Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is sold all over the world. It is far superior to plain Cod Liver Oil, palatable and easily digested. Dr. Martin Miles Stanton, Bury Bucks, London, England, says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion and taken it myself. It is palatable, efficient, and can be tolerated by almost anyone, especially where cod liver oil itself cannot be borne. Put up in 50c. and $1 size."

Loss and Gain. "I was taken sick a year ago with bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides and I got so bad I could not move!"

I shrunk! From 228 lbs. to 120! I have been doctoring for 73 years. The loss of weight I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life."

Miramichi Advance.

Bless the Farmer Boy. A character often written about in fishing stories is the barefooted, tanned and freckled farmer's boy: that very chap I saw coming toward me as I was peering through the bushes to find a place where I could put my flies. His twinkling eyes seemed to be comparing my trim lance-wood rod with his birch pole, and the silk waterproof line with the cotton cord that the wind was whipping in the air. He watched me as I cast in the riffles; and chuckled as he saw my line come back empty so often. He thought to himself, "I can beat that, and he did!"

Going back to the edge of the slashing, he threw in his line, it hardly touched the water when he shouted, "Look ere, will yer?" and a nice trout I saw dangling at the end of his cord. Not only one but four times did he do it, and that, too, in the very waters I had so carefully fished.

Bless the farmer boy! Under his slouched hat is ten times more wood lore than many of us possess. He can tell you as the warm spring days come where the pheasant is building her nest; how many eggs the quail had yesterday down in the tangled weeds in the old pasture lot; he cannot tell you the name, but he knows the brown bird with spotted breast sitting yonder. In the deep shadows of the woods it sings a sweet song that softly echoes among the great trees like the tinkling of silver bells, while he sits on the moss-covered rock and listens until the old road he hastens home to dream of the dark woods and green meadows, of the foaming waters that rush by the great rocks, of the deep, quiet pool, barred over with shadows of the alders and where the trout hide away. Bless the farmer boy! --Forest and Stream.

Tennis Dresses. The prettiest tennis fashions are white or white striped with a pale shade of another color. However, dresses made of these delicate tints are best suited for occasional wear, a tennis set and a city game being sufficient to ruin their freshness. For the country, where the regulation hours for these negligé toilets are from 7 in the morning until the 5 o'clock tea or dinner, darker flannels are preferable. A pretty dress has a kilt skirt of dark blue flannel with a white blouse, and loose jacket of blue, to be worn when needed. Another model is of dainty blue and white flannel, with a kilt skirt; the white blouse has a blue sailor collar, and is held at the waist by a sash of plain blue wool material. The sash is tied in front, and is finished on the ends with blue and white tassels. There are many other modes of making tennis dresses besides the plain skirts and blouse waists, but none of them are as pretty or serve their purpose as well as this simple and comfortable manner.
