Liberal Demonstration at Moncton.

owed Mr. Davies, said .-Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen As a Liberal hailing from another country, I heartily thank you for the privilege ac corded to me in being invited unexpectedly to address the electors of the noble county of Westmorland. I did not come to make a speech, but to listen to what was said. I think it is proper that from time to time the public mind should be turned to the consideration of the underlying principles of both the Conservative and Liberal parties. There are times every country when parties may spring up, but you will find in the country where they did spring from, they arose from the agitation of the public mind on some great question.

OUR POLITICAL PARTIES here have sprung up in this manner, so now I ask what are the underlying principles of the Liberal party? The party, as I understand the matter, takes its stand and is founded upon, as Hon W E Gladstone has said, "trust in the people." This is the fundamental principle of Liberalism the world over, but if you examine the underlying principles of the Conservative party, they are a wheedling of the public mind, a corrupting of the puolic vote, and a bulldozing of the public conscience. (Loud applause.) I will now ask you to consider, what is the re cord of the Liberal party? The Liberal the old Reform, or the old Liberal party to which I belong in spite of myself, and of which I claim to be a staunch member, has given to this country the boon of responsible government. (Applause.) Now those of you wno are old enough will remember the state of things which existed before we had responsible government in this province, and in looking back you will know that an oligarchy ruled this province. They not only collected the taxes from the people, but they expended them in a manner which suited them-THE OLD REFORM PARTY toiled hard to remedy this state of things, and at last gave the people responsible government, which says there shall be no taxation without representation. (Applause.) If the Liberal party had done only this one thing alone, the carrying into successful operation of responsible government, and the establishment of re presentative institutions, they should receive the support of the people. They have done more than that, for we find the old Reform party, of which the Lib eral party is but the heir, gave the ballot to this country, thus freeing the poor from the rich man's claws. I am of the opinion that the Liberal party has, from their history, shown in all instances that they took their stand upon "a trust in the people," for by giving to every man the ballot meant trusting the people. The granting of responsible government, and the establishment of representative institutions, meant "trusting in the people." The Conservative party opposed these measures, but the Liberal party, un daunted by their opposition, went on and gave the people an independent parliament. They also gave to the people a tribunal before which the members whose return was protested against on account of bribery or other causes, should be carried, and not to a corrupt parliament. Their fiscal policy is a trust in the people for it is no hot bed principle of forcing trade by artificial means. They, trusting that the people could by their muscle and brains make a living for themselves if not a competency, adopted the policy of Re ciprocity with the United States.

THE LIBERAL PLATFORM. Our opponents say to us, "it is true that your party has a history, and it is good enough; but you offer the people no platform." On the 26th June last, the Liberal party held a convention in the city of Fredericton and agreed upon a platform from which I extract three planks, Reciprocity, Reform of the Senate, and Manhood Suttrage.

RECIPROCITY I say if there were no other name than Reciprocity written upon the banner of the Liberal party, they should carry the public vote in the coming election. You know what reciprocity did for us when we had it before, and know how success fully it operated. I think as the Liberal party now favor it, and have made it a plank in their platform, they should carry the coming elections in these lower

REFORM OF THE SENATE. Then we have in our platform the plank Reform in the Senate, and I must say I believe in that Reform. I believe the Senate should be reformed in some way. Either they should be elected from the people, or nominated for their positions by the legislatures of the different provinces, and as the Liberal party think a reform in this direction is needed they show trust in the people and should receive their support on this plank. At the time of Confederation we were told it was necessary to have the Senate in order to keep a balance of power between parties, but according to the present mode of appointment to that body I am afraid it has become more political than independent. It is nothing but right that if a man goes up to Ottawa as a Sen independent in the same cars on which it is placed at the points of Shipment—thus saving time and avoiding the damage neident to team transfers. ator that he should go up representing the province in which he resides, and the Two through Freight Trains leave only way to do this outside of election is that he be named by the provincial legislature, and not as at present by the Dominion government.

MANHOOD SUFFRAGE. Then you will agree with me that Manhood Suffrage is a very important and much-needed reform, and on that issue the Liberal party has a square record. Why should a man, because he owns real estate or property to the value of $100, have a vote, and have a right to say who shall make the laws of the country, while other men of equal or more intelligence are debarred from this privilege? Why should a man because he is possessed of money vote, while a poor man is not allowed to do so? When volunteers are wanted to go and fight for the defence of our country's and fight for the defence of our country's country's and fight for the defence of our country's country's country's country's country's country's country's country honor, does the recruiting officer find the rich and wealthy flocking to his standard? Fire Service in said Town formerly under the No, but it is the poor man whom he finds shoulder the rifle, and not shrinking from danger, marches to the front for the preservation of his country's honor. (Cheers.)

I, therefore, think that as the Liberal party have placed in their platform the three planks of Reciprocity, Reform of the Senate and Manhood Suffrage, all CAZETEER AND tending to the further advancement of the liberties of the people; and as the Tory party have always opposed these IN NINE VOLUMES, ROYAL 8vo measures, the Liberal party should have your support. I feel that the day is not far distant when the present corrupt government will be hurled from power, and when that is done, and a new administrational when that is done, and a new administrational to cover cost of publication. Subscription to the Nine Volumes $75.00, to the Prevince of Ontario or to Quebec $12.50, to New Brunswick or Nova Scotia $11.50, to Manitoba or to British Columbia $9.50, to Prince Edward Island or to Northwest tion formed under the leadership of the spotless Hon. Edward Blake, then we may, with reciprocal trade established between us and the United States, fairly | MONTREAL, 4th August, 1886.

look forward to a new era of success. (Loud applause.)

THE YOUNG MEN. To the young men I would appeal, as a young man, to make a survey of the different camps and then ponder well in which they will pitch their tent. If perchance that tent should be pitched in the Conservative camp they will come upon A CAMP OF CEMETERIES a camp of graves, and looking into that camp will find first the grave of the liberties of the people. the grave of the rights of the people, Next their course will be down through several smaller graves to that of the grave of the people of the Northwest dug by the Conservative ministry-(applause)-and there trace the grave in which they have interred the people's rights. You have heard how they interred the independence of parliament during the last and previous sessions. Coming into the Liberal camp, are there no graves

HONORED GRAVES. Yes, there are graves there, the grave of Luicus Seth Huntington. The grave of the man that threw his weight against the Allan ring and smashed it to pieces. (Applause.) The grave of the Hon. Albert J. Smith-(cheers)-your late honoured re presentative, than whom a more honorable man was never seen in any legislative hall, a man who held the franchise of the people nigher than the goods of life, greater than the pelf that might be offered to him in time or place. (Cheers.) The graves of John Pickard, Isaac Burpee-noble graves, noble men. But, young men. coming from the graves in that camp we find hung out a banner and on it is inscribed, "reciprocity, manhood suffrage, abolition of the Senate," or at least its reform, but as Hamlet said to the players when he told them of their different parts : "O, reform it altogether." And it may be as well to apply that with regard to the Senate. I do not intend to take up any more of your time. I am not one of those who despair of the country and who think it is going to certain destruction. I wish you, young men, to-night not to despair. Look carefully at the state of your country; guard its good name; let it not be FOR TERMS AND FURTHER PAR shamed by the corrupt acts of corrupt | TICULARS public men. Then shall your future and the future of your country be one of prosperity. Vote intelligently when you first exercise that right at the next general election, come when it may, and then, as was well said by Mr. Davies, the Liberal party will march forward to a graud, glerious and long-continued victory Continued applause.)
