FREE TRADE VS. PROTECTION.

The Question in a Nutshell. (From the Chicago Farmers' Review.) What is free trade? The question is trade in which the parties follow their own judgment in buying and selling, and are under no dictation from Congress, or Parliament, or emperor, as to whether they shall sell here or there. Free trade is commercial liberty. We hear much eloquence of the blessings of commerce. Each quarter of the globe-every section betwixt the parallels of latitude and longitude—is endowed with its own pecu- are a source of terror to those who still liar facilities for ministering to the comfort of man. Iowa gives its grain, Florida its oranges, Pennsylvania its iron, Brazil its coffee, China its tea. And it is commerce that brings these gifts to the hand of every man. It is the glory of civilization that the riches of every clime are open to the use of all. Now is all this a mistake? Is commerce a prodigious blunder? The greatest apostle of "protection" in this country wished the Atlantic were "an ocean of fire," that no ships might go nor come. So, he said, would the American people be made independent. On this plan, obviously, the ideal man is the savage; he slays his own meat, with an arrow himself has fashioned from the stone and wood; he makes his own clothing; he builds his own house; he is altogether self-centred, self-employed, selfpaid. Is civilization a mistake? If it is not, it is wise that the peculiar adaptability of each man to do some particular thing premises. This notice comes on the be made use of—that this man be encouraged to make bread, that man shoes, that man coats, and that by exchange each man enjoys the fruits of the labors of all. If this is wise then it is a wise principle all the way through. Obviously, the ideal and District courts, who have to issue conditions would be-every man doing axiomatic that we have never known a protectionist to assail them by square, direct argument. The protectionist view is invariably advanced in a series of special pleas, vague in form, without logical connection, and in the main put forward in bare statement and pure assumption. Thus a cardinal "principle' of the philosophy is this: that a country is most prosperous when it produces for itself all it consumes. This "principle" is invariably assumed as axiomatic. In protectionist speeches it serves as a sort of universal major premise. Yet there is not a grain of truth in it. A country is most prosperous when it has most at command to consume, when its people are well clothed, well housed, well fed, well supplied with the good things of earth; and it does not make a particle of difference to that country whether it supplies its wants by producing things which it can produce with less labor and then exchanging. Nevertheless, the protectionists take this "principle" for their corner-stone and proceed to build. "How," they ask, "shall we induce the people of this country to make their own silk ?" As things stand, they can get silk easiest by making leather and trading for the silk of France. "Clearly our first step is to prevent the people from buying French silk." How? Why, simply by a tax. We put a duty of 60 per cent. on French silk and thus work the object in two ways: First, it doubles the cost of silk so that some of our countrymen cannot buy it at all. Second, the increased selling price induces some to give up tanning leather and engage in silk weaving. All this done, the protectionist calls upon his countrymen to admire the result. And his countrymen look-and what they see is that they have less of both leather and silk than they had before. Silk is double its former price, and shoes are dearer, since the leather men must pay with the rest to support the silk factory. "But," the protectionist pleads, "we have created a new demand for labor. And we perceive that he has simply drawn labor from leather to put it into Spectator; But we know that nature diversifies industry in every clime; and we know also that in a country of such an infinite variety of resources as ours, to talk of artifically diversifying industry is pure buncombe. And when all else fails the protectionist attempts sarcasm and remarks that this country seems to have staggered along pretty well under protection. And then any school ma'am can reply with equal sarcasm, that free trade between 40 States is not without its advantages, Suppose the protective system has been faithfully applied in this country. There are no arguments for the protection of the United States against England or France which can not be applied with double force for the protection of Pennsylvania against Illinois, or Indiana against New (NAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. #### Dreadful News from Labrador.

A Quebec despatch of 18th inst. says a startling story reached town late to-night in any form. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED from the barren and inhospitable shores of Labrador, A letter received from Pointe Des Monts, several hundred miles below Quebec, dated March 22 and signed "L. F. Taffard," states that on account of the violent storms which prevailed from September 25 last to the end of autumn, fishermen were unable to lay in any supplies for the winter, the entire means of subsistence of the people being thus cut off. To add to the horror of the situation the establishment of Messre. Outellotte & Croteau, at Pentecole, containing a do quantity of supplies was burned with the contents in December. The winter huntng expeditions failed completely.

and one each of their children. Their Tonic Dinner Pills, speedily remove these families were found dying of inanition, | manifestations of a debilitated stomach.

The sufferings of the survivors were increased by a descent of the Indians from the woods, whose means of subsistence had entirely given out. The poor settlers had nothing to offer them but some flesh easy to answer if the mind can be dis- and oil of seals, which they ravenously charged of the vague notions which a hun. devoured. If navigation does not open dred years of false economic policy have early-and there is every indication that been irresistibly teaching. Free trade is it will not-scores of people will die of simply natural trade, unrestricted trade, starvation before aid can possibly reach them. There is already a fear that inhuman crimes may be committed in the terrible struggle for life. The same story comes from Isle aux Oeufs, where the people have nothing but crustaceous insects and fish in very small quantities to live upon. It will be almost a miracle if the whole coast be not depopulated before spring sets in. The Indians

"Landlordism" in New York.

Mr Patrick Sheahan of New York writes as follows to the Herald. -"No doubt the condition of the Irish enantry sadly needs amelioration, and I sanguinely trust that soon and satisfactorily it will come; but, by the way, in accordance with the adage that charity begins at home, would it not be well to look after the condition of our New York

"The Irish laudlord has no power or legal authority to evict his tenants on two hours' notice to leave. Not so with your New York landlord. He has the legal right to go into court and get out a summons which cannot be legally served until after twelve o'clock noon, giving the tenant two hours' notice to leave the tenant like a thunder clap out of a clear sky, and the judge has to issue a warrant to disposses the tenant that same afternoon. Of course the good, honest honorable, humane men, the Judges of the Marine these warrants, feel it the most painful duty they have to perform, but they have spot of earth producing that which it is no alternative; the law is such and they capable of producing in greatest abundance cannot be supposed to leave themselves liable for damages. Now, sir, I think change of commodities made as easy and | you would be doing a very laudable deed as inexpensive as possible. The total pro. | if you would bring this arbitrary and unduct would then reach its highest, and feeling landlord and tenant law to the notice of the Legislature before adjourneach man would obtain the fullest possible ment in order to its repeal, for verily such a law as it now stands is a stigma and a stain upon the city and the State and the statute books of New York."

The Desert of Sahara.

There seems to be so little certainty as to the topography of the Desert of Sahara that the project to flood the alleged sandy waste will have the approval of every one who is curious about African geography and does not have to pay the cost of the proposed canal. The character of the great desert is as uncertain as its traditional sands are supposed to be; the school geographies first described the area as a vast expanse of sand, with a semi-occasional oasis, and when the evolution of the text book brought pictures, the oases were generally made barely large enough to hold one well, two palm trees, three Arabs and four camels, with a long vista of sand and skeletons fading in the by producing the commodities directly, or distance. Gradually the oases widened in the books until some of them acquired a respectable number of square miles and inhabitants, and then came stories of mountain ranges extending far southward through the sand. A year or two ago it was reported that there was really no desert worth the name, the old stories having been devised for protective purposes by natives, who objected to new people coming in to break up the monopoly of caravan trade with the inierior. Some engineers have reported that the general surface of the desert is several hundred feet below sea level; if this be true the cutting of a canal and the consequent flooding of the low land will make exploration by water possible and enable the world to learn the exact area of the high lands that have not yet been reached by the religion and rum that civilization sends out to modify savage character. But it should be observed that some other engineers are of opinion that the desert is above the sea level.

It is now fitteen years since we commenced business exclusively in the above line, and we can now point with pleasure, to hosts of patrons, who have invariably, purchased from us, during that length of time. The reason is plain. We buy entirely from the best manufacturers, consequently our goods give satisfaction. We might purchase cheap, shoddy goods (that are only meant to sell and not to wear) but by pursuing that policy, it would be impossible to retain our customers. The best goods are the cheapest in the end.

We have full lines of

Infant's, Children's Misses', Youth's, Boy's Women's and Men's Boots Shoes, Slippers. etc.,

Trunks, Valises, and Hand Bags, Sole Leather and Shoe Findings.

Seven years ago we opened our FURNITURE EMPORIUM, and have witnessed a steadily increasing business. We keep in stock all varieties of BEDROOM, KITCHEN AND PARLOR FURNITURE, LOUNGES, SOFAS, HALL STANDS, WHATNOTS, WARDROBES, BOUQUET TABLES, SIDEBOARDS, EXTENSION TABLES, SPRING BEDS, IRON BEADSTEADS, STRETCHERS, ETC. Mattrasses, Bolsters and Pillows of all kinds, Mirror Plates, Excelsior Etc.

-JUST ARRIVED .-A Few Splendid Parlor Suites, in Raw silk and in Hair Cloth.
