theme of general comment, and came to the ears of the Hurd brothers, who hit on a scheme to relieve the new-comers of a Road, near Little Bartibogue stream, was portion of their little fortune. The trick was one which they had more than once successfully played, bothe victims had always been ashamed to make any exposure. Oliver and his brother went to the Morrisons, and the former produced a bundle of $2 Dominion notes, which he said were counterfeits, and offered to sell them for $200 (the package contained $2000). The elder of the Morrisons examined the notes, compared them with some genuine notes he had, and saw the alleged counterfeits danied detection. He agreed to purchase them, but pretended to think the price was too high, and it was finally agreed that the package should be sold for $150. Morrison produced that sum, but Oliver Hurd said the business was a ticklish one, and he didn't wish to leave any evidence to fasten the issuing of the counterfeits on him : so he would take the $150 and drop the package of counterfeits outside of the house door as he was leaving. Morrison would not agree to this, and Hurd found he could not trade unless he handed over the package on receiving the money; so he agreed to do this, and the exchange took place. Hurd buttoned the $150 up in his pocket, and then, drawing a revolver, presented it space. at the head of the elder Morrison and demanded the package of alleged counterfeits. The Nova Scotians proved game, however, and a struggle ensued which resulted in the two Hurds being worsted and ejected from the house. The $2000 proved to be genuine bills, which the counterfeiters meant to use as decoys, as they had several times before. The Hurds applied to a magistrate for a warrant and had the Morrisons arrested on a charge of stealing $2000 from them, and the latter had the Hurds arrested for assault and an attempt on the elder brother's life by shooting at him with a revolver. All the parties have been held to bail to appear before a magistrate in Truro, previous to being committed for trial in the supreme court which meets in November.
