(Montreal Witness.) Coming Back for Punishment.

J. McC.

James Robinson, it will be remembered by our readers, left St. John, N. B., May 6, a defaulter, whose arrest the detectives were seeking. He escaped to sea in a bark after having victimized the Montreal Bank to the extent of about $35,000. His method appears to have been to secure the discount of certain notes, then keep on renewing them, or as some term it, financing, by supplying forged discount papers. This was carried on by Robinson worming $30 to second and $10 to third. Open to all horses | himself into the confidence of the bank authorities until at length concealment became impossible. The Pinkertons were put on the track of the missing man and his wife, who came home heart-broken to Montreal, was continually watched so that evidence could be had as to the whereabouts of her husband. It was eventually discovered that he was in Mexico, and though there was no treaty between Mexico and Great Britain, that country did not want such men and handed Robinson over to the Canadian Government without any formality. It is expected that he will be in St. John within a few days. Robinson has been accused of complicity in the recent bank frauds at Buffalo and other points, but the Pinkertons deny the story. He was formerly of Montreal, where he is well known by not only the boot and shoe trade. ise of two days' excellent racing and the but by many others. ### Campbeliton's Cows.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald, who has been doing the North Shore of New Brunswick writes; The fishing facilities are much talked of, but Campbellton is 15 miles nearer the Restigouche salmon waters. The Escuminae and Nouvelle trout rivers in Quebec are reached from Campbellton almost as easily as from Dalhousie, and the former town is near lakes which contain brook trout. But Campbellton, although a larger village, and on the main line of the railroad, lacks the enterprise necessary to push it into fashionable notice. And Dalhousie is nearer the sea-However, there is no compet tion between the two towns in cows. When the Campbells came to Campbellton, their wealth must have consisted of cows, and these animals have given their minds to multi plying. When Poe wrote The Bells, he forgot to mention the cow bell. He had never visited Campbellton. From the quiet tinkle when the cow placidly feeds upon forbidden gardens, and the agitated ringing when the small boy and dog appear in the background, to the wild "alarum peal" when the cow gallops madly down the street, the dog yelping and snapping at her heels; from the cow bell pianissimo and adagio to the cow bell fortissimo and presto-there is no cessation in the infinite variety of cow bell movements. At night you hear the tinkle from cows placidly chewing their cuds by the roadside. You suddenly open your window, and there is a din as of a burglar alarm from the garden below to justice. He had but $1,300 upon him you. A genuine burglar would set a peal of bells ringing around any house, and so burglaries are unknown.
