bellion these Indians rose to join them. The Indians all round here, like Poundmaker's ban rose, thinking the white man would be beaten. They did not hesitate to murder. Ail round they attacked the stores of the Hudson Bay Company and others, and killed men and women, and thought they were going to have their own way. Instead of saying when you heard of the halfbreeds' rebellion, now is the time to show how we value the kindness of the white man to us, you turned upon us. WOULD HAVE DONE MORE MURDER. And now when you find the head rebel chief, Riel and the other warriors beaten, you come in and tell all sorts of lies and beg for peace. You thought the Government had no more men. You thought you were better fighters, that you could lie in ambush in the bluffs and shoot us down. Now we have shown you there is no use of lying in the bluffs and pits, that we can drive you out and kill

Poundmaker-'True.' Middleton-'Up to this time you In dians have been in the habit of going to the settlers' houses, saying you were hungry and wanted food, and frightened the women and sometimes killing. Let the Indians understand that if one white man is killed ten Indians will saffer in consequence. If any disturbance takes place, and if any of the young men think they can go and rob and pillage they will find themselves much mistaken, and all the men will suffer. More soldiers are now coming here, and if Poundmaker had not come in I would have followed him and killed every one of his men if necessary. We want to live in peace with the red men, but we can't allow you to go on in this way, and the sooner you understand this the better. I am only a soldier, and I do not know what the Government will do in the matter, but I have no doubt you will be

The rest of you and your people had better return quietly to your reserves, giving ap the men who did the murders.' Poundmaker said he did not know wh they were, but he would try to find out. 'Where we were camped,' said Lean Man. 'I heard first that a white man,

'No; I can't give you any, 'said he. 'It's only a little I want.' I said, 'for my children, while I am away hunting. You don't seem to listen to what I am saying. 'No; I can't let you have any, ' the Instructor said. For ten days I am not going to give you any grub. ' I had my gun on my arm and he caught hold of it. Then we struggled, and I got the gun from him, and shot him with it. I came here to give if they like.'

'You will have to come before the Judge to be disposed of.

Lean Man, who is a minor chief of the Stoney tribe, then came forward. He spoke the Assiniboine language and Poundmaker was made use of as interpreter. Raising his hands and eyes to heaven he said, "As the great Spirit looks down one that was killed (referring to Payne, the Instructor on the Stoney reserve. The General then ordered the prisoners to be taken in charge by an escort from C Company, under Sergt.-Major Speakman, who conveyed them to the police guard-house inside the stockade where they were locked up. Poundmaker was evidently taken by surprise at the order for his incarceration. He had never been accustomed to such treatment at the hands of the whites as he received this morning, and it is believed he would never have come in if he had expected it.

Miramichi, June 16th 1885. Marriage Afloat.

A rather unusual event took place on Friday last on board the steamer Miramichi, at Burnt Church on her regular trip of that day. It appears that Jacob Price of Tabusintac has, for some time, been very much in love with Jane, daughter of his neighbor, Mr. John Murray, Jane being now very little, if any more than 16 years which he will supply at reasonable rates.

"spoons." The girl, moreover, was in short clothes, and thoughts of rescuing and returning her to the nursery were indulg. ed in to some extent. As if to disprove the old saying that "the course of true love never did run smooth," a Methodist clergyman, in the person of Rev. Mr. Estey, of Tabusintac, was also among the passengers and to him Jacob confided the information that he had a license and wanted to be married at once. The Rev. gentleman seemed to be somewhat perplexed. He, no doubt, had the evidence of his own eyes to convince him that the couple meant business and that if he did not marry them some other clergyman would, so in view of the possibilities of the situation he made "the twain one flesh." The newly-wedded at once retired to the after part of the steamer outside the ladies cabin and commenced the honey-moon, their mutually affectionate demonstrations being a matter of amused interest to their fellow-passengers. Arrived at Chatham, they put up at the Do-

Under the above heading we are favored with a letter in the World over the name of G. T. Tait, who as Capt. of the pilot boat Two Brothers, refused to furnish a pilet to the bark Lothair when that vessel signalled for one, as stated in the ADVANCE of 4th inst. Mr. Tait admits that he refused to board the Lothair and quotes a part of Rule 12 of the Pilot Regulations in justification. That rule, however, refers only to vessels "approaching" the harbor and not to outward-bound vessels, so it is evident that Mr. Tait fails to comprehend the meaning of regulation, as he did his manifest duty when he saw the signal of the Lothair good deal in a sarcastic way in reference to the skill and pluck of Pilot William Tait and displays an unworthy jealousy over the credit which everyone-from the Captain of the Lothair to those on shore who are acquainted with the facts- has given to him for the manner in which he perform. ed the duty which Mr. Tait was either too indolent or otherwise unwilling to statement that he would have replied to the ADVANCE sooner but for his having been at sea from the time the ADVANCE appeared until the 12th. If this is true it shows that he has had sufficient enter prise to get his pilot boat outside of the "sleeping ground" of which too many of the pilots have, of late, grown se fond and if the effort has not exhausted him so as to prevent his following it up, there is a hope that the complaints of shipmas ters that they have often to lose time waiting for pilots to board them from the "sleeping ground" will be lessened. Capt. Tait refers, by insinuation, to some neglect of duty by other pilots, which, however, only shows the necessity of our efforts to stir the whole fraternity up to a better sense of duty. He should remember, however, that his neglect o duty cannot be condened by his accusations against his fellow-pilots. He should emember what kind of a bird it is that befouls its own nest.

The New Methodist Church.

THE CORNER STONE LAID. The laying of the corner stone of th new Methodist Church, Chatham, wa celebrated last Friday afternoon and witnessed by quite a large assembly of people. Flags were strung along the front on Wellington st., and an awning spread over the stone where the officiating clergy.

Rev. Mr. Chapman, pastor of th Church, opened the ceremony by a short address. Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, read from the ritual the 132nd Psalm, the Doctor reading one verse and the assembly responding. The 672nd Hymn was then sung, after which Dr. Carman led in prayer. Rev. C. S. Wells read from 1 Cor. III. 9-23. Rev. Dr. Carman then mounted the foundation and delivered the address of the day. A tin box was placed under the corner stone, containing a Bible. Methodist Hymn Book, Minutes of Conference, a Document containing the names of all the clergymen and the members of the Trust Board of the Church from the time it was first established here up to the present; also one copy of the Wesleyan Guardian, MIRAMI-CHI ADVANCE, World and Witness. The stone was then laid by Mrs. Snowball. Mr. Chapman declared the stone duly laid and said it was firm enough to hold all the donations that could be put upon it. Dr. Carman kept exhorting the people o give and said if they had forgotten their urses to do like the Romans of olden times, throw in their ear rings, or, as he once knew a lady to do, place her parasol collection amounted to $74.20. Rev. Mr. Waits then gave a short address, congratulating the people on their efforts and wishing them every success.

The edifice which is to be erected will be a credit to the Methodists of Chatham. It has been already described in the Ap-VANCE, so we need not refer to it further than to say that it is to be of sandstone and brick of the most improved design and plan, suited to modern requirements taste in church-architecture, The congregation is not a large one, and their undertaking so large a work shows that they possess most commendable zeal and

[From the 'S askatchewan Herald" of June 1st. Rebellion News and Notes as published in Battleford

There was a sick Indian in one of camps that was allowed into town He was a good Indian, and was far away 138 when the fighting was going on. The doctors dug a fragment of a shell out of his back. Some of them lied but it was not the doctors. The Indian was as truthful as the rest of his kind.

But it is not too soon to enter a protest against the conduct of the Indian Department officials in interfering with those people before the general has done with them. When the farmers came up with the bands that had been told to go to Poundmaker's reserve and began to sort out their horses the Indians said Mr. Reed had told them to take along the horses There were two others, names not known, they had with them and send them back when they were done with them. When the Indians made what it pleased them to call a surrender of stolen stock on Wednesday, it was very evident there was still much unaccounted for, and that the part brought in was not of the best. The appearance of the procession as it crossed the bridge gave the lie to their story of captivity, because on almost every waggon were some articles of furniture, such as bedsteads, tables, chairs and sewing machines-proof conclusive that they had been allowed plenty of time to prepare for their entrance into bondage.

They wore a very jaunty air as they rode into town, with nothing of the bearing we would expect in men just regaining liberty. They were put into camp a little west of the barracks and a search of their outfits instituted by the police. In every outfit and nearly every waggon, were foung quantities of government property, consisting largely of arms and ammunition. The latter were chiefly taken from the teamsters captured a short time ago, but in every one of the outfits were found many articles of personal property belonging to other settlers who were bearing arms in defence of their country. Indeed, most of the waggons, horses and cattle were also recognized and claimed by them: and when asked by the authorities where they got them, the reply generally was "I bought it from an Indian ." or, "I

GENTLEMEN: Doubtless you are aware Dean Swift's ability as a trotter, Dean started on his campaign here last season, after serving upwards of 150 mares, and competed against horses that had been fitted and handled all summer for the business. With one stallion in par-ticular, Sandy Morris, Dean Swift made a hard struggle for first place in the Chatham Races, after which he beat him in New Glasgow in three straight heats. He also beat Messenger Boy's record; Island Chief, Dean Swift's son, being the only Stallion that beat his record in the Lower
