A GIRL MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT. -At Campbellton, Thursday afternoon, a rifle ball passed through the wall of Mr. John Gallant's house and struck his niece, aged 15, just behind the ear. She was sitting in a chair with a little hil d in her arms at the time. She fell to the floor, but got up and staggered across the room. The bullet fell to the floor, the wound bled freely and it was the opinion of Dr. Lunam, who examined it shortly after the occurrence, that the girl's skull was slightly fractured and her life in danger. The bullet was flattened at one end, so that it was shaped exactly like a horse's hoof. In its passage through the wall it took a slightly downward course, showing that it had come from a distance. I am not of those who reject what, of itself, is right, because the proposer may happen to be an opponent, although you | years. must admit that the idea of the ratepayers electing such bodies could only be claimed as an original one by an ignorant person. or one willing to take credit where he was not entitled to it. The reason why we did not propose in the bill, to make the whole board elective by the people of the district was because the resolution of Council under which we acted simply affirmed the principle of combining the two services. The necessity of making the Councillors members of the board was impressed upon us by the fact that ratepayers having suggestions or complaints to present applied to the Councillors quite as much as to the Street Commissioner or Firewards, naturally thinking their Councillors ought to be responsible for the town services. Truly Yours,

The above letter, which was sent to the World in due time, has, like the others been suppressed, and that paper makes untruthful statements respecting it and gives its readers nearly two columns of parish logic, a part of which is in reference to the subject under discussion and the remainder characteristic reflections on Councillor Smith, who is, in the World's estimation, a very cunning and dangerous person who wants to swallow the town, bones and all It is to be hoped that when Chatham shall pass through the terrible ordeal prophesied, the World will survive as the one element in it too nauseating of Mortgage, default having been made in the payment thereof.—All and singular that certain so voracious a monster as the terrible Counciller.

A very large audience attended the literary and musical entertainment given at Black Brook School House on Tuesday evening. The chair was occupied by Peter Loggie, Esq., of Chatham.
