SIMON McGREGOR,

JOHN ALDEN'S FARM.

"You may laugh if you will, Susie, but there is something in 'luck,' and luck has always been against the Aldens, said John Alden, despondingly, to his sister.

'How, John?' Susy turned her round bright face attentively toward

'Look at grandfather George Alden and his sons? Why, their estate was the richest on the Ohio shore. They lived like Irish kings, I've heard people say, and excepting father, they all died penniless.'

'Grandfather Alden, I am sorry to say, was too fond of horse racing and cards to keep money long, and his sons, excepting father, all drank,' said Susy, dryly. 'Living like Irish kings, too, is not the most secure way of keeping a fortune.'

'Well, now; look at me,' continued John, with the scowl on his face unaltered. 'I neither drink nor gamble, nor care for the turf, I'm nineteen, and I've tried honestly to do my duty in every way.'

'Well, John?' 'Well'-snappishly-'see the difference between me and George Harvey. At school, study as hard as I could, he carried off all the prizes. I was the dull plodder, he the brilliant scholar, the genius. When visitors came, I heard him pointed out invariably as 'Harvey, sir. A most promising fellow. He'll make mark in the world.' I was passed by without a word.

'When we go into society it is the same thing. I take the utmost pains to be polite and attentive to the girls, and Harvey laughs and quizzes and is positively rude to them. Yet he is 'splendid' and 'fascinating;' and the nicest girls are proud to have him for a partner, while I am endured on sufferance. There is precisely the same difference in business. In every way he is favored by fortune and I am slight-

'I do not see that, John,' said Susy, gravely; 'George has a showy, dashy manner, which commands attention to whatever he knows. But people soon find out how little that is. Even girls in the long run.'

'I hate the 'long run!' cried John, impatiently.

Susy was silent. She knew very well that this outbreak was all owing to the fact that Laura Falke had shown some attention to George Harvey the night before. He always did care too much for Laura Falke's opinion since they went to the primary school together, thought Susie, indignantly. 'And as for business,' she said aloud, 'I do not see that George has any advan- But he shared the fate of many to tage over you in his position. about it. Harvey's farm numbers just hanging round the tavern door now, a Coofish Large & Medium the same amount of acres that mine poor, penniless sot.' does, it is true. But he is on the south side of the creek, in rich, alluvial soil, mine on the hillside, where nothing will grow but pine trees and Jim-son weeds. Haloo! What's the matter, Jack, said Squire Hall, riding up to the porch on his grey mare.

I was grumbling about my patch nothing, absolutely nothing.

Don't be too sure about that, my boy. Come out here a bit, beckoning him mysteriously aside.

They whispered for some time together and then John came in, his face flushed and his eyes glowing.

There's great news, Susy! Oil has been discovered in the bottom, and company from New York has sent on inspectors to test the property on either side of the creek, among the rest Harvey's and mine. If there are any indications of oil being there, we can ask our own price for the land. Oh, John, I knew all would go well row, and then I'm made or lost for life. If only luck is not against me! God will be for you in any case, John, said Susy gently.

Bad luck to John Alden which came in good fortune of dollars and cents, or even praise, was a much more real thing than the unseen power, which his sister worshipped so faithfully.

He rose the next morning with a haggard face, which showed he slept but little. To-day, he said to Susy, it will be all settled. The inspector is any oil on the land. He is an ex- by 3,000 men. pert, you understand. If there is any, I will sell and build a house like Squire Peter's only larger. And then Susywho knows-I might marry. I am as old as Ben Scott.

Yes that is true. She could not bear to discourage him by a hint of defeat. He watched nervously by the door for the men to appear and when he saw them comingthe New York expert, one or two of the proposed stockholders in the new company, and Squire Peters himselfhe snatched up his hat and hurried down the road to meet them. Even Susy's heart throbbed fast. She told herself in vain that it was not a matter of life and death; it seemed to her that her own fate as well as John's ture, are agreeably surprised at the depended on a few words to be spoken prompt benefit derived.

The inspection was not successful, and they were now bargaining for the sale of the farm. Would they give the money in cash? Hundreds-thousands-a million? Susy's ideas on the subject of the price of oil or oil lands was very unsettled. Two o'clock came at last, and the dinner, do what she would, was dried received orders to proceed to Chinese to a crisp. Just as the clock struck, water in November. Squire Peters and the strangers from

'Think so, eh? Now near New York a man would make it pay gold to the foot,' looking with half shut eyes down 'How ?'

'Berries. Finest varieties of berries;' and with that they passed out of sight. She found him, after a long search, among the hay mows, lying on his face, his head covered with his arms.

'Oh John, what is it!' He would not answer for a while. Then he raised his head. 'Its my luck,' he said savagely with an oath such as never crossed his lips before. 'There will be a full yield on George Harvey's farm and none on mine.'

'On yours?' breathless. 'Not a drop. Now let me alone! I want no pity;' and he stalked away into

But every cup, no matter how bitter, is drained at last. Months passed by, George Harvey received from the company a sum for his land which to his Plain. neighbors appeared a princely fortune. Derricks and mills were built. The oil poured out like water. A branch railroad was built from the city to the Harvey mills.

Harvey himself bade the village good-bye, and went to one of the Eastern cities to live. Report soon came of his lavish extravagance of Parisian clothes, of diamonds, blooded

'Harvey lives like a prince,' people said to John Allen. 'He does credit to his native town.'

If there was no sarcastic emphasis on the pronoun meant, John fancied it as for himself, he was in a morbid, sullen despair for about a year. Nobody would buy his land except for oil. It was an elephant on his hands.

At least, being young and hopeful, and with Susie to urge him on, he determined to make use of his elephant. 'What are you going to do, Jack?' queried Squire Peters. 'Digging up your sheep walk?'

'Yes; berries,' was Jack's crusty The squire smiled compassionately

Four years later Squire Peters was escorting a Mr. Hudson, from the west, about the neighborhood.

They passed down the road, still talking of the lamentable effects of the oil speculation on the slow going, steady, steady, farmers, when the stranger stopped suddenly.

'Aha! This looks like enterprise! Whose work is this?

'Now, that,' said the squire, stroking his chin complacently, 'that is a here, to tell the truth. It will yield specimen of what a different stamp of a young man from poor George Harvey can do. A miserable stone patch of a hillside, which had the luck to belong to a young fellow called Alden. He had the idea of raising fine fruit; bought the finest varieties of berries, spared no expense in manuring his ground or Royal Crown Soap, advertising his crops. I had a cow get spavined and it entirely cured her. One year ago a two hundred pound block of ice fell out of a wagon striking my foot on instep and toes, it would be mpossible to mash a foot worse without breaking any bones. I was taken home and carried into the house. I do not think amputation of the leg would cause any more pain. I sent for Kendall's Spavin Cure, it was all I used, and in six days I could walk around. About three weeks ago my tean ran away and threw me out of the wagon, the hind wheel struck my knee, After applying several highly recommended liniments without obtaining any relief, I went for Kendall's Spavin Cure. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I feel it a duty to others suffering with the piles and falling of the rectum to write you. I have had the piles and prol apsus of the rectum for five years, for the past three years I have suffered the most agonizing pain. Tried everything without relief, but after ten days use of Kendall's Spavin Cure I have not seen nor heard of the piles since. One who has not suffered as I have cannot comprehend the great joy that I feel at being cured of a disease almost worse than death. I had a valuable young horse that had a large bunch gather on his breast bone. I tried all kinds of liniments and had it cut open without any benefit. Saw your advertise ment and bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and ordered my teamster to use as directed. In less than one week the lump had disappeared. Thinking that a liniment that would do what Ken dall's Spavin Cure has done for my horse might benefit more. I tried it as a last resort. With gratitude and best wishes for your success,

I am faithfully yours,
