Some go to Church.

These verses form the opening lines to sociation, and written by the Rev. J. S. Bouchier, M. A., of the Carnarvon Train-

> WHAT IS PUBLIC WORSHIP? Some go to church just for a walk, Some to stare, and laugh, and talk; Some go there to meet a friend. Some their idle time to spend Some for general observation, Some for private speculation; Some to seek or find a lover, Some a courtship to discover; Some go there to use their eyes, And newest fashions criticize. Some to show their own smart dress, Some their neighbor's to assess; Some to scan a rose or bonnet, Some to price the trimming on it Some to learn the latest news, That friends at home they may amuse Some to gossip, false and true, Some hid within the sheltering pew Some go there to please the squire, Some his daughters to admire ; Some the parson go to fawn, Some to lounge and some to yawn ; Some to claim the parish doles, Some for bread and some for coals Some because it's thought genteel, Some to vaunt their pious zeal; Some to show how sweet they sing Some how loud their voices ring; Some the preacher go to hear, His style and voice to praise or jeer Some, forgiveness to implore, Some their sins to vanish o'er Some to sit and doze and nod;

But few to kneel and worship God Hop Bitters are the Purest and Best Bitters Ever Made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion,-the oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease of ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxi-

An All Rail Route to Europe. Major Kent, formerly in the service of Wabash Railway, has projected a great scheme for connecting the Canadian Pacific with the European system of railroads. He would build a line from Port Moody northward along the coast to Mount St. Elias and then across Alaska to Behring's Strait. The Strait is 36 miles wide at its narrowest point, and Major Kent thinks transfer boats could cross it in any sort of weather in three hours. He would then carry the road from Cape East on the Asiatic side of Behring's to Vladivoski, near the mouth of the Amoor, where connection would be made with the Russian railroads, A five days' journey would land the traveller in Calais and in eight hours more he would be in London. The journey from Port Moody to London by this route would occupy about eleven days. It would be all rail, of course, with the exception of the crossings of Behring's and the English channel. It is a brilliant project, worthy of Colonel Sellers, or Mr. Pew, or Mr. Pugsley, or

Loss and Gain. CHAPTER I. "I was taken sick a year ago With bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I get sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I Could not move! I shrunk !

From 228 lbs. to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

If of the right consistency, and rapidly cooked, the potatoes will be crisp and brown on the outside, and soft and creamy within. Garnish with parsley sprigs, and send to table in an odd fancy china dish. The double pans having the inner one pierced with innumerable tiny holes, or made entirely of wire, are the nicest. They are sold at the house furnishers' for frying oysters, but are equally nice in cooking other articles of food. A piece of heavy wire is fastened at one side of the outer pan, comes up to and hangs over the top, having at the end a hook on which the inner vessel is hung, and drains off the superfluous fat. The lifting out and danger of breaking in pieces any delicate article of food are thus also avoid

Chop very finely cold boiled pctatoes, and cook slowly in sufficient fat about twenty minutes. Do not let them brown the least particle, but only take out the raw taste, and become very hot and well mixed together. To one pint of potatoes allow two tablespoonfuls of rich milk or cream and half of a raw egg. Beat them well together; take the potatoes from the pan, and stir in. Season with pepper and salt; put in the same pan, and replace on the fire, first pressing well down with a spoon that they may lie compactly over its whole surface. Do not stir them, but let them become nicely browned on the under side, which will be in about fifteen minutes. Have an oval dish well warmed; place it ever the pan, and then, reversing the position of the two quickly, there will be a sort of potato omelet in good shape, and its nicely browned side on top. In place of chopping the potatoes for ordinary frying, one can make a pleasant change by forking them. When well boiled, and the skirs removed, work with a silver fork until there is a fine flasky mass, even in texture, and looking very light and inviting. Either cook them plainly in plenty of boiling lard, stirring frequently, or adding cream and egg if

In a small skillet heat half a pint of rich milk, sliding into it six or eight medium sized potatoes previously boiled and sliced across. Stir together four table-spoonfuls of cream and half the raw yolk of an egg; pour over the contents of the skillet, shaking to and fro, but not using a spoon to stir them, until they give one good bubble. Take from the fire, add salt, pepper, and a generous amount of butter. If desired, a very little finely chopped parsley may be added.—Harper's
