DEATH OF MR. W. J. M. HANINGTON, - Island of Trinidad wrote an extensive not alonework on leprosy in which he proves, I of tainted parents and therefore would > that the use of a leper's pipe would suffice in many cases to inoculate the disease. That leprosy is contagious by inoculation there is, I believe, no doubt. That inoculation can be caused by cohabitation. or by the constant intercourse of persons living together, can be proven, I think, by many facts with which I am familiar. How, after that, Dr. Fox can conclude that "a Lazaretto is not necessary" is more than I can understand. He speaks of the time when "we shall become better acquainted with the disease." Whenever that time comes the world will know that wherever leprosy makes its appearance it will spread with surprising rapidity unless sequestration be resorted to.

a Lazaretto. There is no doubt, however,

It is due to the generosity and energetic action of our Governments that the spread of the dread disease has been checked here as we see it. The first case known in this country was a lady, Ursule Landry, who died in the year 1828. Sixteen years later, in 1844, the first Lazaretto was built, and 20 patients entered it that year! Now, at the end of thirty-nine years during which the sequestration system has prevailed here, we have in hospital only 26 cases and no known cases outside. This argument will appear still stronger in favour of sequestration when we consider that during the first years of the Lazaretto the very imperfect system under which it at Bright's Disease, Diabtes, or any disease was managed kept many known cases out of it and permitted patients to escape. A party of 12 left Sheldrake Island during the quiet and under the shade of a summer's night in 1845, some of whom did not return until a considerable time after. It is a remarkable fact that the patients now in hospital are relatives of those who entered the Lazaretto in 1844. Had a Lazaretto existed in 1826 and had the only case then known been sequestered therein, it is most probable Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is | that leprosy in Tracadie would now be a The reporter in question incorrectly states that leprosy first appeared here about 100 years ago! If that were true and had there existed no Lazaretto during a whole century as Dr. Fox would have we might have some 300 cases as on Trinidad Island, where the Lazaretto can accommodate only about 125, and as many more are forced to remain among society which is fast becoming generally infected. Such must inevitably be the result of the "no Lazaretto" system wherever adopted, and an intimate acquaintance of 13 years with the nature and condition of leprosy here in its various phases enables me to

I should admire and commend that spirit of enterprise and love or study which would lead some skilled physician -as it has already been done-to test his science by treating one or more lepers but were this done without attending to sequestration I fear the disease would neither be cured nor "stamped out." The Sun reporter charges our Govern ment with wishing "not to cure the patients, but to stamp out the disease.' This charge would appear less ill-timed if it came from some one who could boast of having cured a lepar, or who could show satisfactorily that a cure is possible. Dr. Fox holds that lepers might safely be introduced into any hospital for private practice without exposing other patients, and gives, as proof for this, the fact that the Religious Ladies at Tracadie have not the disease. I deny the parity. The Sisters here use precautions which could not easily be taken by inmates in a common ward and while they devote them. selves to the care of the patients they

At the present time, as I said before, there are no known cases outside the Lazaretto, and the fact that leprosy is not only contagious but also hereditary explains the appearance of new cases which from time to time break out on some member or other of the community. But the type of the disease must grow milder as the infected blood runs through the veins of generations and, consequently, after many generations the disease must eventually be stamped out of the locality provided of course that, by sequestration, inoculation be prevented.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space placed at my disposal. I remain yours truly J. A. BABINEAU, Chaplain.
