trade which the high tariffs had created. Taking up Mr. Fairweather's remarks as to the relative progress of Maine and New Brunswick, Mr Ellis sought to prove that, whatever the reason, Maine had treble the value of our province. Said Mr Ellis: The population of Maine in 1880 was 648,885, of which 58,833 were foreign born. Of these foreign born 36,624 were Canadians, and of the Canadians 13,955 were from New Brunswick. Then, look at the rapid manner in which that state is reducing its indebtedness. In 1870 the net bonded state debt of Maine, less cash in sinking fund, was $7,128,370, while on January 1st, 1884, it had been reduced to $3,775,338. On the other hand New Brunswick has increased its debt to $2,000,000 in that time. Mr. Ellis also went into figures a fact that under our protective at some length to show that the town, city and county indeptedness of Maine was also being reduced at a rapid rate. than the value of their total output. The indebtedness of St. John County Mr. Ellis then proceeded to argue that was some $46,000, or one-half that of all the county debt of Maine. Mr. Fairweather had put the city debt of Portland Me., at $137 per capita, and St. John's city debt at $100 per capita. Our debt was hard to get at, on account of the manner in which the sewerage and water account is kept, in relation to 1883..... 3,198,000 the city proper and the territory between us and the river at Indiantown, but he (Ellis) assumed that including our share of the school debt and other liabilities St. John owed fully $3,000, 000. Turning to the property and wealth of the neighboring state, Mr. Ellis said Maine had in 1884 72 national banks with a capital of $10,635,000, while the taxable value of property in that year was: Real estate, $156,854,315 290,000 have dropped to $2,365,000 in and personal, $63,279,117-a total taxable value of $226,496,771. Then, taking up the question of capital invested in industries, Mr. Ellis said Maine had Invested in cotton goods...

So that, said Mr. Ellis, in every way one takes it there is no parallel between the industrial condition and wealth of Maine and that of New Brunswick. So much for Mr. Fairweather's remarks about the industrial and business enterprises of Maine. Passing on, Mr. Ellis next took up the increase of savings bank deposits, which he said had been used to show the measure of New Brunswick's prosperity, and which would apply across the line with equal fairness. The deposits were:
