The agitation, such as it is, is the natural result of the weakness of the Egygtian Government on the one hand, and the success of the Turkish intrigues on the other. Pan Islamism is as old as my time, and older but I would never hear of it. Different counsels have since prevailed; and we are now face to face with the consequences. I always managed by some means or other to control and direct the religious fervor of my subjects in Egypt, but when the control came from Constantinople and not from Cairo, religious fervor became religious fanaticism, and the existence, influence and temporary success of an Arabi became a possibility. I remember Arabi well. He became a lieutenant-colone when very young, and in the second or think every night-worker will agree with third year of my administration was tried me in looking upon incandescent lighting by court-martial for breach of trust. He should have been broken, but one of my as sure to prevail, even though it may generals persuaded me to pardon him, and ultimately be found more expensive than I did so. He can talk and do nothing else. He is the too of Mahmoud Fehmy and Toulba, about both of whom I have nothing good to say. Arabi is, and always was, an arrant coward. There are some hundreds of stores and houses already supplied from the Edison office. For more than a year past Mr. Edison's company has been erecting engines and gigantic dynamo machines, laying wires (underground), and making house connections, with the purpose of giving the light a grand trial under conditions such as will test its cost and desirableness as compared with other methods of house illumination. Turn it gradually and you have a light of any strength required. Those now in use give a light about treble that of an ordinary three-feet gas burner. In steadiness the Edison light beats any gas flame I ever saw. There is absolutely no variation, no flickering, no "snizzling," no sulphurus fumes, no smell, no impure air, practically no danger-in fact, no nothing but the light. It is a light which a student, a journalist, or a compositor can work by without being conscious he is surrounded by anything but daylight. There is nothing trying to the eyes and there is no heat upon the head. This being so, I

As to the latter point, I regret I can give no information. The Edison Company have been so bored by newspaper men that they have now set their faces resolutely against any more interviewing until everything is in perfect order.
