ROUGH VOYAGE TO P. E. ISLAND.

Courtesy of the Canadian Editors-The Annexation Sentiment Hard to Find-Lieutenant Governor McLelan-Premier W. S. Fielding and Speaker Power. I must not leave Nova Scotia without some acknowledgment of the many courtesies received. The Canadian Press Association (most of the editors in it are located in Oni tario) made its two days' visit to Halifax during my stay, and the Halifax editors kindly elected me a member thereof pro tempore and entitled to share in the hospitalities extended. These included an excursion on the harbor in a steam yacht, an inspection of the Bellerophon, as re-noon's drive about the city and suburbs and a supper at the hotel on the Northwest Arm. It was a pleasure to note that all the speeches which followed the supper were brimming with patriothoarseness, asthma, bronchitis, croup ism, and that every editor seemed to feel his regularly for all such troubles during And this naturally leads me to consider the lestion: Is there any considerable "annexation sentiment" in Canada?

I can only answer that if there is, they succeeded admirably in concealing it from me. I met just one ardent annexationist in Nova Scotia-a lady of middle age, born and reared in Maine, married to an Acadian. I should not consider her a type. They did. however, tell me that there was a strong "annexation sentiment" further west; but the further I traveled the more I saw that it was likt the "milk sickness" in the Wabash valley-"None of it here, O no, certainly not; but it's almighty bad in some of the lower townships." I might some impressed me was the verve and enthusiasm with which all the intellectual classes-those who may be supposed to influence public opinion—spoke of the future of Canada.

It reminded me very much of the current talk in Georgia and Alabama in 1880-86. when the white people first began to feel that their own hands, and that they had the material ground work to build on. One did hair. There is an "opposition," of course; there are radical differences as to the best way to "build up Canvery strong sentiment in favor of freer trade relations; but that Canada is to choose her own course, develop her own character and work out her own destiny, is, I am sure, the sentiment of an immense majority. I am particularly struck with the fact that this feeling is not bounded by race. The Irish are, if possible, more enthusiastic Canadians than those of English blood, and the Scotch Catholics most enthusiastic of all. This seems very strange to one familiar with the attitude of the Irish in the United States, and of course a chance traveler may be badly mistaken; but there is no discord in the sound that comes to my ears. Thomas D'Arcy he entered public & McGee, for instance, is regarded by men of life. I am sure he all races as a sort of martyr to Canadian has a latent humor nationality, and though he was a "Young | which would evolve" Ireland" agitator in his native land, no one | sparkling parain Canada thinks of raking up the events of graphs, joined to 1848-50 in weighing his public services. He an executive ability was an ardent Canadian-that is sufficient, which would "keep" tional Pantheon. Similarly the governor (styled lieutenant governor) of Prince Edward's Island, Hon. A. A. Macdonald, is of pure Gaelic-Scotch blood, and the premier,

Everyof closer trade relations with the United thing about the government is very solid States, a willingness to concede much for both men and buildings, and the governor concessions in return, and I venture to guess, looks and lives like the representative of a as a Hoosier Yankee may, that this sentiment great monarch. The Catholics, by the way, will prevail over "the government," as they have a plurality of voters in the province, call the men in power at the time. As to and I am almost persuaded that there is more cannot do better than to set it forth in the I were "in the swim" the case might look words of an Ontario editor, on a religious PROVINCIAL BUILDING. "God has given us this cold Northland, as you call it, for his purposes, and they involve character as well as success; yet he has given fertile virgin land awaiting the settler, besides all her timber, shipping and fisheries. We strive to realize the purposes for which this land was given us.

"You say we appear to you a very serious people, and I think you will find among all our sects the same feeling, that we are here for duty rather than happiness. Yes, we are a serious people, and we have set ourselves seriously to the task of making a great nation. There is abundant room in Canada for a nation of forty million people, and we trust they will be an earnest and God fearing people, respecting themselves and their neighbors. We do not underrate the greatness of the United States but we claim some advanthe United States, but we claim some advantages in general character and steadiness of purpose. 'Fear God and honor the king!' is a divine command we do not profess to have outgrown. We have all the liberty we want, and a government that responds readily to the will of the people. But we feel—at least I feel, and those associated with me—that we can best develop character by maintaining our present relations; and, after all, character is the thing. I believe we have the right foundation for it, the right stock, and are on the right road. I feel to say with the old "Man is the nobler growth our realms supply, And souls are ripened by our northern sky." At this point it is fitting to relieve the dullness of a purely personal narrative by inserting some racy and entertaining statistics. Nova Scotia is 275 miles long and 100 miles wide, in greatest extension; but Cape Breton is 110 miles in greatest length, which must be added. The whole province has an area of 20,907 square miles, and had, by the last census, 440,572 people. Of these 117,487 are ranked as Roman Catholics, 112,477 as Presbyterians, 60,255 as Church of England and 50,780 as Methodists. The rest are like Billy the province, and 40,065 of German blood; of its fore flippers is over ten feet. the rest, the Scotch elements have a majority.

northern states. The average of education is very high.

There is no census of illiterates, and I heard of none. Last year nearly 85,000 children were in the free schools, with some 2,000 teachers; every denomination has its colleges. Dalhousie, at Halifax, is the university for the province, and the normal school, at Truro, is maintained in great efficiency. The cost of good living is certainly not more than half what it is in Brooklyn (where I "stay" at present), the chief saving being in rent, fuel, fish, potatoes and small fruits. So I must say that Nova Scotia would be a nice place to educate a boy or place a family for a long

There are communities as Gaelic as any part of Invernesshire in the last century, and others more Calvinistic than John Knox; there are little interior valleys where one may breathe the very air and live the very homely home life of Scotland's midland shires; there are mining villages where one may meet Hugh Miller's characters at every turn, and dairy farms with every charm which poets have attributed to pastoral life. No part of the maritime provinces will better repay the tourist for a fortnight's visit than Cape Breton

On the mainland (if one may so call the peninsula) a disappointment awaited me. The great Pictou coal mine cannot now be inspected. It is the largest coal seam in the world-a seam thirty feet thick; but many years ago there was an explosion and a fire. The mine was therefore flooded, and the restoration is not yet completed. At Stellarton, where I halted a day, is the great twelve foot seam, on which work is actively prosecuted. All the big coal seams of this section have considerable slope, some as much as 45 degs., and rooted in the "floor" of the mine are often found fossil stumps of the sigillaria from six to eighteen inches thick. It is claimed that the coal measures of Nova Scotia cover 7,000 square miles, but of course less than half of this area contains profitably orkable coal. I need not recite the local arguments, seeing that they are much the same in all coal regions, but Nova Scotia is certainly a good place to investigate coal seams for science and pleasure.

The conclusion of the whole matter may be thus set down: One-third of Nova Scotia consists of very fertile valleys, in which are produced in great abundance nearly all the fruits, roots and grains of the temperate zone: another third is of some value for stazing, and the remainder is wilderness. An important suff is that from any valley one may turn aside and in an hour's walking be in a primeval wilderness where moose and black bears are still found, and out of the hills flow many streams in which trout are still abundant. Government in Nova Scotia, as in all the dominion, is "responsible"-that is, the cabinet officers, the executive and directing department, must be of the same politics with the majority in the house of commons. If a "government measure" is defeated they resign. This will hardly be believed in some parts of the United States, but it is a solemn fact. It seems to me that such a system would work badly in the United States and make havoc in France; but the British (including Canadians, Australians, etc.) secure for it-it was in the conservatism by habit and precedents in stead of rigid rules. The governor—called lieutenant governor because he is regarded as the "lieutenant" of the governor general of Canada-is not "a part of the government," is appointed and does not resign. Lieutenant Governor McLelan, with whom had a long and interesting talk, is a most courtly and dignified gentleman, well informed on the affairs of Canada and the United States, and pleasantly enthusiastic as to the future of Canada. Premier Fielding,

"head of the govly was designed by nature for a great managing editor. I felt as soon as I journalism had sustained a loss when
