CAPTURING A DESPERADO.

In the Far West, particularly in the Far South-West, the newly-arrived settler often finds that he has strange neighbors-not only Indians, but white desperadoes, who are more to be feared than even Utes and Apaches.

Two young friends of mine-good, steady, New England-born young men -were so unfortunate as to buy land in the vicinity of an especially ugly member of this outlaw fraternity.

These two young men had been brought up to obey the law, and to respect the property and rights of their neighbors. They could be brave enough in the defense of any just cause, yet they dreaded and shrank from the use of deadly weapons against a fellow being, from a keen sense of the sacredness of human life and the criminality involved in such acts.

Such were Gilbert and Charles Small. Plain, farm-bred boys, they had, by steady labor and economy, saved up a capital of $1,700. With this they had emigrated to Colorado and started a small stock farm, fifteen miles from Alamosa. By availing themselves of the Homestead Act and the Pre-emption Law, they secured a tract of 320 acres of land, lying upon a creek, with a range extending back over the hills, which was not likely to be taken by other settlers. At a point a short distance below, where a mining trail passed them, and where they judged there would in time be a railroad, they built a framehouse, which they opened as a hotel, and in which they also kept a stock of

Some eight or ten miles from them professedly worked a mine, but whose paper. place really was a kind of rendezvous for renegade "cowboys" and other desperate characters of the Jesse James type. It was intimated that several daring robberies had been here planned, and also that "Clate Walker" made it He was supposed to be the leader of a East, aren't you, young fellow?" band of train robbers, and was said to occasionally, when times became too but I'm a pretty nice one." monotonous, because of the lack of exjust to keep his hand in. Walker chanced to pass one morning, and seeing the new sign, reined in his | I'll shoot you! Gilbert! Immediately he kicked the door open as usual.

Under the circumstances it is not very strange that Charles stepped out of a back door about this time and went behind the corral, from whence he heard Walker firing repeatedly, and heard a great smashing inside. When at length the desperado had taken his departure, it was found that he had made a complete wreck of the crockery and furniture; and in the grocery room he had helped himself to tobacco and emptied his revolver at the kerosene place of these poisons we offer you a safe, barrel, which, tapped in half a dozen sure, prompt and permanent relief from places, was deluging the floor.

"What ! run from your own house !" said Forney, surprised. "Why, what hold has this fellow on you?"

"No hold whatever; but he's a dead shot and a double-dyed mnrderer !" cried Charles. "You don't know him as we do. Come along with us and get out of his way.

"Not I!" exclaimed Forney, who perhaps felt that his military reputation was at stake. "Take you two shotguns and stand ready in the kitchen. I'll stop here and see Mr. Walker."

And he hurriedly took his revolver from his overcoat pocket, then stepped to the window behind the desk on the

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents: Having used a good deal of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with great success, I thought I would let you know what it has done for me. Two years ago I had as speedy a colt as was ever raised in Jefferson County. When I was breaking him, he kicked over the cross bar and got fast and tore one of his hind legs all to pieces. I employed the best far-riers, but they all said he was spoiled. He had a very large thorough-pin, and I used two bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and it took the bunch entirely of, and he sold afterwards for $1800 (do lars.) I have used it for bone spavins and wind galls, and it has always cured completely and left the leg smooth. It is a splendid medicine for rheumatism.
