It is a sixteen pager, although it ought to be called twenty, for the cover contains advertisements valuable to the farmer, and the title-page is original and attractive. It is not a catch-penny periodical, but a well -dedited farmers' guide, equal in many respects to similiar first class publications in Canada and the United States, and it deserves the support of the farmers generally. It is only a dollar a year.

Our village has been visited by quite a number of people from Maine and also some from Boston. They seem to be having a good time, driving around visiting friends and relatives, fishing and boating on the river. Last week a party of 4 ladies and one gentleman who went sailing a short distance below the Bridge. became quite sportive, splashing water on each other and rocking the boat, which resulted in an upset. The day being warm, they enjoyed the ducking very much and all got ashore amidst much laughing and shouting. All being guests of Mrs. Attridge, they were soon in eleven of them, viz., 4 cornets, 3 bass dry apparel, none the worse of the wetting.

The R. E. Church and its Ministry.

The belligerent spirit of a certain class of Christian leaders of the present day, is not calculated to lessen the dispositi on of skeptical enquirers as to the pretensions of the system they represent. In our issue of 8th inst., we published the following item of news:

CONVERSION :- The conversion to the Church of England is announced of the Rev. Mr. Hurley, late pastor of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Moncton. Mr. Hurley was highly esteemed in that place for his qualities and gifts. Upon his change of faith he resigned his posi tion, and is now assisting the Revd. J. M. DEAR SIR :- Your editorial in last Thursday's issue, in which you refer Every week brings back someone who to ministers leaving the Reformed Episco pal Church; so largely lacks the elements of truth, that I am constrained to point out where your informant has misled you, into making false representations public. Rev. Mr. Hurley is a gentleman of whom, during my short acquaintence, formed a very high opinion; but it is contrary to facts, to represent him as leaving the ministry of the R. E. Church. He never was duly accepted into the ministry of that Church. His name was never its Clergymen's Roll. It is true that he was engaged by the congregation at Moncton to minister to them with a view of extending to him a call to the pastorate, if mutually agreable; but that his qual on Thursday next 29th inst. There will ities and gifts were highly esteemed by the congregation may be questioned, from the fact that he did not resign his position (as you have stated), but was dismissed by an unanimous vote of the vestry as assembled. For the present we leave him to think breast of a gentleman—I suppose he is a gentleman—signing himself "W.," who immediately rushed into print, and this is his contribution to the Times :

As an item in to day's issue respecting the Rev-Mr. Hurley's connection with the Reformed Episcopal church is somewhat misleading, permit me to state that he was never admitted into the ministry of the Reformed Episcopal church, nor appeared in its clergy list He simply officiated for six months in St. Paul's here, as supply, under license from the bishop, and as the congregation did not renew the engagement, his connection did not renew the engagement, his connection with the R E. We will insist, however, upon his bestowing his belligerent attentions elsewhere than in the sole direction of the ADVANCE, for he may expect what he deserves at our hands every time he attacks us.

Because we could not conveniently publish Rev. Mr. Hubly's letter until this week Mr. Cuthbert gladly made of the fact an opportunity to have his 'second round" at the editor. He says, "It is strange to say he had not the decency of a gentleman to correct his error in the next issue? Of course the mistake was not intentional. No unworthy motive could actuate him."

Now we submit that this kind language is entirely uncalled for, under the circumstances. It is not the language of a gentleman or christian, much less of a clergyman. Mr. Cuthbert put the worst possible construction upon the non-Rev. If he remains here and is continued in the position of a pastor, he will have to acquire better manners as well as better judgment than he has displayed in singling out the editor of this paper as the object of his malevolence. If he must call names and look about for someone to fight with, he should seek a person more like himself in both age and taste, for, while we have average patience and consideration with and for almost all kinds of people, we may be tempted to disregard the fact that Mr. Cuthbert is a clergyman and administer a rebuke that will enforce a much needed lesson which he has evidently not yet learnproved sufficient to raise a storm in the over his conduct towards us, and hope he will realize that making unmerited public attacks upon others is not quite becoming in a clergyman, especially one so young, and who has so much to learn as he has He should pray for the charity that thinketh no evil and against the sin of presumption.
