The Thought-Reader of Angels. REPORTED BY TRUTHFUL JAMES. (Bret Harte in Harper's Weekly.) We hev tumbled ez dust.

Or ez worms of the yarth ; Wot we looked for hez bust ! We are objects of mirth . They hev played us, -olt pards of the river !-They hev played us for all we was worth! Was it euchre or draw. Cut us off in our bloom

Was it faro, whose law Is onsartin ez doom? Or an innocent 'Jack pot' that opened-Was to us ez the jaws of the tomb? It was nary. It kera With some sharps from the States, Ez folks sez, 'All things kem To the fellers ez waits; And we'd waited six months for that suthin !

- Had me and Bill Nye-in such straits: And it kem. It was small; It was dream-like and weak It were store clothes-thats all That we knew so to speak . But it called itself 'Bilson thought-reader,'
Which ain't half a name for its cheek. He could read wot you thought, And he knew wot you aid; He could find things untaught,

No matter whar hid; And he went at it blind-fold and smiling, Being led by the hand, like a kid. Then I glanced at Bill Nye, And I sez, without pride, 'You'll excuse us We've nigh Onto nothin' to hide But if some gent will lend us a twenty

We'll hide it whar folks shall decide."

It was Bilson's own self Who forked over the gold With a smile "Thar's the pelf," He remarked; "I make bold To advance it, and go twenty better That I'll find it without being told." Then I passed it to Nye, Who repassed it to me, And we bandaged each eye Of that Bilson-ez we Softly dropped that com in his coat pocket, Ez the hull crowd around us could see.

That was all, He'd one hand
Locked in mine Then he groped
We could not understand
Why that minnit Nye sloped,
For we knew we'd the dead thing on Bilson—
Even more than we dreamed of or hoped. For he stood thar in doubt, With his hand to his head; Then he turned, and lit out Through the door where Nye fled ; Draggin'me and the rest of usarter,

While we larfed till we thought we was dead, Till he overtook Nye And went through him, words fail For what follers! Kin I Paint our agonized wail Ez he drew from Nye's po ket that twenty Wot we'd sworn was in his own coat-tail And it was! But, when found, It proved bogus and brass And the question goes round How the thing kem to pass : Or, if passed, was it passed than by William?
And I listens, and echoes "Alas!" For the days when the skill Of the keerds was no blind, When no effort of will Could beat four of a kind! When the thing wot you held in your hand pard Was worth more than the thing in your mind!
