What My Lover Said.

By the merest chance, in the twilight gloom, In the orchard path he met me-In the tall, wet grass, with its faint perfume, And I tried to pass, but he made no room; Oh! I tried, but he would no let me. So I stood and blushed till the grass grew red, With my face bent down above it, While he took my hand, as he whispering said How the clover lifted its pink, sweet head, To listen to all that my lover said ! Oh! the clover in bloom-I love it!

In the high, wet grass went the path to hide, And the low, wet leaves hurry over ; But I could not pass on either side, For I found myself, when I vainly tried, In the arms of my steadfast lover ; And he held me there and he raised my head While he closed the path before me : And he looked down into mine eyes and said-How the leaves bent down from the boughs o'er-To listen to all that my lover said.

Oh! the leaves hanging lowly o'er me. Had he moved aside but a little way I could surely then have passed bim; And he knew I could never wish to stay, And would not have heard what he had to say, Could I only aside have cast him. t was almost dark, and the moments sped, And the searching night wind found us; But he drew me nearer and softly said-How the pure, sweet wind grew still instead, To listen to all that my lover said. Oh! the whispering wind around us !

am sure that he knew when he held me fast That I must be all unwilling; For I tried to go, and would have passed, As the night was come with its dew at last, And the sky with its stars was filling; But he clasped me close when I would have fle l, And he made me hear his story; And his soul came out from his lips and said-How the stars crept out when the white moor

To listen to all that my tover said, Oh! the moon and stars in glory! I know that the grass and leaves will not tell, And I'm sure that the wind, precious rover, Will carry his secret so safely and well That no being shall ever discover One word of the many that rapidly fell From the eager lips of my lover And the moon and stars that looked over Shall never reveal what a fairy-like spell They wove round about us that night in the In the path through the dew-laden clover; Nor echo the whispers that made my heart swell, As they fell from the lips of my lover.
