The Board of Agriculture.

Among the local subjects of public interest suggested for discussion by the late Centennial Exhibition was the position and utility of the Pro vincial Board of Agriculture as a present constituted. The Exhibition brought together the very best agri culturists, not only of New Brunswick, but of the Maritime Provinces, and, from them, an intelligent idea of the merits of such an organization for the management of farmers' interests could be obtained better, probably, than in any other available way. It seemed to be generally conceded by those of the widest experience in such matters, that was not sound policy to allow the important matter of agriculture to be managed in a second-hand way. was evident that in Nova Scotia, as well as New Brunswick, the members of the Boards of Agriculture were. largely, not preminent as practical farmers, bat, rather, gentlemen of the amateur-farmer class-men with hobbies to ride or political axes to grind. It was interesting to listen to the record of most of the members of the New Brunswick Board from the real farmers' standpoint. The question,-What had the present Board done in the way of administering agricultural affairs, that had not been better done when the Government had direct control ? was asked, and it received an answer not very flattering to the existing organization. It was conceded that the Board had forfeited its existence by its attempt to "rule or ruin" the late Dominion Centennial Exhibition, and the course pursued by most of its members in reference to that important undertaking was pointed out as a true index of their sense of duty and capa city for appreciating their official position. That such an organization is not necessary, especially when the membership of the Provincial Executive consists of nine out of a House of forty-one, is manifest, and the discussion of the subject has the Board would be a move in the right A few years ago a movement was made in the Nova Scotia Legislature to rid that Province of its Board of Agriculture, which is constituted in about the same way as that of New Brunswick. A bill was prepared and a majority of the House-led by the Government—was ready to sweep the old Board out of existence, the intention being to adopt the system of direct Government control then prevailing in this Province. But, just as everything was prepared and the new scheme about to be launched, the New Brunswick Legislature—led by the Government-adopted the Nova Scotia system, which has given us the present Board. Ot course, this discouraged those who were about to reform the Nova Scotia system, tor they, at once, assumed that we had not, in this Province, made the change without reasons that could be justified on grounds of sound public

Enquiry as to the Government's reasons for partially passing the con. trol of agricultural administration out of its hands, has disclosed the fact that they were not sound ones. The farmers of the country did not ask for the change, but a small number of restless, if not shiftless gentlemen, who imagined they were not only leading farmers, but born to adorn seats in the legislature-finding their aspirations in the latter direction cooled off by a discouraging condition Plate and Extra Mess Beef; of things at the opening of ballot boxes in their respective countieshit upon the expedient of forming a farmers' league. By means of this organization they gathered about them a number of small-fry politicians from different parts of the Province and succeeded also in securing the ear of a few genuine farmers, and, so, worked up sufficient pressure upon the Government to secure the legis. lation on which the present Provincial Board of Agriculture is founded. It is a palpable fact that the Board is 100 Boxes and caddies McDonald chiefly composed of men who do not and Adams' TOBACCOS, live by farming, who are not prominent as students in the science of agriculture and who are manifestly unfitted by their natural inclinations and life-long experiences to deliberate | County. upon or administer important public interests. Most of the members of the Board have unsuccessfully aspired to seats in the legislature; but they have succeeded in securing, from that body, an enactment by which a kind of toy parliament has been provided for them, in which they can air their imaginary importance at an expense that is, at once, large and worse than of improvement, but it was based on the true principles of responsible government, which, so long as they are recognised in the general administration of the country, ought not to be departed from in any department of the public service. Expediency, not principle, has given us the present Board. It has been a failure always and a reproach to the Province of late. As such, the importance of the public interest with which it has trifled, and the self respect of the Government, against which it has, in its ignorant presumption, arrayed itself, require that it should cease to exist.

> It is the duty of the Government, | tive. in view of the experiences of the past few months, to deal with this subject in a determined and practical manner. Unless we greatly mistake public sentiment, the Provincial Board of Agriculture has neither the respect nor sympathy of farmers, nor of any other class in the Province. To test the matter, as far as possible, our columns are open to anyone who has reasons to advance for its continued existence, or who can state anything that it has ever done for agriculture that was not as well, more promptly and more cheaply done when the Government had direct control.

Westmorland!

The desertion of Westmorland by the eader of the Local Opposition party who, in view of his waning copularity n his own county, was forced to seek a foothold in the more pliable constituency of Kent, necessitated an election for his vacated seat in the Legislature As almost everybody in the Province knows. Westmorland returned for members at the general election, las year, to support the Landry adminis tration. This was, no doubt, due the fact that the French electors of that important constituency voted, almost to a man, for Mr. Landry and his asso ciate candidates, because they believed him to be a disinterested champion of their especial interests. But, when Mr. Landry's Government suffered de feat and, instead of attempting to fight his way back again to the position he had lost by entrusting the nominal leadership to Mr. H nington, he deserted his post, the constituency seemed to he left almost entirely-so far as the Local Opposition was concerned-to the electors themselves. It is alle ed that there is a leader of the Opposition in Fredericton, but, if so, it is evident hat he was instructed to mind his own business, for the "Haningtons" whoabsurd as it may seem-still aspire in conjunction with their organ, the Moncton Times, to lead the "Landries and other French," undertook to sweep Westmorland. They did not pretend hat they could do so on the merits o he late Local Government's administration, for many of their best and most influential friends had already pronounced against them on that score, but and Nova Scotia spruce and pine deals hey hit upon the expedient of running the election on the issues between the developed some facts which lead to Liberal and Conservative parties in Dominion politics. Mr. Landry was 15s. the conclusion that the dissolution of successful in compelling the Moncton Times to take up the cry he suggested and he used the Moniteur Acadien for the same purpose. As might be expectd, the other papers supporting the Dominion Government quickly fell into line and we had an instructive political spectacle as the result. On the part of the Opposition in the New Brunswick Legislature there were the most frantic appeals to French national and so-called "Liberal Conservative" prejulices against the Local Government, Mr. Wells being the candidate of the Dominion Government and Local Opposition, against Mr. Killam who, as a Liberal Conservative, protested against the importation of Dominion issues into the contest and declared himself a staunch supporter of the Blair administration, pure and simple. The more the papers favoring the Government endeavored to keep the true issues of the contest before the electors of Wes'morland the more determinedly they were met by the Opposition organs with the cry that the return of Mr. Killam meant a defeat of the Dominion Government party and a victory for the "Grits." In Moncton, Fredericton and St. John the cry was the same. The
