present, and he stepped forward, his eyes having a squint of alarm and his knees losing their sand with every motion.

"Brudder Grant," continued the president, "you am a young man on de distatep of life, you w'ar wery tight pants are wery short coat, an' a wery narrow hat, you look decidedly wretch-eh-eh-eh.
De great world am befo' you. If you begin right no man dare bet two to one dat you won't sit in a gobeornor's chair befo' you am fifty. If you begin wrong it will be wery bad for you, 'cause de great world will bring in bet to $1,000 to nuffin' dat you am en' de trial in state prison befo' you am en' a wery oldder."

"Yes, sah, Ize tryin' to start right," said Pizarro as Brudder Gardner stopped to swallow a pint of water.

"I hope so—I hope so, but I donbt it, Brudder Grant. Ize had myeye on you ar some little time back. I don't fink you would lie or steal or burglar or fork up you has fallen into one wery bad habit. De odder day you met a friend in front of my cabin, an' when he axed if you ar warrine on de excusion you replied dat you would 'gasp to gurgle.' An' anoder ocession I heard you remark at you would 'mix to murmur.' Again on obsurved that you would 'sight to sight.' Only an hour ago you told Vay-vickles Smith to 'cheese it,' an' you advickles Smith to 'let his sweet life go.' Wat does all dese fings mean, Brudder Grant?"

"I don't know, replied the victim as he stood on one leg and scratched his head.

"Nor I eider. Ize looked up de Latin n' French an' German an' Greek languages, but I can't find sich expreshun as fings a hall," 'see you in de graveyard, 'I should smile.' Why do you make 'em of 'em?"

"I don't know."

"Den stop it! If plain English am not doubt nuff for you to 'spress your thoughts in plain Spanish or Chinese. It am all right for a sweet young gal who has been newwelled, to remark dat she would dissolve delecto, but sich expreshun doan-and well comin' from a young man. If de shoald go home to-night an' tell me de shoald dat I would perspire to evolute, lithograph to animosity, she'd look me raight in de eye fur thirty seconds, an' it would come a climax in which my hat ad and broomstick would be all mixed up."

Return to your seat, Brudder Grant; back an' set down wid a determination advised slang an' do your talkin' squarfrom de shoulder. When you git tired of hoof go into a grocery ar' ax fur codfish in plain English, an' den' 'x any mo' oratory den' ax necessary to secure full weight an' git rid of a quarter wid a hole in it. We will now proceed to split de reglar order of bizness down de back an' let out de sleeves."

C. R. Hall, Grayville, Ill., says: "I have sold at retail, 156 bottles of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, guaranteeing every bottle. I must say that I never sold a medicine in my life that gave such universal satisfaction. In my own case, with a badly ulcerated throat, after a physician penciling it for several days to no effect the Electric Oil cured it thoroughly in twenty-four hours, and in threatened croup in my children this winter, it never failed to relieve almost immediately."

For Cramp and Pain in the Stomach.—Take a teaspoonful of Perry Davis' Pain-Killer in hot, sweetened water, every half hour till relieved, bathing the stomach and bowels freely with the medicine at the same time. It never fails.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.—Select the smallest cucumbers for pickeling, and when cutting from the vines leave a little of the stem upon each cucumber. Pour over them a boiling hot brine, made of fine salt, and let them scald in a pan on the stove until they have turned green. Set away to cool tightly covered with grape leaves to keep them a good color. If you have plenty of cucumbers to fill a jar, next morning take them from the brine and drain on a sieve, place in the jar and turn over them boiling hot pickle made of strong cider vinegar, in which has been boiled for ten minutes a tablespoonful of unground pepper, a dozen cloves, a teaspoonful of ginger and one of mustard, a tablespoonful of allspice and some sticks of cinnamon [all tied up in a muslin cloth,] and a teaspoonful of sugar. Cook tightly while hot, and in two or three weeks they will be ready for the table. If you can gather only a small quantity of cucumbers each day, keep them in strong brine for a week, pouring it off every other day, scalding it and turning it back into the jar. When ready to pickle, put the cucumbers into a jar after draining them and proceed as above.
