GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS

As a rule a man's fool; when it's hot he will do anything, when it's cool he wants it hot; always wanting what is not.—Canadian Commercial.

Farty Politics.
When party politics run high, bad feeling and bad blood are often caused. All parties agree that when bad blood arises from ordinary causes the only satisfactory cure is Burdock Blood Bitters, nature's blood purifier. Recommended by the medical profession.

Only a Sister.
"My sister and I each tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters with great success for bilious headache. We recommend it to all as a specific for headache."
Mrs. CAROL SCHNEIDER, Baden, Ont.

History of 15 Years.
FOR fifteen years we have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a family medicine for summer complaints and diarrhoea, and we never had anything to equal it. We highly recommend it.
SAMUEL WEBB, Corbett, Ont.

Trouble at Melita.
A despatch from the City of Mexico says negotiations for a peace between Guatemala and San Salvador are progressing favorably.

The Boct of Evil.
Dyspepsia and constipation are the source of various diseases, but root and branch may be removed by using Burdock Blood Bitters according to directions. It is endorsed by the press, the public and the profession, and cannot be excelled for the cure of constipation, dyspepsia and all diseases arising therefrom.

Chicago's population is set down at 1,098,576, or 53,682 more than that of Philadelphia.

The Liquidators of the Panama Canal Company report that the total expenditure has been $202,000 and the assets on March 3rd were $3,200,000.

Much injury is done by the use of irritating, gripping compounds taken as purgatives. In Ayer's Pills, the patient has a mild but effective cathartic, that can be confidently recommended alike for the most delicate patients as well as the most robust.

President Celman's resignation was accepted by the Argentine Parliament after some debate, and the people of Buenos Ayres seem to have regarded Pellegrini's advancement with satisfaction.

A Wonderful flesh Producer.
This is the title given to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil by many thousands who have taken it. It not only gives flesh and strength by virtue of its own nutritious properties, but creates an appetite for food. Use it and try your weight. Scott's Emulsion is perfect for saleable. Sold by all Druggists, at 50c. $1.00.

THE KEY TO HEALTH.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Unlocks all the clogged avenues of the Bowels. Eases and cures, carrying off gradually without weakening the system, all the impurities and foul humors of the secretions at the same time. Corrects Acidity of the Stomach, curing Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Headaches, Dizziness, Heartburn, Constipation, Dryness of the Skin, Dropsy, Dimness of Vision, Jaundice, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Fluctuating of the Heart, Nervousness, and General Debility; all these and many other similar Complaints yield to the happy influence of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

STANLEY'S CREAM BOOK.
"In Darkest Africa."

Having accepted the agency of the above work for the County of Northumberland, I beg to state that it is sold only by me and is the latest book written by Stanley and the original and genuine work which certain unscrupulous publishers are endeavoring to imitate and deceive the public with. It is published by Charles Scribner's Sons and will be issued in July through the Erie Publishing House of St. John, who are the general agents for the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland.

The public are especially warned against spurious Stanley books, as called, now being offered to purchasers and ordered by the vendors to be any one wishing to see a sample copy of the book may do so by sending me a postal card notice to that effect.

THE STRANGE OCCURRENCES IN CANTERSTONE JAIL.

Major Hardinge remained in the jail that night. He stayed in the governor's house as Mr. Paley's guest. He expressed himself very strongly about the events of the day.

"I'll see the thing through if it takes me a week. The whole affair is incredible to me. It strikes me, Paley, that they've been making a fool of you."

The governor combed his hair with his fingers. His official manner had temporarily gone. He seemed depressed.

"I assure you the doors were locked. Of course the doors were locked, and they used the wrong keys to open them! It was a got-up thing."

"Not by the officers."
"By whom then? I don't see how the prisoners could have let a hand."

"I know the officers, and I will answer for them, every man. As for the wrong keys being used, I know the keys as well as any one. I tried them, and not a lock would yield to them."

"But they did yield. What explanation have you to give of that?"
"I wish I could explain." And again the governor combed his hair.

"I'll have an explanation to-morrow—you see I don't!" But the major never did.

On the morrow, punctually at 6 a. m., an imposing procession started to unlock. There were the inspector, governor, chief warden, second warden, and the warden who carried the keys.

"I don't think we shall have much difficulty in getting the men out of their cells this time," remarked the major. They did not. "Good—good God!" he muttered, when they reached the corridor; "what—what on earth's the meaning of this?" He had predicted rightly. They would have no difficulty in getting the men out of their cells: they were out already—men, and bedding, and planks, and all. There was a man fast asleep in bed in front of each cell door.

"I thought I had given instructions that a special watch was to be kept all night," the major roared.

"So there has been," answered the chief warden, whose head and face and neck were purple. "Warder Slater here has just gone off duty. Now, then Slater, what's the meaning of this?"

"I don't know," protested Slater, whose mountain of flesh seemed quivering like jelly. "It's not a minute ago since I went to get my keys, and they were all inside their cells when I went down."

"Who let them out, then?"
The major glared at him, incredulity in every line of his countenance.

"I don't know. I'll swear it wasn't me."
"I suppose they let themselves out, then. You men?"

Although this short dialogue had been conducted by no means sotto voce, the noise did not seem to have had the slightest effect in rousing the prisoners out of slumber. Even when the major called to them they gave no sign.

"You men!" he shouted again; "it's no good shamming Abraham with me!" He stopped to shake the man who was lying on the plank at his feet. "Good—good God! The—the—man's not dead!"

"Dead!" cried the governor, kneeling by the major's side upon the stones. The sleeper was very still. He was a man of some forty years of age, with nut brown tangled hair and beard. It was not a short-sentence man, he was still in the early stages of his term—for he lay on the bare boards of the plank with the rug, blanket and sheet wrapped closely round him, so that they might take, as far as possible, the shape of the cot mattress, which was of comfort. The bed was not a bed of comfort, yet his sleep was sound—strangely sound. If he breathed at all it was so lightly as to be inaudible.

On his face was that dazed, strained expression which we sometimes see on the faces of those who, without a moment's warning, have been suddenly visited by death.

"I don't think he's dead," the governor said. "He seems to be in some sort of trance. What's the man's name?"

"Hitchcock. He's one of the 'op-pickers. He's got a month.'"
It was Warder Slater who gave the information. The governor took the man by the shoulder, and tried to rouse him out of sleep.

"Hitchcock! Hitchcock! Come, wake up my man! It's all right; he's coming to—he's waking up!"
He did wake up, and that so suddenly as to take the party by surprise. He sprang upright on the plank, nothing on but an attenuated prison shirt, and glared at the officials with looks of unmistakable surprise.

"Hollo! What's up! What's the meaning of this?"
Major Hardinge replied, suspicion peeping from his eyes.

"That's what we want to know, and what we intend to know,—what does it mean? Why aren't you in your cell?"
The man seemed for the first time to perceive where he was.

"Strike me lucky, if I ain't outside! Somebody must have took me out when I was asleep." Then, realising in whose presence he was: "I beg your pardon, sir, but some one's took me out."

"The one who took you out took all the others too."
The major gave a side glance at Warder Slater. That intelligent officer seemed to be suffering agonies. The prisoner glanced along the corridor.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is an effective remedy, as numerous testimonials conclusively prove. "For two years I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and liver complaint. I doctored a long time and the medicines prescribed, in nearly every case, only aggravated the disease. An apothecary advised me to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and was cured at a cost of $5. Since that time it has been my family medicine, and sickness has become a stranger to our household. I believe it to be the best medicine on earth."
—P. F. McNulty, Hackman, 29 Summer St., Lowell, Mass.

FOR DEBILITY, Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a certain cure, when the complaint originates in impoverished blood. "I was a great sufferer from a low condition of the blood and general debility, becoming finally, so reduced that I was unfit for work. Nothing that I did for the complaint helped me so much as Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a few bottles of which restored me to health and strength. I take every opportunity to recommend this medicine in similar cases."
—C. Evick, 14 E. Main St., Chillicothe, Ohio.

FOR ERUPTIONS

And all disorders originating in impurity of the blood, such as boils, carbuncles, pimples, blotches, salt-rheum, scald-head, scrofulous sores, and the like, take only
