

Freedom. Freedom, glorious when united. With thy compass Law and Love, As day's light to the beauteous, In deep darkness thou dost appear, Blood for thee has flowed like water In the battlefield's stern slaughter, Boom from heaven above.

Freedom, rich in good, we hail thee, True friend of the human race, Cursed the coward who assails thee In thy name, to them disgrace, Of the brave alone obtain thee, Nor assassin's knife can gain thee With his mean-masked face.

Freedom, beautiful when real, Thou hast noble souls inspired, But the fenshish, false ideal, To heaven daring crime has fled, Those by faith nor reason guided, Truth and duty each derided, And thy name benighted.

Freedom, thou must deliverance, Save allied with Love, Drive'th'votaries to confusion, They alone the freedom prove, For their passions fierce constraining, Know that freedom's God is reigning In the realm above.
