itime Provinces.

An Exciting Sham Battle-Halifax Theoretically Attacked and the Enemy Repulsed-Ideal and Real Geology-Nova Scotia's Involved Strata. August opened with a great stir in military and naval circles, for the midsummer carnival was on; the great British war vessel Bellerophon lay some time in the harbor and was joined by others. Two French men-ofwar also came in, and there were extensive preparations for a great sham battle, review and naval display. By the courtesy of the local press, I spent some hours on the Bellerophon-the officers pronounce this Beller-ophon and the sailors call it the "Billy Rufflan"—and it was almost a liberal education before the Parnell commission last Thurs- in that line. The vessel is 330 foot long and manned by over 400 sailors and marines, besides the officers; and all ranks received our editorial party and conducted us over the vessel with a deference and courtesy which confirmed the statement of many writers that the British navy is the home of gentlemen. As to the carnival, has it not already been described a dozen times? The most exciting part of it to me was the battle, the marines attempting to land under the protecting fire of their gunboats, the heavy shore batteries answering the bombardment and the red coats, posted for two miles along the hills, repulsing the marines, the thunder of the sea echoed from the hills and the echo mingled with the crash of shore batteries, the signal corps telegraphing from all commanding points, and on the highest hill Sir John Ross directing the defense-it was really quite exciting. And when a "retreat" was sounded from the gunboats and the launches turned and rapidly carried the marines out of rifle range, it was so much like beating off a real enemy that the onlooking thousands raised a cheer which sounded for miles over the green slopes and granite cliffs, and wild hilarious joy swelled the hearts of the Haligonians. By the way, why "Haligonian?" The etymology of the name seems obscure, and in

"Acadian" was too general-it includnot only the whole province, but all eastern New Brunswick as well. So they took the next letter after the f of Halif-, and invented the word Haligonian. Judge Haliburton, "Sam Slick, the Clockmaker," the Hon. Jesse M. Bowell died yesterday best humorist the province has ever produced, made it popular, and it is now proudly worn. "Acadie" is the Micmac Indian for "abundance," "plenty of," and is the termination of many local names in the two provinces, as Shubenacadie-"plenty of roots," that valley being noted for potatoes.

The Nova Scotians are not a humorous people. I might say they are a very serious people indeed. Though there is much culture, many fine libraries and several good writers-indeed, there are several histories of the province as good as many of our states can boast of-there has been but one noted humorist, the author of "Sam Slick," and his humor is now considered rather heavy. I have heard it maintained that the seriousness was due to the climate, but I laid it to the race until I found on inquiry that it is exceedingly difficult to tell just what race did settle Nova Scotia. It seems to have been settled slowly by the remnants of many peoples and factions. First the "planted French," then the Acadian colonists, and after them the superannuated fishermen from Newfoundland; then the British got the country and brought exiled Germans of the Palatinate, the remnants of dened soured dyspeptic, or the bilious billionaire suffer, despite their wealth. Burdock Blood Bitters is a rather the old wars, and discharged soldiers and of ficers retired on half pay, and last of all came some 14,000 American Tories, and more than doubled the population of the province in a year. All fused readily into one homogeneous people except the Highland Scotch, located on Cape Breton Island. They remain sepsays an English syndicate is after all the arate and apart to this day, and so furnish material for Dudley Warner's "Baeddeck and C. B. Ryan, of Ingersoll, Ont., as agent Nova Scotia live well and enjoy robust That Sort of Thing." The people in rural health, are most hospitable and cerem ly polite, but they do not joke, and if one perpetrates the average American witticism in their company they stare inquiringly for a moment, and then glance at each other as if to ask, "What does the gentleman mean?" Of all the people in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick none strike the American visitor with such painful surprise as the negroes—or, rather, the "colored," for they are shaded down considerably. They have been free from 50 to 150 years, and have had all the privileges of British subjects. They received the same land grants, stock and rations as there is no prejudice on account of color. Here then, one would say, there should be fine results. They are, in fact, far, far inferior to the average of their race in the States, and the descendants of those who came in 1783 are rather the poorest of the lot. The negroes of middle Georgia excel them as far as the white Aryan of Boston excels the brown Aryan of Hindostan. The life of some of their settlements cannot be portrayed When slavery was abolished in the British West Indies there was a Maroon rebellion in Jamaica, headed by a talented black called King Cudjoe. The British prevailed on him and his army of 500 to surrender and brought them to Nova Scotia. Many of them soon went to Liberia and finally returned to Jamaica; the others located at a place now called "Maroon Hill." I visited their settlement, but shall not venture to describe it. In all our southern country I know of but two places to compare with it. Another settlement a few miles away was described by the rector of the parish as so very bad that he begged me not to go near it. On the other hand, the "Lucas Settlement," of negroes from Virginia and North Carolina, brought after the war of 1812-15, is almost an average. I fancy that the climate has depressed the African nature—taken all their native LIME & COAL. gayety without implanting British energy.

practical and so little theory. And, by the way, I think the average citizen, not deeply rooted or grounded in the matter, is suspicious of fossils—there is so much speculation to one stone rib. Despite all the scientists have written and said, there is still a very extensive skepticism as to the science, and the or-A Yankee in the Canadian Mardinary citizen thinks that if those horrible creatures with ponderous names ending in "don" and "saurus" really did exist, it must have been at an era when the Creator was letting creation run itself and nature was i OF THE MIDSUMMER CARNIVAL. a chronic state of delirium tremens.

FALLS OF THE TARTAGUE RIVER. It is all very well for Mr. Waterhouse Hawkins to "reconstruct" a pre-adamite monster from one solitary jawbone or fragmental vertebræ, and to tell us with the cool assurance of an eyewitness how the ichthyosaur and the deinosaur, the pleiosaur and the enaliosaur swam and fished and fought and died, and were succeeded by the oreodon and the glyptodon, the mylodon, the iguanodon and all the rest of the dons. But if we must want at least to be dead sure of the rib or the swbone or the fossil footprint, whichever it is. No manufactured fossils, if you please. If we are to re-translate Moses on the testimony of the rocks, let us not have the track of an Alabama nigger shoved on us as the trail of a Labyrinthotechnodont or the petrified ear of a Chicago detective exposed as the gill flap of an Elasmosaurian. Such, I am sure, though imperfectly expressed, is the feeling of the average man; so let us give Nova Scotia fossils the go by and deal with her rocks and minerals.

The tourist with only an elementary knowledge of geology is at first confused in Nova Scotia. The whole rock system appears to be without plan or order. At Halifax, let us say, he finds himself on a ridge of bowlders resting on the hard old archæan; a few miles north he finds a sudden and surprising change; schistose rocks appear; there are indications of gold, and from there to the northwestern shore all is apparent confusion.

There are forests in which heavy bowlders stand among the trees, from the size of the | SALT RHEUN ordinary "niggerhead" to that of a country | HEARTBURN church, and valleys where the rich black | HEADACHE, earth conceals all signs of rock. One side of such a valley is crystalline limestone or slate. and on the other a softer rock; here and there reefs of "splitting rock" come in, and the observer is assured that "this is a rich mineral region-it only lacks development." And as a matter of statistical fact Nova Scotia did last year produce $440,000 in gold, the average being $2.70 for each day's work. Of course, all those locally interested insist that this is only a proof of what can be and ought to be done: "The mines would yield splendid returns to capital if they were worked to-gether and systematically."

When, however, the observer has crossed the peninsula at two or three points he finds that under the apparent disorder there is a charming order; it may best be expressed in the popular local phrase: "The strata are set on edge." In crossing the province from southeast to northwest one travels over the outcrop of all the formations from archæan granite and fire distilled flint to the latest drift. To map this out let the reader take a jelly cake of many layers as a representative of the strata in their original order; then bend it till it breaks along the center, throw away the one half and let the other half (nearly perpendicular) represent the strata of the province. And if it were not so there would be no Nova Scotia; for if the strata had remained nearly horizontal the top would have gone long ago and the ocean would have rolled hundreds of feet above what is now the very crest of the peninsula. As it is, the unyielding archæan of the southwest coast stands out against the Atlantic at a slope of perhaps ten or twenty degrees from the perpendicular—just the slope for most effective resistance. On this the waves have hammered and gnawed for uncounted millenniums till all the soft parts are eaten away; and all that shore consists of bold, rocky headlands and capacious harbors with narrow inlets. And some local savants maintain that the ocean but lately flowed through some passages across the peninsula which are now fertile valleys. Going across the peninsula, northwest, one crosses rapidly all the geologic ages, and the crosses rapidly all the geologic ages, and the northwest shore has a comparatively moder ate slope. There the rich pastures incline Free To New Subscribers. gently to the very edge of the bay; at high tide the green sward actually seems to hang of 1890. over into the salt water, and from the deck of a vessel the view is indeed enchanting.

Address 'The Empire,' Toronto, Ont. Where the hills recede and inclose a low tract, which high tide would submerge, are the noted dyke lands. The low embankments shut out the sea, but at stated times the floodgates are opened, the salt water spreads over the land, carrying fertility, as is so charmingly described in "Evangeline," and the soil is renewed. But if one would see the section of Nova Scotia where nature has other settlers of 1783, etc., and we have always been told that among English people section of Nova Scotia where nature has done her perfect work he must go to Cape Breton Island. There all possible elements of interest are combined. The sea has torn away all the yielding rocks and left a coast of bold sublimity. Only the best protected coal seams remain, and they are scientifically perfect. The shore is all deep harbor and bold headland. The topography is alternately rugged and picturesque, while the people are quite as primitive as the land and far more interesting.
