The Chamby Election.

The election of a member of the House of Commons to represent Chamby, Quebec, took place last week. This constituency elected a Government candidate in 1882 by a majority of 539. Indeed, so strong were the Tories there, even at that recent date, that the Liberals considered it hopeless to put up a man and they merely assisted an independent conservative. The Government opened the constituency, however, this year by appointing the sitting member to office, and that fact indicated their belief in Chamby being safe for them.

Not Very Convincing.

The Tory papers were once loud in their condemnation of the Mackenzie Government's rule, because it did not prevent the potato bug from visiting the country; and now we have one of the same class of organs admitting that "business is dull and wages low" but nevertheless, confederation is a success in New Brunswick because "provisions are cheap, the community healthy, the crops good and the weather delightful." Such arguments are about the best that can be advanced from that quarter.

D-G-phobia.

They had a rather interesting time of it in the Northumberland County Court on Friday last, during the hearing of the crown case against the persons on trial for being concerned in the railway strike and rioting at Blackville. Mr. Adams, ex-Surveyor-General and M. P. P., counsel for the defence, took advantage of the occasion to make one of his accustomed personal attacks on the editor of the ADVANCE. He was enjoying a free trip to Ottawa, looking after his usual chances, when his clients' case was brought on and, of course, he had to make some show of an interest in their behalf when it was, convenient for him to return, and he was, therefore, obliged to fall back on his accustomed craze of D-G-phobia.

The Lumber Business.

A tour of the mill-yards and wharves of the Miramichi and an examination of the booming grounds indicate a rather discouraging condition of the lumber business. In many cases—to an extent unknown before in the history of the river—the wharves are piled with deals at the mills that are not being sawed this season, while the yards of some of our best mills present a deserted, not to say desolate appearance, because the excessive machinery has been lying idle. Millions of feet of logs are in the booms and coves, a large proportion of them having been cut in the hope of their finding a market, but being, so far, without purchasers. The merchants cannot afford to pay what it has cost the operators to procure the logs and hence the unsold stocks that lie on the latter's hands. The deals that are piled up until there is no room to pile more are not to be shipped because the prices obtainable for them across the Atlantic will not pay the manufacturer, and the idle mills cannot be set going because deals will not realize the cost of producing them.

acter in a manner peculiarly adamic. Such a trial being permitted by the court to go unchecked and, therefore, sanctioned with the consent of silence, may have a tendency to prevent respectable citizens from acting as grand-jurymen, for it would be only natural for any grand jurymen to expect that the court in which he had rendered his services would afford him—especially when absent—some slight protection from the attacks of such persons as the counsel referred to. What Mr. Adams may say of Mr. Smith in his political speeches in the Newcastle Court House, with his chief political admirers about him to howl down any merited reproof that might be administered, does not count for much, but before a law court in the same building, where his peculiarities and venomous prejudices are well known, a jealous care, so essential to the maintenance of public confidence in such bodies now-a-days, ought to suggest the propriety of exercising the well-known resources of judicial restraint. It ought to have been remembered that Mr. Adams is not recognised as a man who is capable of discriminating between the enunciations of a court and a pot-house. If we mistake not he is the gentleman who was twice "plucked" at Fredericton before he succeeded in passing as an attorney, being, no doubt, as incapable of learning law while studying it as he has since been of studying either law or respectable manners to advantage.

How it is Done.

The other day a local paper, which does not often furnish us with profound editorials, contained an article introducing Paul H. Hayne's "Face to Face." Our local editor told us of the "noblest part of the South" and "his lofty strain of final triumph," etc. Then, he proceeded to dwell upon Mr. Hayne's early history; of "the war" (and it was that "Great American War," mark you) depriving him of his fortune, and of his "picturesque little home" etc.—until one would be led to think that Haynes and the "Great American war man" had been old campaigners together. The article concluded with the concluding words, "We repeat it (the poem) for those who may not have seen it in Harper's Magazine."

The Canadian Prince of the Church.

INSTALLATION—PROCESSION—CONFERRING THE BERETTA. QUEBEC, July 21, 1886.—Mgr. Taschereau had duly installed here today as a Cardinal Prince of the Catholic Church. The ceremonies throughout were of the most imposing character. The weather was beautifully fine and the day was ushered in with the ringing of church bells all over the city. The various dignitaries of Church and State, religious, civil and other societies taking part in the procession were crowding and jostling each other about on the Basille square, where the grand marshalling took place for more than two hours before the hour appointed for the start. All the trains and steamboats, especially those from Montreal, were crowded to their utmost capacity, and as each packed its living freight into the already over-packed staterooms, the already crowded staterooms were crisscrossed with many gaiters such a squeezing as will cause many mortals to entertain his objections. In other words, when the law had to be applied, he was quietly let down and made to realize that he knew as little about it as did when he first attempted to become an attorney and was told to go home and learn something of the profession he aspired to enter.

The Short Line.

The Montreal Gazette says that although negotiations for the C. P. R. for the Stansfeld, Sherbrooke and Chamby and the Magog Railways, as part of the Short Line to the Maritime Provinces, are off, the progress of the "is understood" will be affected by the failure of these negotiations, the intention being to build a more direct line than could be afforded by the existing routes, touching such main points on the way as Sherbrooke, although perhaps omitting Granby, Waterloo and some minor places reached by the Stansfeld, Sherbrooke, Chamby and the Magog Railways. The current rumor is that the line to be constructed will run near Bonar lake, and afford easy access to a popular summer resort close to the city. The line is to be constructed with the character of the line which will allow the distance via Sherbrooke to Montreal will be shortened by nearly 100 miles. From Sherbrooke down to the Maritime ports the line originally contemplated will be followed. It is understood that the work of construction will shortly begin and energetically prosecuted.

American versus English Enterprise.

The London Canadian Gazette gives the following as part of an interview with Dr. Selwyn at the Colonial Exhibition. "Is it true, Dr. Selwyn, that American capital is so largely employed in British Columbia, that it is by its aid that the British Squadron is coaled when it reaches the North Pacific mail station?" "There is no doubt, in a certain sense, it is so. If I remember rightly, the British Columbia Government have sold to Americans the whole of the coal lands along the eastern coast of Vancouver Island and Xanaim. It is because of the men-of-war coal. And through the whole country mining and other industries are often largely, or entirely, worked by American capital. This is so far, for instance, with one of the greatest lumber manufacturers in Canada—that at Hall, Ottawa.

industry are taxed with especial severity has likewise come to stay. If the local government will declare that their revenue requirements have also come to stay and that the lumber industry must bear the extra burden, the end is not difficult or far to see.

chereau was assisted by his throne, Mgr. Power on his right and Father Tielon, of the Redemptorist Order, at his left. The musical portion of the mass, which was by Cherubini, was exceptionally good. A very large band and orchestra supported the voices in addition to the organ, and the principal solos were taken by Miss Tessier of Montreal, and Miss O'Brien, of this city.

THE SERMON.

The sermon was preached by Mgr. Groulx, Bishop of Nicolet, and was an eloquent discourse upon the candidate, breathing at the same time a devout spirit of filial obedience to the Holy See and gratitude to the sovereign Pontiff for the honor conferred by him upon the French Canadian people in the elevation of Mgr. Taschereau to the cardinalate. The preacher referred to the sublime dignity of being called upon to act as an assistant to the Vicar of Jesus Christ, and to assume the blood colored robes, which remind the wearer of his high mission to defend, even with his own blood the Church of which he agrees to become one of the supreme governors. He reminded the congregation that the members of the College of Cardinals were recruited from the elite of mankind, from the most brilliant lights of the Church and called to be an assembly of kings in the spiritual government of the world.

CONFERRING THE BERETTA.

The solemn edict, The Papal Ablegate presented the edict passed in the Roman consistory appointing Cardinal Taschereau which was read in Latin and French by the secretary of His Eminence, Rev. Abbe Marois. The proclamation of His Eminence as Cardinal, signed by the Papal Secretary of State was read by Mgr. O'Brien in Latin, followed by French and English translations. The Ablegate then addressed His Eminence in both the French and English languages, informing him that the Holy Father had been pleased to appoint the Archbishop of Toronto to confer the beretta, and adding—"Your elevation to the dignity of a cardinal is a personal honor. It is an evidence of his admiration and esteem with which His Holiness regards you. The universal eye of the Holy Father has not failed to note the zeal which you have displayed in your holy mission, your piety and learning, your devotion to souls and your life-long labors in behalf of the Catholic Church. He has also manifested his love for Canada and for the two great nations which in this country are the main upholders of the Roman Catholic Church—the chivalrous nation from which you yourself have sprung, the other that Celtic race whose sons have spread the Catholic faith in all the quarters of the globe. The two are here one body in the Church of God, one in mind and in heart. It is with the greatest of pleasure that I now hand over to His Grace of Toronto the Pontifical authority to place upon your head the beretta of a cardinal."

CONFERRING THE BERETTA.

Archbishop of Taschereau and His Eminence advanced together to the foot of the altar, with the beretta was also escorted by the garde noble of His Holiness, when Mgr. Lynch lifted it from the altar, and without further ceremony, crowned the Cardinal. His Eminence then withdrew, accompanied by the principal dignitaries present, to be fully invested with his scarlet robes of office. When His Eminence returned to the sanctuary fully robed the Te Deum was sung. The effect was most impressive. The splendid choir led and the whole congregation joined in the joyful refrain, evolving a volume of melody which was heart stirring in its effect.

BLESSING THE POPULACE.

The venerable Cardinal proceeded down the church and ascended the balcony erected for the purpose in front of the sacred edifice. An enormous crowd had waited there for two long hours, and His Eminence appeared he found himself gazing upon a sea of upturned faces completely filling the open square. As the Cardinal raised his hands the vast multitude, moved by a common impulse of piety, relapsed into a silence which was markedly impressive, and devoutly knelt, where they stood, while the newly elevated prince of the Church in a loud voice bestowed the apostolic benediction upon all present. As His Eminence concluded, the impressive silence was broken by a salvo of artillery proclaiming that Cardinal Taschereau had assumed the full honors and responsibilities of his new office.
