On 6th they were picked up by Capt. Hannevig of the Norwegian barque Sigrid, who brought them to Newcastle, whence they were sent home by the American Consular Agent, R. R. EARLY CLOSING. - The Clerks of Chatham very properly desire that their employers should close their places of business at eight o'clock, p. m., in summer and seven o'clock, p. m. in the winter, and are circulating a paper for signatures to accomplish this object. Purchasers of goods can surely supply themselves in the day time and should be taught to do so, by all the stores closing at a reasonable hour, for clerks have a right to a "breath.

MESSRS. I. HARRIS & Son, Chatham, are evidently energetic canvassers. They have succeeded within three weeks, in securing over $300 for the Jewish fund. Their industry in prosecuting the canvass is shown by the fact that most of the money was obtained by $1 subscriptions. The largest, $20, was given by themselves, and there were a few of $10, $5, and $2. Harris seems to be an enterprising name, not only in Moncton but Miramichi. If the fund had been canvassed as industriously elsewhere the New Brunswick contribution would have been a larger one .-

MARRIAGE. - Nothwithstanding the early hour a large number assembled at 6 o'clock, yesterday morning, in St. Dunstan's Church, to witness the marriage of Miss Kathleen A. Williams, of this city, and Mr. John E. O'Malley, of Chatham. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. McDevitt. Miss Ludovica Williams, sister of the bride, acted the part of bridesmaid and Mr. Thomas Crimmen, of Chatham, that of groomsman. The bride was dressed in white tarletan, trimmed with white lace, and a white satin overdress. On Friday morning last, however, the remains of the unfortunate young man were found six miles above Boiestown, where they had been left on the bank of the stream by the receding waters. Little remained except the clothes of the victim and a few bones, the body having been almost entirely devoured by bears, the tracks of which were still visible in the sand. - Farmer.

0-Fish-al Crookedness.

Quite a trade has already been done with the United States in fresh lobsters and the World's Departmental editor writes an article suggesting the feasibility of such trade being successfully inaugurated and made permanent. At the same time this genius, who is engaged in canning about as many undersized lobsters as any man on the North Shore, has done considerable in the way of discouraging the "lobster-in-the-shell" trade with the United States, by seizing other people's shipments en route thereto and distributing them in the local market, on the ground that some undersized lobsters were in said shipments. It is said by some of his friends that he has given them away, but others assert that he did not have his trouble for nothing. It is rather interesting to find these restrictionists who insisted on putting a stop to the Napan bass fishery, on the prohibition of gaspereaux fishery, on the imposition of the salmonnet tax and the prohibition of the bag-net smelt fishery, now so anxious to promote a business in lobsters which they have done their best to discourage. Could the World tell us of a certain Overseer who has been trying to collect the salmon nettax since the Inspector ordered it not to be collected? And, if so, does it think such attempts honest?

Still in the Depths.

A few weeks ago we published a de spatch from Grand Manan, which stated that an unknown wreck had been discovered near the Old Proprietor Rock, a short distance from Grand Manan. How or when it got there is a mystery yet to be solved, but there is little doubt that all on board have met a watery grave. Mr. Isaac Newton, of Grand Manan, who is in St. John just now, has interested himself in the wreck and has endeavored to find out some information concerning her, but made by the fishermen he is of the opinion some wreckage drifted ashore at Three Islands and also at Grand Manan. Among the stuff that drifted ashore at Grand Manan was some cabin panelling, and a main boom 65 feet long, to which was attached a piece of mainsail, sheet block, etc. It was of hard pine. The spars of the wrecked vessel, so far as can be seen, are of spruce. She is evidently laden with some heavy cargo or else she would have broken up long ago. The fishermen who have been grappling on the wreck say that at low water they have seen her hull. It seems strange that a wreck could have laid there so long without some enquiry being made about violaters of the law, local authorities her. Mr. Newton says it would be impossible to raise her, but at flood tide divers could work at her cargo. -St. John

A highly romantic story is given as the key to the Egyptian trouble. Early in life, it is said, the warlike Arabi Pasha felt the promptings of Cupid rather than of Mars, and while under the influence of the gentle god, loved and woood one of Egypt's dark eyed daughters. Ismail Pasha the ex-Khedive, however, also felt Wegg-like poetry, and being most powerful and not in the least scrupulous, he had her carried off to his harem. Arabi was made a Bey, but this did not placate him, and he vowed eternal vengeance against Ismail and all his tribe. This he thinks he is getting.

The revenue in 1870 was about $1,000,000 derived from about 480 ships; in 1875 it was about $5,500,000 from 1,494 ships, aud in 1881, as above stated, the revenue amounted to $10,000,000, which was paid by 2,727 ships, with a tonnage of 5,414. 050. The proportion of English ships using the canal last year was 82 per cent The nominal value of the shares is $100. They are quoted to-day at $400 and have been as high as $700. The last and highest dividend was 9 per cent., so that some other than purely financial considerations must govern the price of the stock.
