Best Quality Selected Lime

By the Car Load at all STATIONS on the AL BERT and INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAYS. This Lime differs from all other Brands in the market—having peculiar cement qualities, which hardens it like stone, and makes it imprevious to the action of water. It requires no cement to m-prove it, and is the CHEAPEST in the market for all purposes.

For Agricultural purposes it can be furnished by the car load in bulk, CHEAP, and is the best as well as the cheapest fertilizer known.

The Trustful Bunko Man.

The boss crook sighed as he poured a gill of I randy from a gilded decanter into a crystal chalice that rested upon a little AND EXTERNAL USE. table in the Hoffman House. "Yes," he said, "I was played for a sucker once, should rather say it was. It was so nean that I doubt if I'd have had the heart to do it myself.

> Broadway one evening in the Fall, about two years ago, when I was engaged in leading out-of-town gentlemen against Bunko. That don't pay now. The newspapers have exposed the thing so often that the worst yanoo from Michigan knows the game, and as soon as you say anything about being the nephaw of the President of his bank he gets scared and calls the police. In those days it was running pretty well, though, and, was coming down Broadway with my side partner, Tony Goodheart. Tony was the flyest man in the profesh to size up a duffer and do the preliminaries. He get inside the lines, and he'd forgotten to looked so green that anybody could tell in ACCOM'DATION a minute to look at him that he wasn't up to anything crooked. Why, he had the most vacant, innocent face a man ever off and he went away, after asking me to wore, and he was embarrassed so easily and blushed so much that everybody remember him when I got back to the old pitied him. But talk about cheek! Ha had the hardest nerve you ever read about. I believe he'll have the face at the Judgment Day to calmly walk over and take his place with the sheep, and then make a big kick if they say he's else fails. made a mistake. Well, I was telling how we came down Broadway, and there, in the doorway of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, stood a young fellow that I put down for the most blooming sucker I had come across in many a day. He was just ripe enough to be picked, and Tony and I nudged each other as soon as we put eyes on him. I sized him up right away for a dude from St. Louis or Milwaukee or Buffalo, who had come down to see the city and brought enough money to have a good time. He had a smooth, round, pleasant face, was dressed very nicely, and leaned against the hotel pillar as if he was just a trifle lonesome, and we knew he'd be right glad to find an old friend to show him about this city. "Well, I went over and sat down on a bench in the Park, and Tony walked by the hotel. As he passed the young fellow he glauced at him, gave a start, looked again, and recognized him.

"'Hullo, old man,' he says, rushing up, and seizing his band in the regulation way. 'How are you? What are you doing down here? Why did'n you let me know you were coming?'

friend, Henderson, of Chicago, at Princeton, if I hadn't heard your voice." The young man fell right into the trap s beautifully as anybody could wish.

"It's very complimentary to your found this year in the woods are built friend, Henderson, I'm sure,' he said, 'but I'm a very different man. My name | ed from trees and high up it is a sign for is Thomas, and I come from Cleveland. 'That's singular, too,' said Tony, more say that they have never known the sign embarassed than ever. 'I'm sure you'll to fail." excuse my asking the question, but it isn't Thomas Thomas, is it? My sister met a young gentleman of that name in Cleveland last Summer, and she's been talking about him ever since. Is it possible that you are Thomas Thomas?' 'Under the circumstances,' returned the young man politely, 'I am very sorry that I am not Thomas Thomas. My name is Isaac Thomas.' 'Then Tony begged his pardon again, blushed a great deal more, and walked on across the Fifth avenue crossing, and I came across and met him at Twenty second street. 'He's the easiest sucker ! ever worked,' Tony said to me after he'd told me the name and address. 'You ought to finish him before midnight.

Meet you in the old place, heh?' 'Well, 'then my part of the contract began. I took a Broadway car up past the hotel, so as to come down the other way, and the young fellow was still standing by the pillar. I got off at Twenty-fourth street and came down Broadway. He was there yet. I started into the hotel and looked him in the face as I passed him. Then I came back and stared at him again. 'I'll be hanged, I said to him, 'if you're not Ikey Thomas grown up to be a man! 'Permit me to squeeze your flesh,' And I held out my

"The young man took my hand and shook it warmly, looking sharply and questionably into my face. 'Don't you remember your old playmate of 15 years ago?' I asked. 'Don't you remember Jacob Higgins-little Jakey that used to play with you in the old park? "You see, it generally takes in a sucker more to give him a homely name like Jacob Higgins than a fancy one like Montague St. John, and you can sirike a man home almost any time with an old park. Everybody has played in an old park some time during his childhood. Well, Isaac Thomas racked his brains and found that he did remember me, and I asked him to come in and have a drink. So we strolled in and sat down at a table, and I called a waiter and asked Thomas what he'd have ? " I seldom drink anything but wine,"

he said. 'Bring a quart of Piper Heid-

I went lown there with him, and he didn't find his friend, and I decided to throw out another $3 for wine, just to give him a hint that I didn't care a cent for expense, so as to make him correspondingly liberal. My dear friend Ikey drank his half of the wine like a little man, and then we set forth. Just as we started up Broadway to look for a cab I asked him to come in and get a cigar. I said to myself as I ran, 'I have actually picked up a detective,' and it would have done you good to have seen me slide the sidewalk under me. Well, Ikey ran right after me and overtook me. "Say,' he said, 'what's the matter? You are not going to leave little Ikey who used to play in the old park with you in that kind of style, are you ?' 'That's right,' I said. 'You've got me now, and can afford to be funny, but please don't fire off any more of that cheap sarcasm.'

"It was like this. I was coming down 'I'm rather sorry,' Ikey said, 'that things have turned out this way. I suppose it was that confounded fire badge that scared you off.'

'Fire badge,' I said, 'Aren't you a detective?' 'No,' he replied, 'I'm a newspaper reporter, and I've been hoping for months that some of you fellows would pick me up, so that I could write about it, and here that old fire badge has disrupted my first opportunity.' "It turned out that he'd been to a fire. where reporters have to wear a badge to take it off. It gave me a bad scare, I can tell you.
