An acquaintance of nearly twenty years with him -not a personal one, socially, we are glad to say -justifies us in stating that he is amongst those from whom the editor of the AD-VANCE ought not to have expected so indecent an attack as that in his paperthe World-of last Saturday. If an honorably-conducted journal had been guilty of doing such wrong to any man as the Advocate had endeavored to duced the Courier's article and apologised for its offence. But it made not even a quotation from the Courier, and published the following :-

can only say that he performed his du ies faith

'Though the Courier comes to the assistance of the Manager, great care is taken not to deny any of our statements. He corroborates our assertion that the Manager came to St John with a low and disreputable Black Crook Company, and though the editor of the Courier never saw him actually performing with them, there are other gen whose character for veracity is somewhat better than that the Manager has established, who didsee him, and saw him also figuring at the St John lice Office as the champion of some of the women com sing that Company, whose conduct brought them under the regimen of the presiding magistrate.' The above was, no doubt, intended for family reading. It is a sample of its writer's appreciation of the Golden Rule, and such a record as he would like to have displayed in the social circle concerning himself. Our intelligent readers know that no man-however blameless his life may be-has any adequate protection from those who engage, as some himself, is either not very clear in his of the Advocate's friends have done mind in reference to it, or is ashamed of in circulating such slanders. There are many persons among us who know the worthy Police Magistrate of St. John, and when they read his telegram will know what to think of the last attempt of the Advocate to injure this paper and its proprietor. We may say that since the Advocate published the slanders on Mr. Smith the man who wrote them has been the subject of common report as a debauched hypocrite and is now out of the con-

Another article in the World of last will share the same fate.

Saturday, entitled "Mrs. Kelly's Tenant' is a sample of Mr. Stewart's good breeding and taste. It sets forth, in effect, that Mr. Smith refused to pay Mrs Kelly, wife of Hon. Wm. M. Kelly, some sixty dollars house rent alleged to be due to her. Most people will think such a public parading of the name of the lady referred to an injustifiable outrage, to say nothing of a paper meddling with the private pusiness concerns of citizens. It is not, particularly, the public's business, but we may say that Mr. Smith was never a tenant of Mrs. Kelly. He occupied a dwelling on Church Street under lease from Hon Mr. Kelly at $150 a year. Mr. Kelly promised, as a part of the understanding on which the lease was based, to lay water pipes to the house. He failed to keep his promise, but renewed it a few months after on condition that Mr. Smith would allow him to fence off a portion of the land covered by his lease. Mr. Kelly, after he secured the bit of land, again failed t keep his word concerning the water pipes

Mr. Smith then charged an annual rental for the land Mr. Kelly obtained from him and has now a claim of $30 against that gentleman on account of it. We know nothing of Mrs. Kelly in the transaction, but those who know Mr. Kelly will hard- Rosary v believe he would fail to collect any sum he believed Mr. Smith owed him. When e was here, a short time ago, Mr. Smith asked him to pay up or leave the matter to arbitration, but though he promised to do the latter, he went away as he came So much for the "Mrs. Kelly's tenant"

The World also refers to "cheating the Classins." It does not say who cheated Black them, but leaves people to infer that it was Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith when he left the employment of Messrs. H. B. Claffin & Co., early in the year 1867. did so mainly because of a personal difference with Mr. E. W. Eancroft of the firm, and for the purpose of going into the business of manufacturing stationery, which he carried on, first as a member, for a short time, of the firm of F. A. C. Hare & Co., whose place of business was on Broadway under the Stevens House and, afterwards on his own occount-at the Thayer building, No 1 Park Place, corner of Broadway, Although he lost several thousand dollars in a few months he paid up his obligations and left New York for St. John with good credit, good business reputation and not a stain on his character. He never was accused of "cheating the Claffins" or anyone else by any man who is responsible for what he says and will have the courage to make the statement so that it can be tested and the penalty of its dastardly falsehood exacted.
