

Business Notices.

ADVERTISEMENTS. The insertion of advertisements can only be insured each week by their reaching this office by 6 p. m. on Tuesday.

Miramichi and the North Shore, etc.

WEBER, with his popular Boston Comedy Company is again in New Brunswick, doing well.

ROYAL ARCADE.—The semi-annual meeting of Miramichi Council 441 R. A. will take place to-morrow evening.

A NEW STABLE has been opened by Mr. Griffin adjoining the Adams House. He has some fine horses and will, no doubt, be well patronised.

THE ADAMS HOUSE, late the Metropolitan, was opened on Monday last by Mr. R. B. Adams, who bids fair to attract a good share of patronage.

"Me Too."—The Advocate is out with a very savage reference to that dreadful person, "the editor of the ADVANCE," in connection with the Bathurst Grand Jury matter. It intimates that "the people of Gloucester" will, ere long, annihilate said editor, etc. We observe that when any other party attacks the ADVANCE or its editor the Advocate also sets up a yelling and runs in to have a bite at us also. Care always do that kind of thing.

PUBLIC HALL FOR NEGRO.—A public meeting was held at Negac on Thursday, 6th inst., to consider the advisability of building a hall for public purposes. Mr. Jas. Bigg was called to the chair and Mr. Anthony Adams acted as Secretary. The meeting was unanimously in favor of having a hall built and a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions for the purpose.

CHRISTMAS BEEF.—The largest fattest, handomest pair of steers ever seen in this County are to be killed by Mr. Thomas Vanstone, Chatham, for Christmas beef. They are five years old, eight 8 ft. live weight 4,250 lbs., and took first prize a Cumberland exhibition and sold for nearly four hundred dollars. They were fattened by Mr. Thomas Bulmer, Nappan Cumberland Co. It is a rare chance to get a cut of such beef.

DENOMINATIONAL AMITY.—The Church of England people and Baptists of Hillsboro have joined hands to hold a fair and concert on Tuesday next in the same building, the proceeds to be divided for denominational purposes. This shows a commendable state of feeling between denominations, each of which is too apt to regard the other as a rival to be kept down. The Church of England has long possessed a church at Hopewell Hill and funds are now being raised for one at Hillsboro and a parsonage house, to be located probably at Riverside.—Sackville Post.

CONCERT AT REDBANK.—The choir of St. James' Church, Newcastle, is to visit Redbank on Tuesday evening, 30th inst., and give a concert of sacred pieces in the Presbyterian Church at that place. The Newcastle singers are well organised and efficiently trained and their programme will, no doubt, be a very attractive one. This, together with the fact that the net proceeds of the concert will go to the manse fund should attract a large attendance.

PERSONAL.—The agency of the Bank of Montreal at Cornwall, Ont., is now in charge of R. Mackenzie, Esq., late of Newcastle. Miramichi people generally, will always feel an interest in Mr. Mackenzie's whereabouts and welfare, as he was, while among us, not only a great favorite with our business men, but also a large contributor of time, means and experience to the promotion of our social interests and pastimes. We understand that he is pleasantly situated in his new charge.

Mr. T. P. McGowan of the Catholic publishing house, McGowan & Young Portland, Maine and also representing the Boston Pilot is visiting the Miramichi on business.

Allan Gilmour, Esq., who died at the residence of his son in the County of Fife, Scotland on 18th Nov. last, at the age of 80 was the founder and last surviving partner of the original firm of Allan Gilmour & Co. of Quebec. He came to Miramichi in 1820 and went to St. John in 1822, going to Quebec in 1824.

FANCY SALE ETC.—The ladies of the Methodist congregation, Newcastle, were very successful in their recent efforts to start a fund for the purpose of erecting a parsonage, which is very much needed. They held a sale of useful and fancy articles in the Masonic Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening, and continued it next evening from six to eleven. A high tea was held the first evening, which was prettily well patronized by the residents. The Madigans furnished instrumental music—violin, cornet and piano. The proceeds which totalled about $180—the total gross receipts being $223. One of the attractions was the Madigs Lake, which was largely patronized by the younger portion of the patrons. The ladies are to be congratulated upon the result, and also for the splendid high tea provided, which has never been surpassed in this locality. The Rev. F. Harrison, who is the pastor of the church, is very popular, not only for excellent social qualities, but also an account of excellent and acceptable pulpit ministrations and in all other departments of his ministerial work.

Chatham Lecture Course.

The second lecture of the course was delivered on Tuesday evening, 9th inst., by Rev. Job Shepton of St. John. Rev. Dr. McCurdy presided and before introducing the speaker announced that the next lecture would be delivered on Tuesday evening next by Rev. Mr. Waits, whose subject would be "Clerical Humourists" instead of "Thos. Guthrie" as previously announced. Mr. Shepton in his preliminary remarks contrasted the present advanced period of the world's history with former times and then passed on to his subject proper, "Wanted." We want, first, homes. He spoke of the great power of a mother's love and the encouragement afforded young men by home influences. He drew a picture of a bachelor's hall and offered words of advice to both young men and women. The applause which greeted his description of the "dude" showed that the audience shared his commiseration for that specimen of humanity.

Passing from the theme of the lecture, he noticed the school of the future of the country depends on the intelligence of the people and while the school cannot supply a child with brains, the training which it affords enables him to think accurately, feel deeply and act wisely. Another of our wants is a clean press and pure literature. The London Times and the New York Herald more than the President of the United States. Our papers should be free from slang and falsehoods and sting as opponents with the truths they contain. Nine tenths of our works of fiction are unfit to read because not true to life.

We want statesmen who are honest. Honest politicians are not impossible. We want the matter in our own hands. They will not rise above the level of morality of the people whom they represent. If the influence exerted by the home, the school and the press is good the people will supply honest statesmen. The lecturer was frequently interrupted by applause and at the motion of Mr. Stewart and Mr. Ferguson was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by the audience.

Newcastle Curling Club.

At a recent meeting the skips previously elected met and selected their rinks as follows:— No. 1.—Henry K. Fish, Dr. Cates, J. R. Lawlor, W. P. Harriman, skip. No. 2.—W. Robinson, Jos. Jardine, C. S. Ramsay, R. Ritchie, skip. No. 3.—Jas. Farrell, Jas. McAllister, J. W. Davidson, E. Lee Street, skip. No. 4.—George Stables, John Russell, H. E. Parker, James Brown, skip. No. 5.—Allan Farrell, W. Stables, W. Heffernan, W. A. Park, skip. No. 6.—Alex. McLaggan, Jos. Russell, L. M. Harley, John Ferguson, skip. No. 7.—B. Fair, J. J. Anslow, A. C. Atkinson, T. W. Crocker, skip. No. 8.—W. W. McLellan, Wm. Fenn, W. C. Anslow, J. C. Fair, skip. No. 9.—Geo. C. Allen, John Robinson, jr., John Morrissey, R. Beckwith, skip. No. 10.—W. Gault, Geo. Hilderbrand, C. J. Butcher, R. H. Greenley, skip.—Advocate.

The Rink.

The Directors of the Chatham Skating Rink have made their arrangements for the season's work and will be prepared to issue tickets on Monday next. The services of an efficient band have been secured, the members of which will be a number of those who played last winter, together with some new performers. New instruments are being procured and the patrons of the Rink will have all that can be desired in that important particular.

The Rink will be open on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays—afternoon and evening, excepting on Saturdays, when it will be open all day and until six o'clock only in the evening. A reduction has been made in the price of tickets, family tickets being $6.50, instead of $7 as before, gentlemen's tickets $4.50 instead of $5; lady's $2.50, instead of $3; child's $2.00 instead of $2.50; other tickets as per advt. in another column.

The first Carnival will be held early in the Christmas holidays. The Rink is in excellent condition, considerable expenditure having been made in improving it. A season ticket for it will make a very suitable Christmas present or New Year's gift.

Ice in the Miramichi.

Table with columns: Year, Opened, Closed. Lists dates from 1859 to 1884.

The Smelt Fishery.

The catch of smelt off and in the vicinity of Chatham and Newcastle, since the right of fishing on the grounds prohibited a few years ago was restored, has been far larger than the average, and the return on the whole very satisfactory. It is to be hoped that the restoration of fishing as now established will be a temporary one, as some of the Government papers intimate, but permanent. It is admitted on all sides that when Mr. Mitchell was induced to use his influence at Ottawa to have smelt fishing prohibited above Middle Island in the Miramichi river he was misled in reference to certain facts connected with the subject. The whole range of the river wherever nets were operated was visited by persons sent for the purpose and all the small bass that could be procured were brought together in Chatham. It was then truthfully asserted, in order that the designs of the parties interested might be carried out, that these bass—of which the number, after all, was inconsiderable—had been taken exclusively in the net off Chatham. Mr. Mitchell, being just at the time, on a visit to the Miramichi, was induced to go and see the little bass, and by means of the tales told him by those who had been hired to procure them and the person for whom they were procured, his assistance in prohibiting the fishery above Middle Island was secured on the alleged ground that it led to the destruction of large quantities of small bass.

The consequence of this ill-advised and unnecessary interference with the rights of the Chatham and Newcastle fishermen was to oblige them to pursue their calling from one to three miles further from their homes for several winters, when they might as well have been doing their work in comparative comfort. It has also caused many of them expense for shanks, hauling, etc., which might, otherwise, have been saved, while the town people generally have been deprived of opportunities for procuring fresh fish for their tables, which the restoration of their privileges in the matter again open to them. It is to be hoped that those who have the ear of the Department, from Mr. Mitchell down through the grades to our local Overseer, will see that this interest is not again dealt with as it was before. There is no more reason for prohibition above Middle Island than below it, as everybody interested in or acquainted with the industry well knows. If the fishermen are ordered away from their present grounds it will only be to gratify the prejudices of a non-resident officer whose aim seems always to have been the curtailment of fishing rights in the lower portions of our river, and with whom prohibition has been almost a mania, where regulation only was required. We hope the time has passed, not again to return, when even the few of our fishermen who used to pander to such official policy and prejudice can be induced to assist in manufacturing evidence against their own interests and those of the entire community, or when any local officer will feel that he is sufficiently secure in his position to enable him to set truth and the fishermen's interests alike at defiance as was done when the prohibition of a few years ago was secured. Above all things, let us hope, at Mr. Mitchell has lately used his influence to secure the restoration of the privilege he took from our fishermen, that he will be satisfied with the discomforts, inconveniences and losses of the part and honestly advise the Department of the absurdity of again enjoining the smelt-fishing prohibition above Middle Island.

It will be well for the fishermen to heed the advertisement of Overseer Wye in another column. Let all proper regulations be loyally observed.

Nelson Notes.

MATRIMONIAL.

Mr. Henry Flett went to St. Martins last week and was made one of the happy. When he arrived at that place he was met by Miss Loretta Brown, one of his most popular young ladies, and the knot was tied which is not frangible. Miss Annie Brown attended the bride, and Mr. Emery A. Titus was best man.

Mr. Flett has always been one of our most sociable young men, and as his manner was to "make the same with all," he was not suspected of leaving the bachelors so soon, but we think he has reaped a good harvest. After a lively day in St. Martins, the young couple left for Nelson on Friday morning and arrived here in the evening. They were met here in the evening by some friends and drove to their residence amid the reports of guns, revolvers and the well known three cheers. Hardly had they been seated in the house before they received a general salute and a large bon fire was built in front of the house and kept blazing until about 10 o'clock, which made a fine light for the many who assembled to celebrate the arrival of the newly-made happy pair, and after an evening much enjoyed by all, the company dispersed, leaving their best wishes for the bride and groom. We wish them every prosperity and happiness.

We would like to know what mar shall next enter the bachelors circle and make some other young man happy, but we have a slight idea any-how.

NEW BELL.

The R. C. Congregation have placed a new bell at the front of their presbytery which looks very neat. It weighs over four tons and stands on a high frame which was built by Mr. Wm. Walsh and is a good piece of workmanship. This bell was made in Boston and sent to Ontario for exhibition where it was bought for the R. C. of Nelson at over four hundred dollars. It has a good sound and can be heard at a long distance. This congregation deserves great praise for their push since the first of September, 1883. They have a fine presbytery completed, on the third flat in which they hold their church services until they have a new chapel built, which is proposed to be of brick with a slate roof.

OUR SCHOOL.

The school here is now furnished with a good teacher after its too long being vacant, and we hope to see it kept with a teacher in future, so that the children may have a chance to learn and not be stopped, may be, in the best time of their progress.

SHINGLE MILL.

The shingle mill owned by John Flett Esq., does some splendid work in the line of shingles, barrel staves and headings fish shooks and many other things. The shingles cut in this mill are very superior and the staves are found perfect when made into barrels. The mill has every convenience to accommodate the handiness of work and cuts a large amount of stuff per day.

Bathurst Notes.

Dec. 16 1884.

CIRCUIT COURT.

On Wednesday morning, Attorney-General Blair moved for trial in the case of the Queen vs. Laman R. Donnet. On Donnet being asked to plead, Mr. Skinner, his counsel, asked for a few minutes to consult with his client and after some consultation Mr. Skinner stated that he was satisfied there had been a technical violation of the law on the part of Donnet and had advised him to plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the Court, which Donnet did.

The case of Kennedy F. Burns vs. Alex. Under Cassels was then taken up. This was an action for breach of Charter party. The breach complained of was that the ship "Her Majesty" owned by defendant had been chartered by plaintiff in September 1883 to proceed from Liverpool to Bathurst for a cargo of deals, that instead of coming to Bathurst the ship went into St. John where she received heavy repairs and then re-chartered for a return cargo and never came to Bathurst. The plaintiff also claimed that the vessel was not in every way fitted for her voyage when the charter was entered into and did not suit for some days after on that account. The plaintiff claimed damages for the interest on the value of the cargo ($13,700) for six months fall of markets, deterioration in the cargo, cost of insurance and wintering and damages he had to pay for non-delivery, amounting to about $270. The plea was that the deft. was prevented from fulfilling the charter by the dangers of the seas and storms which came within the exempting clauses of the charter. The deft. claimed that through heavy weather on the voyage the ship had to put into St. John for repairs and that when these were completed the season was too far advanced to load at Bathurst. The plaintiff's answer to this was that there were ports more in her line of voyage where she could have repaired without deviating so far and that even if the season was too late she should have come next spring and offered to take the cargo when the obstruction to loading would be removed. After a trial lasting a day and a half a verdict was given for plaintiff for $2000. L. R. Harrison for pff. C. E. Skinner for deft. The case will be taken to the full Court on the jury reserved.

While the jury were out in this case His Honor sentenced Donnet. Mr. Skinner read affidavits of Donnet and N. A. Landry, explaining the circumstances of the case. Donnet acknowledged he was now convinced he had done wrong and expressed regret that the matter should have happened. He believed at the time he was in the execution of his duty and had no desire to violate the law. Landry then asked permission to address the Court. As a Barrister of the Supreme Court he wished to show his connection with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to prevent it and away from his office without books to consult, he knew of no statute protecting them. They discussed the matter as they travelled, and the opinion grew on them that the letter was with the matter and place himself rightly before His Honor and the public. He stated that he left Bathurst for Tracadie on a telegram in company with Donnet and had no knowledge of the execution against Leslie until he reached Carquet, where he first heard it from Donnet, and where Donnet heard of the registered letter. After leaving Carquet for Tracadie Donnet asked him if he could seize a registered letter. He replied that he knew of nothing in common law to