For Appearances.

Did you ever think how much of man's life is made up of appearances, even the man who 'don't go a cent on show,' and how little there would be left of him except for that? It would reduce him so that he could not cast 8 shadow under the most favorable condition. The real fact is, that appearance is only another name for pride, and there is more or less of that in everything that wears legs from the turkey in the barn yard to the president of the U.S. Even the man who considers himself a bankrupt in the article, and is ready to go into insolvency, were he to take a careful inventory of his assets, he would be surprised to find that he could pay the regulation he that I will not disturb him by individend and have a tidy little sum to quiring. start business with again.

There is young Higgins for instance. Everybody is acquainted with him. He is about 22 years old, has light, bushy who use baking powders that they leave hair, which stands upon his head like a in bread, biscuit, or cake raised by them lot of chickens on a fence rail. Higgins don't go much on appearances. He don't care how he looks nor what he does. If folks don't like it-well they do the other thing. That's Higgins all through. He says that if all the pride not pay the cost of the kerosene to go down into him and hunt them up, and he believes it too.

Now let us 'shadow' Higgins for a day and see how he will pan out. When he gets out of bed in the morning he begins to dress. He puts on a few articles for comfort and the rest for appearance. He wears a shirt and a pair of trousers to keep him warm and cover the law, but there is really no necessity for that stiff iron clad shirt bosom: there is no comfort in it, and until it gets bent to him he feels as if he had on a tin chest protector; it is as party. He screws in his shirt studs and cuft buttons: he puts on a clean collar; he ties on a neck tie; he wrestles with that serious problem of life, the putting of a cuff button into an over starched cuff, and still Higgins don't ever do anything for show. Then he washes his face and hands, brushes his teeth, and with comb, brush and it alone is used. oil, tries to coax his hair to lie down aud rest, as it has been standing on tip toe as it were all night. It may be said that all this is necessary to his sanitary condition, but when we remember that the only time the Indians were ever washed was at the time of the flood, and what few have since joined the Methodist and Baptist churches, and how one was never known to die a natural death, and how they are tougher than the pastry of a boardinghouse pie, we are compelled to admit that cleanliness is not absolutely necessary to a long life, however desirable it may be to the person's neighbour and | you ?" bed fellows. And now Higgins goes down to breakfast and eats with a silver fork when he had ten times rather use his knife or fingers, and then he wipes his mouth with a napkin, when inclination would naturally suggest his coat sleeve. Then he puts on his boots and blacks them, and goes down town to his business, and seats himself at his desk and writes his business letters. He starts off by sending a dunning letter, and begins it "My dear sir," and ends it with, "Your obedient servant," none of which he means and all of which is for appearances, for he would like to have the man in a hash chopper all the time he is writing, and he slowly but surely turning the crank. And through the day his talk and acts are all guided by appearances. After tea he thinks he will call around and see his girl, but, before starting, his person undergoes another overhauling, which, being satisfactorily done, he saunters out switching the grass with his cane and whistling to keep up his courage. There is probably no situation where pure grit and "sand" is more necessary, than for a young man to keep persistently calling on his girl, before his engagement is announced, of a volunteer party to storm a fort. In the first case it is death by inches, while in the latter you may escape without a scratch. He rings the bell, and, as usual, the small brother, aged 9, opens the door, and seeing who it is says, 'hullo'! Then Higgins asks, 'Is Sarah in?' his voice trembling like the vibrator of a thrashing machine, and receives the very unsatisfactory reply, in the shape of another question, 'Do you mean the hired girl?' and then Higgins explains, and the young hopeful says, 'Oh, yes; Mary, she is at home -why?' and Higgins explains that he wants to see her, and the boy says, 'Oh, I bet I know what you want her for,' but he offers no solution, nor does he ask Higgins in, and Higgins gazes at him and wonders if it would be from above obliquely, over the left shoulwicked to kill just this one little boy, | der. when there was so many growing up, but before he fairly decides the ques- the eyes shall open on the light of a wintion, Sarah appears and apparently dow very much surprised says, 'Oh, Mr. Higgins; I'm so glad to see you. Do come in. 'Ralph, why didn't you ask Mr. Higgins in before?' and Ralph says, 'He didn't say he wanted to come in; he only asked if you were home. Whereupon Ralph is informed that there was a nice bed awaiting his coming, and he disappeared through the door into the next room announcing to the whole household that Mr. Higgins has come to see Sarah. The visitor is ushered into the parlor and says, 'Good evening' to Sarah's father when it is raining outside, and tells Sarah's of Bowel Complaint incident to Summer mother he is delighted to see her, when and Fall, is found in Dr. Fowler's Exhe is not, and says he 'never felt better than he does at that moment,' when there is lie enough in the remark to make a bar of soap. Then he very suddenly sinks into a chair, and sits as rigid as a shovel leaning against a barn door, and then he suffers, and at stated intervals says he must go and don't: till at last Sarah's father rises and takes off his glasses and says, 'Well mother' it is bed time,' and they both cast a look at Higgins, which seems to say, 'Young man, I think you have come to steal something, and if we miss any-vades that room that would cover whole State of Rhode Island, till presently two forms rise from two chairs and hastily approach each other, and 'Oh, Sarah,' and 'oh Charlie,' break the stillness of the air, and a second sound follows, resembling the bursting of a small paper bag, and two happy beings occupy the extreme end of the sofa, and from the first moment of that entire day Higgins is not living for appearance sake and in the naturalness of the moment his arm steals round Sarah's waist, and drawing her face intently into her nose and mouth, and judging from the interest he evinces in the study one would say Higgins intends to be a dentist, and so happy is Bitter Bread.

Complaint is frequently made by those

a disagreeable, bitter taste. This taste follows the use of all impure baking powders, and is caused either by their containing alum (introduced to make a cheap article), by the impure and adulterated character of other ingredients used, or in him were diamonds, that it would from the ignorance of their manufacturers of the proper methods of combining them. These baking powders leave in the bread a residuum formed of lime, earth, alum, or other deleterious matters, not always, though frequently, tastable in the food, and by all physicians classed as injurious to health. The Royal Baking Powder is free from this serious defect. In its use no residuum is left, and the loaf raised by it is always sweet, light, and wholesome, and noticeably free from the peculiar taste complained of. The reason of this is because it is composed of nothing but absolutely pure materials, scientifically combined in exactly the proper proportions of acid and alkali to act upon and are sick, but if you only feel bed or misdestroy each other, while producing the erable use Hop Bitters at once. It may largest amount of raising power. We are save your life. Hundreds have been save justified in this assertion from the unqualifying statements made by Government chemists, who after thorough and exhaustive tests recommended the "Royal" for Governmental use because of its superiority over all others in purity, strength, and wholesomeness. There is no danger of bitter bread or biscuit where Why She Didn't.

Harmon in Bad Luck.

The San Francisco Chronicle of August 28th says: - "Monday afternoon at the track in San Jose a foot race for $100 a side was run by Fred Harmon and Walter Lubbock. The distince was seventy-five yards. Lubbock was allowed six feet start and won by the same distance. Time. 0.71. The attendance was large and the betting, principally by sporting men, was in favour of Harmon by large odds. The result displeased the losers and Harmon's trainer. The Fisheries of Canada.

In the paper read before the British Association, by Mr. Joneas, statistics were given of the fisheries of Canada, showing the extent of our fishing waters, which in the east include 2,500 miles of sea coast. These fisheries he claimed to be the richest and most profitable in the world. Last year the fish product of Canada reached $17,500,000, and this did not include the amount caught by settlers for their own consumption. Were these inthing in the morning we shall know cluded the product for the year would be and give the Consignee full benefit of this market where it has gone, and as the door $36,000,000. in England or the United States. The paper gave details as to the values of each description of fish caught, and described the markets to which the fish of Canada are sent. The number of lobsters canned in Canada annually represents 52,000,000 of lobsters. In Prince Edward Island, he said there was in 1871 only one lobster establishment; ten years later the number had increased 120. There was put up on the Island in 1871, 6.711 cans; in 1878 1,649,800 cans, and in 1882, 6,300,000 cans. In 1870 New Brunswick had one canning establishment, putting up 20,000 cans. ten years later 6.000,000 were exported from the Province to different markets. Nova Scotia exported 30,000 cans of lobsters in 1870, and 5,000,000 in 1882. Quebec is behind in this industry, producing last year but 800,000 cans of obsters. There are to-day, in Canada 600 establishments engaged in canning lobsters, the product of which is 17,500,000 cans, valued at $3,000,000 almost as much as the value of the product of our herring and mackerel fisheries combined. The number of lobsters taken in England does represent 3,000,000 each year.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents: Having used a good deal of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with great success, I thought I would let you know what it has done for me. Two years ago I had as speedy a colt as was ever raised in Jeffer-son County. When I was breaking him, he kicked over the cross bar and got fast and tore one of his hind legs all to pieces. I employed the best far-riers, but they all said he was spoiled. He had a very large thorough-pin, and I used two bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and it took the bunch entirely of, and he sold afterwards for $1800 (dollars.) I have used it for bone spavins and wind galls, and it has always cured completely and left the leg smooth. It is a splendid medicine for rheumatism. I have recommended it to a good many, and they all say it does the work. I was in Witherington & Kneeland's drug store, in Adams, the other day and saw a very fine picture you sent them. I tried to buy it, but could not; they said if I would write to you that you would send me one. I wish you would, and I will do you all the good I can.

Very recpectfully, From the Akron Commercial, Ohio, of Nov. 25th, 1882. Readers of the Commercial can not well forge that a large space has for years been taken up by Kendall's advertisements-especially of a certain Spavin Cure. We have had dealings with Dr. Kendall for many years, and we know of some large dealt with him for many years, and the truth is fully and faithfully proven, not only that he is a good honest man, and that his celebrated Spavin Cure is not only all that it is recommended to be, but that the English Language is not capable of reommending it too highly. Kendall's Spavin Cure will cure spavins. There are hundreds of cases in which that has been proven to our certain knowledge, but, after all, if any person coufines the usefulness of this celebrated nedicine to curing spavins alone, they make a big mistake. It is the best medicine known as an outward application for rheumatism in the human family. It is good for pains and aches, swellings, lameness, and is just as safely applied to men, women and children as it is to horses. We know that this spavin cure to be far better than any ever in-

One year ago a two hundred pound block of ice fell out of a wagon striking my foot on instep and toes, it would be mpossible to mash a foot worse without breaking any bones. I was taken home and carried into the house. I do not think amputation of the leg would cause any more pain. I sent for Kendall's Spavin Cure, it was all I used, and in six days I could walk around. About three weeks ago my tear ran away and threw me out of the wagon, the hind wheel struck my knee. After applying several highly recommended liniments without obtaining any relief, I went for Kendall's Spavin Cure. My leg was drawn up and my knee swollen badly. In three days I was able to walk to the barn. I could go into details more fully and make this a very long letter, but will not weary you. I am very respectfully yours, OSCAR F. HUTCHINSON.
